DAMAGED FABRIC REPAIRED

CROWDS START TO HANGAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CARDINGTON AIRDROME, Saturday, Aug. 16.—At 5:30 A. M. today, British Summer Time (12:30 A. M. New York Time) a message was received here from the airship R-100 that she had passed over Bantry Bay on the southwestern coast of Ireland at 3:45 A. M., British Summer Time (10:45 P. M., New York Time). The airship then was reported to be following a course due east for Lundy Island in Bristol Channel on her way to Cardington.

At 7 A. M., British Daylight Time (3 A. M. New York Time), the wireless station at Cardington was in communication with the R-100, which inquired if there were any messages for her. Her position was not given but Squadron Leader Nixon, control officer, estimated the ship was then over Bristol, the first part of England reached on her return journey from Canada. He forecast her landing between 8 A. M. and 9 A. M. (3 A. M. and 4 A. M. New York Time).

The airdrome control officers who have been on duty throughout the voyage of the R-100 jubilantly hailed the reports that the airship made her landfall at Fastnet Head after her successful crossing of the Atlantic.

The last airship report said her speed was sixty-five knots in fine, clear weather with occasional fog and a mostly following wind.

Speed May Upset Schedule.

The improved speed of the final stretch of the airship's flight indicates that every effort is being made by those aboard to bring the R-100 home before the sun is too high, which might make handling of the dirigible difficult through heating of the huge bag. If the airship arrives earlier than she is scheduled, as is now likely, it may make a difference in the sort of welcome she receives. Apart from the officials, ground crew, newspaper correspondents and photographers the airdrome has few to witness the airship's homecoming.

When the R-100 was reported 300 miles off the coast of Ireland shortly before midnight, British Summer Time (7 P. M., New York Time), all was in readiness for the airship's return to her home port, which then was expected about 9 o'clock this morning (4 A.M., New York Time), possibly earlier.

The ground crew which will assist in mooring the craft was called on duty at 10 o'clock last night and is standing by until her arrival. The bad weather of the afternoon is now entirely cleared and the night is perfect, with the moon illuminating the broad expanse of field over which the airship will pass to her mooring tower. Already autos have begun to arrive on the near-by road, which by dawn is expected to be filled with the vehicles of persons hailing the successful spanning of the Atlantic in both directions by a British airship.

Air Minister Arrives.

Among the officials here to welcome the R-100 home are Lord Thomson of Cardington, Air Minister, the peer who took his title from the Bedfordshire airdrome, and Air Commodore F. V. Holt, representing with Sir John Higgins, one of those responsible for airship development, and the Royal Air Force.

The mooring of the airship is to be described by Wing Commander Colmore, who is aboard the R-100, in a wireless broadcast direct from the mooring tower for the benefit of all those who are unable to be here to witness the event.

The last half of the airship's voyage has been particularly exciting for all here. Squadron Leader [illegible], assistant director of the airship organization, is the control officer on duty at the airdrome. Since the R-100 was halfway across the Atlantic she has been in direct communication with Cardington, the messages coming directly into the airdrome wireless station, whence they pass down into the control room. There on a large chart red pins mark the airship's positions at various times when she "spoke" the airdrome.

Official Messages Delayed.

By The Associated Press.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 15.—The heroic death by drowning of Lieutenant Allen Cavenaugh, recent graduate of the Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kan., in an effort to save the lives of his wife, a woman camp counselor and seven girls in Lake Champlain near Phillipsburg, Que., yesterday, was revealed here tonight when the rest of the party returned to camp at Mallettes Bay, ten miles north of here.

Lieutenant Cavenaugh, who was acting as riding instructor at Brown Ledge Camp while on a leave of absence, was returning from a trip to Canada with his wife, the counselor and seven girls in a motorboat.

They were towing a canoe containing three more girls, when the latter craft capsized. The girls in the canoe swam to the motorboat, which also capsized.

The craft, weighted down by a heavy motor, afforded little room for the thirteen persons to cling to. The counselor and two of the strongest swimmers righted the canoe and started for shore three miles away.

Lieutenant Cavenaugh, meanwhile, kept diving under the boat in efforts to unscrew the motor and lighten the weight of the craft. On his last attempt his head struck the motor.

His wife succeeded in bringing him to the surface, although she herself was nearly exhausted from endeavoring to keep the eight girls from slipping to their deaths. Finally, Lieutenant Cavenaugh, worn out from his exertions, relaxed his grip and sank.

The counselor and the girls who went to shore were unable to return with a rescue party until seven hours later when the nine survivors were lifted to safety.

LINDBERGH RECEIVES MEDAL FROM HOOVER

AT RAPIDAN FOR WEEK-END

Flier Will Join There in the President's Conferences on Extending Air Services.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Colonel Lindbergh received today from the hands of President Hoover the special medal awarded by Congress in recognition of the aviator's achievements. A few hours later Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh left for the President's Rapidan camp, where the flier will be the central figure at a conference tomorrow to consider, among other things, methods for the elimination of duplication in Federal aviation activities.

The presentation ceremony was simple, lasting scarcely a minute, and demonstrating that Charles A. Lindbergh is still as modest as when, as an unknown mail pilot, he made his New York-Paris flight in 1927.

After President Hoover gave him the medal, Colonel Lindbergh replied in a voice inaudible more than a few feet away. His tall form bent forward as he bowed and smiled, but the appreciation he expressed was difficult to hear.

Brief Words of Presentation.

Facing Colonel Lindbergh and holding the case enclosing the medal, President Hoover smiled and said:

"It gives me real pleasure to present to you this Congressional medal on behalf of the Congress, in commemoration of your achievements in aviation."

The President paused.

"I am sure," he added with emphasis, "the sentiments expressed by Congress in this token are shared by the whole American people."

Colonel Lindbergh was silent a moment. He displayed embarrassment as he held out his hand for the medal, and then replied in low tones:

"I wish to thank you, Mr. President, and I wish to express my thanks to Congress and my appreciation to you."

The President bowed. Secretary Mellon walked over to greet Mrs. Hoover and extend his congratulations to Mrs. Lindbergh. The President and other government officers shook hands warmly with Colonel Lindbergh, and the ceremony was at an end.

Arrival at White House.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived at the White House by automobile ten minutes before the ceremony. Their baggage was piled in the front seat of the motor car ready for their journey to the Presidential camp. Aware of their advent, crowds lined the walk leading up to the Executive offices.

As Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh emerged from the automobile, the latter smiled as she and the Colonel shook hands with Governor Leslie of Indiana, who was standing just inside the White House vestibule. Mrs. Lindbergh wore a plum-colored dress with light yellow figures and a close-fitting brown felt hat.

The Lindberghs went immediately to the President's private office, where Mr. and Mrs. Hoover greeted them informally and chatted with them until time for the ceremony. The Hoovers and Lindberghs have been friends for some time. Last year the flier and his wife were the President's guests at Rapidan on the Mr. Hoover's fifty-fifth birthday.

PHELAN WILL GIVES MRS. MOODY $20,000

Bequests to Tennis Star and to Gertrude Atherton Termed Rewards to Californians.

$1,000,000 GOES TO POOR

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—One hundred friends and associates of Senator James D. Phelan are remembered with bequests in his will, filed today, which disposes of an estate estimated at more than $10,000,000 and makes specific gifts aggregating more than $3,000,000.

Notable among the beneficiaries are two Californians who have won fame in widely different fields.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody receives $20,000 in appreciation of her winning "the tennis championship for California."

Gertrude Atherton, "California's great authoress," receives $20,000 and each of her children and grandchildren receive $5,000.

To Mrs. Moody also is given a portrait of herself by Sigall and a Greek head of a woman which she admired during a visit to the Senator's home.

Fund to Aid the Needy.

The largest single bequest was a $1,000,000 fund to be known as the James D. Phelan Foundation. This is to be used "to assist, without distinction as to nationality, creed or sex, in relieving sick poor of San Francisco from disease and suffering by employing and furnishing nurses to care for them, primarily in their homes, to the end that the fund may forever be used in helping the needy sick to personal comfort and quick recovery."

In addition to the $1,000,000 foundation the trustees receive $60,000. The income from $50,000 will be used annually "for awards in literature and art, to bring about a further development of native talent in California." The income from $10,000 will go for "awards to students of the State Teachers' College at San José for poetry, as recommended annually by the faculty of that college, and also for the Montalvo competitions in literature as hereinbefore maintained by me."

Estate for a Public Park.

The Senator's magnificent country home, Montalvo, is to be maintained as a public park. The buildings and grounds, which are to be used as far as possible for the development of art, literature, music and architecture by promising students, are given to the San Francisco Art Association, together with $250,000, the income from which will be used to maintain the estate.

Many of the art treasures which the Senator spent a lifetime in collecting are given to friends.

All the family servants are remembered with sums of $250 to $2,500, and his secretaries and office employes also get substantial amounts. To his physicians, Drs. John Gallwey and Louis Mendelsohn, are given $10,000 "to improve the comfort of hospital patients perhaps by the encouragement of the invention of medical devices."

The playground commissioners of San Francisco get a bequest of $50,000 "to aid in the purchase of properties to encourage healthful sports for San Francisco children."

The universities of Santa Clara, St. Ignatius and California receive $50,000 apiece for scholarships and research work. The Notre Dame Convent, Belmont, receives $20,000, and there are numerous other bequests to charitable organizations, churches and orphan asylums.

The poor of old St. Mary's Church, "where my parents were wed and I was born," receive $50,000.

The Bohemian Club, the Native Sons, the Public Library and the Legion of Honor Palace are given $10,000 each.

MORE WATER FOR ILLINOIS

Artillery Ranges in Virginia Become Pastures—Quick Relief Promised for Montana Cattle.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Following up the action taken yesterday at his conference with Governors to decide on drought relief measures, President Hoover today instructed Secretary Hyde to allocate at once as much of the $125,000,000 Federal authorization for road building aid as each of the States may be entitled to, which under the law they can match dollar for dollar with State funds. He asked that the money be made available not later than Sept. 1 as a remedy for unemployment caused by the losses of crops. The allocation ordinarily would be made around Jan. 1.

The President also directed Secretary Hurley to increase the allowance of water from Lake Michigan for diversion through the sanitary drainage canal at Chicago as an emergency measure for relief in the Illinois Valley where live stock is suffering and health is menaced because of low water.

Mr. Hoover approved Secretary Hurley's acceptance of the plan of Governor Pollard of Virginia to utilize artillery ranges in that State for pastures. The Governor's request was granted and several thousand acres of grass land thus were made available for Virginia cattle.

Quick Aid to Montana.

The President asked Secretary Hyde to take up at once the moving of cattle and sheep from the drought-blighted plains of Montana into nearby States for pasturage. More than 500,000 head of cattle and between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 head of sheep will be faced with starvation if they are not moved out or otherwise provided for at once.

Secretary Hyde declined to make an estimate of the amount that will be allocated to the States for road work, but the figure of $40,000,000 was mentioned as an approximation. "We have no way at this time of calculating the ability of the States to cooperate with their share," said Mr. Hyde. "The matter is entirely up to the States, as, under the law, they must take the initiative."

He made it plain that the Department of Agriculture would "use its own discretion," in determining the emergency needs of the communities applying for road funds. Allocations would not be restricted to the thirteen States represented at the conference but would be applied to such sections as were found to be in need of them.

Relative to complaint made by Governor Ritchie of Maryland because his State was not included in the list of drought-afflicted States and because he was not invited to the Governors' conference, it was said at the White House today that the President invited only those Governors who had presented the plight of their States and those in whose States official reports had shown acute conditions.

It was stated further that Mr. Hoover does not intend to bar any State from relief and wherever aid is needed will confer with the Governor or a representative of the State involved and include it in the plan decided on.

Full cooperation of the three big farm organizations, the National

By The Associated Press.

TUTUILA, American Samoa, Aug. 15.—The passenger liner Tahiti, operated between San Francisco and Australia by the Union Steamship Company, was reported in distress tonight 664 miles south of Raratonga. The steamship Ventura, about 700 miles from Tahiti, was proceeding to her assistance.

The Tahiti sailed from Sydney Aug. 6 and from Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 12. She was due at San Francisco Aug. 29.

The Tahiti is a twin-screw oil burner of 7,898 gross tons, built in Glasgow in 1904 by A. Stephen & Sons, Ltd., for the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, according to Lloyd's Register. She is registered out of London. She is 460 feet long, has a 55.5 feet beam and 24.4 feet depth. She carries mail and parcel poost.

Otto Scheerer, general passenger agent here for the Union Steamship Company, said the vessel had about 175 passengers aboard when she left Wellington. She carried a crew of about 125.

NANKING ISSUES NEW BONDS

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 15.—The Nanking Government tonight telegraphed congratulations to President Chiang Kai-shek on the recapture of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province. He entered that city this afternoon and took large quantities of munitions and supplies abandoned by the Northern forces, who were retreating across the Yellow River.

The Fourth and Fifth Communist armies are advancing toward Pingsiang, and General Ho Chien is appealing for reinforcements from the Hankow garrison.

The Nanking Government announces the issue of $50,000,000 of bonds secured by the customs' surplus and payable in May, 1935. The funds are designed for "financial stabilization and rehabilitation of the country."

Rebels Report Gains.

Feng Yu-hsiang is pressing hard on the government lines at Kweiteh and Mumatsi and is threatening the Nanking Government's vital depot at Hsuchowfu. Meanwhile Shih Yu-san, Right Wing commander of the Northerners in Shantung, has launched an attack toward Yenchow, and Sun Tien-ying reports the recapture of Pochow, Anhui Province, for the North.

Chang Hsueh-liang's action in permitting two Mukden representatives to join the Peking Government is complicated by an announcement from Mukden that Wang Chia-cheng, Vice Foreign Minister at Nanking representing Manchuria, who has absented himself from Nanking for many weeks, is starting immediately for Nanking to resume his duties there. Mukden reports that the Manchurian alignment with the North is sentimental only—until the Northerners show a decisive military advantage over Nanking. But Chang Hsueh-liang has refused Nanking's request that he adhere to the government, which offers him Hopei Province, including the Peking and Tientsin area, to be permanently under the Manchurian zone of control.

A great slaughter of 2,000 Communist troops is reported by the government commander in Kiangsi Province, where a Red army was repulsed while attacking the city of Kian. Shanghai today was not dis-

Endurance Fliers Push Past 618th Hour; Engine Now Requiring More Oil and Fuel

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Saturday, Aug. 16.—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine showed no sign of weakening early today as they unfalteringly circled Lambert-St. Louis Field and hourly made the world refueling flight record less and less inviting as a target for rival endurance fliers.

The good ship, Greater St. Louis, now entering upon its twenty-seventh day aloft, had been in the air 618 hours at 1:11 A. M., Central Time (3:11 A. M., New York Time), sixty-four hours longer than the Hunter brothers, from whom the St. Louis airmen regained the record Wednesday morning.

The only complaint that had come from the pilots was that "the air sure is rolling."

An extra refueling contact was made during the night to take up cigarettes and matches to the fliers.

The motor of the endurance plane is running as smoothly as ever, the refuelers, Percy Chaffee and William Brewster, reported.

The only sign that the engine is beginning to wear is the fact that more oil and gas is being consumed than when the flight began. It takes ten gallons of gasoline to keep the plane aloft an hour now, whereas it required only about eight gallons three weeks ago. About ten gallons of oil are used each day, slightly more than was used at first.

Life for Jackson and O'Brine apparently is becoming a bit more monotonous. Their messages are less frequent than in the earlier part of the flight and their cheerful bantering over the radio has almost ceased, their communications being little more than orders for what they need.

The Rotary Club at Sparta, Ill., home of the Hunter brothers, sent Jackson and O'Brine a telegram wishing them well.

Stage and movie offers will not be considered when Jackson and O'Brine land, William Pickens, their manager, said, but a tour of fairs, making twelve to fourteen hour flights, to demonstrate refueling of planes in the air, was being contemplated.

Higgins Asks $424,195 Budget to Double His Staff; Plans Constant Watch on Inspectors to End Graft

An increase of 100 per cent in his staff will be asked today by Commissioner of Accounts James A. Higgins to permit constant scrutiny of the activities of all city inspectors so that graft can be eliminated, when the commissioner submits to the Board of Estimate his budget requests for 1931.

Commissioner Higgins is seeking $424,195 for his 1931 requirements. Recently, he received additional funds in his 1930 appropriations from the Board of Estimate in special session, to conduct the special investigations into the Board of Standards and Appeals, the Markets Department, the Dock Department and others.

He said yesterday that the evidence thus far gathered by him in these investigations had convinced him that "one of the very best things that could happen for the city government would be to provide the Commissioner of Accounts with sufficient men in order that the activities of all city inspectors may be constantly watched and checked, in order that any graft incidental to their work may be exterminated and punished as soon as it is discovered."

The commissioner pointed out yesterday that never before had his office carried on so many varied activities as during the past three years. In addition to making routine audits of the city and county offices, he said, his staff had undertaken many special investigations, such as those in the Kings County Hospital and other institutions, the investigation of the Department of Street Cleaning and, more recently, the special investigations ordered by Mayor Walker.

Early next week, Mr. Higgins said, he would report to Mayor Walker on his investigation of the Bureau of Weights and Measures.

CHICAGO GRAFT ROLL FOUND IN ZUTA BOXES

COVER 15 YEARS OF CRIME

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Records of weekly payments of hundreds of thousands of dollars in protection money from a gangland corruption fund to many public officials, policemen and some individuals making pretensions as reformers were uncovered today by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson, in two safety deposit boxes used by Jack Zuta.

Zuta, reputed operations chief for the Moran-Aiello North Side gang and alleged instigator of the assassination of Alfred J. Lingle, police reporter for The Chicago Tribune, was shot dead by five gangsters Aug. 1 at Delafield, Wis.

The records were of accounts covering the fifteen years during which Zuta was at first an obscure figure in the vice world and later a leading Chicago racketeer. A methodical man, Zuta is said to have recorded every penny he spent for graft from 1921, when he was a dive keeper, until the day of his murder. His books were a veritable "Who's Who" of Cook County politics and crime.

Canceled checks, notes for large amounts and other evidence from the records in the boxes were made public tonight by Charles F. Rathbun, Assistant State's Attorney, and Mr. Roche.

Prominent Names Revealed.

Officials and others revealed in the evidence as receiving checks from Zuta, or giving notes to him, are:

Judge JOSEPH W. SCHULMAN, for more than ten years a judge of the municipal court.

GEORGE VAN LENT, former State Senator and political leader.

EMANUEL ELLER, former judge of the municipal, superior and criminal courts; a son of Morris Eller, boss of the notorious Twentieth Ward.

LOUIS I. FISHER, attorney and brother of Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Circuit Court.

RICHARD J. WILLIAMS, sergeant of police.

Evidence of favors given Zuta by leading politicians and of Zuta's standing in political circle was found.

One item was a canceled check for $500 dated March 27, 1922, on the West Town State Bank, where Zuta maintained an account, payable to the "Regular Republican Club of Cook County." It is signed by Zuta. On the back appears an endorsement in hand-writing "Regular Republican Club of Cook County" and then a rubber stamp endorsement, "Pay to order of Foreman Brothers Banking Company, Charles V. Barrett." Beneath Mr. Barrett's name is written the abbreviation "Treas."

Card From Sheriff Graydon.

County of Cook—Sheriff's Office.
To members of the department:
The bearer, J. Zuta,
1927. Charles E. Graydon, Sheriff.

LINKED TO BUILDING WAR

One Victim Related to Terranova—Second, Due to Sail Today, Leaps to Death Wounded.

Late yesterday afternoon three men were sitting in a casually furnished office in East 116th Street. They were discussing business. Each a contractor, their vocations, the police say, were not unconnected with what was called the "Bronx building racket" before that profession swung southward into Harlem. They were seated around a table, quietly, when a knock was heard at the door.

One of the three, Peter Morello, who bore the familiar name of "The Clutch" and was a step-brother of Ciro Terranova, one-time "artichoke king," answered. As he carefully opened the door just a crack, two men with pistols pushed in. They paused only to take aim, and then fired. The man inside fell dead. He was hit five times, one bullet entering the forehead.

"The Clutch's" two companions, startled by the suddenness of the attack, waited motionless too long. The pair who had just murdered Morello turned their guns over his body. Joseph Perrano, who was 26 years old and expected to go back to Italy today, was shot through his left chest. He managed to jump from the window, which was on the second floor, but died before help reached him. The third, Gaspar Pollaro, was seriously wounded.

Another Murder Near By.

The attack took place at 3:50 P. M., and the scene was 352 East 116th Street—a building which was owned by Morello, and the second floor of which he used as an office. Just twenty minutes later there was another murder on the same street. Benjamin Prince, whom the police described as a small-time gambler and narcotic expert, was shot to death as he entered a Hungarian restaurant on the second floor of a building on the southwest corner of Lenox Avenue. His assailant likewise escaped.

The headquarters of "The Clutch"—he was called that because of a maimed hand—was a four-story building near Second Avenue. The ground floor is given over to the Sassone Realty Company. Just above it the owner had his private offices—rooms that were furnished only with a few desks and hard, straight-backed chairs. On the floor above the proprietor's is the home of Mrs. Mary Lima.

The best clue the police so far have been able to get came from the woman. She happened to be at the foot of the stairs when she heard shots. She ran into the street, but noticed the two men fleeing after the murders. She thought they departed in an automobile toward First Avenue. Apparently no one else saw them, although the police last night were questioning employes of the realty firm.

Fifteen Shots Fired.

There were fifteen shots fired during the few seconds the intruders were on the second floor. Five of them hit Morello, two Perrano, one Pollaro and the rest went into the

CRAIN'S METHODS ASSAILED

TUTTLE TRACES HEALY FUND

Suspended Official Deposited $20,000 in Five Months in 1927, Bank Books Show.

Governor Roosevelt announced in Albany last night that he had requested District Attorney Crain to forward to him all the available testimony and records of the proceedings in connection with the allegations that former Magistrate George F. Ewald had obtained his appointment to the bench by corruption.

The Governor made public copies of a telegram to that effect which he had addressed to Mr. Crain, after Dr. Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue had addressed an open letter to the Governor demanding a State investigation of the case. Governor Roosevelt declined to amplify the announcement contained in his telegram in any way.

The Governor's message to Mr. Crain follows:

Hon. Thomas C. T. Crain, District Attorney, New York County, New York City.

Please send me at once full report on Ewald case, together with copies of all available testimony and the records of the proceedings of your office.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, Governor.

Dr. Wise had telegraphed the Governor from Camp Willamette, near Lake Placid, where he is spending his Summer vacation, charging that the failure of the grand jury to act in the Ewald case was "largely as a result of the methods pursued by the prosecution." It was, he asserted, "only another item in the breakdown of justice in the city of New York."

Dr. Wise's Telegram.

Dr. Wise's telegram read:

The failure of the grand jury to act in the Ewald case, largely as a result of the methods pursued by the prosecution, is only another item in the breakdown of justice in the city of New York. As a citizen I urge you, the Governor of the State, to take such action as is possible in order to purge New York of the deepening suspicion of lack of integrity, which, in the eyes of the public, has come cumulatively to attach to the conduct of judicial and prosecuting officers.

The conduct of the Ewald case, including the full dress rehearsal and its aftermath, challenges you to take immediate action herein, such as has previously been taken under parallel circumstances by other Governors of New York. You cannot any longer permit a state of affairs to obtain in the judicial processes of New York, under which the Federal Government, by its attorney, alone up to this time can be relied upon to deal with conduct which should be dealt with simply and directly by the District Attorney.

The as yet unchallenged threat of alliance between civic corruption and judicial conduct in New York demands that you act with the vigor and directness which the people expect of you at this time.

Tuttle Asks Minutes.

United States Attorney Tuttle earlier in the day had requested from Mr. Crain a copy of the minutes of the grand jury which refused to act in the Ewald case. With this act was coupled information from other Federal officials confirming reports that John J. Mara, Tammany leader of the Twenty-third Assembly District, had told a Federal grand jury that George W. Olvany had approached him (Mara) with a request that he back Ewald's appointment, that he had declined to do so, and that Mr. Olvany then addressed himself to Martin J. Healy, suspended Deputy Commissioner of Plant and Structures and Tammany leader in the Nineteenth Assembly District.

Mr. Olvany, who, like Mara, was not called before the grand jury by Mr. Crain, when questioned privately by Mr. Crain made no reference to his negotiation with Mara, nor was he asked by Mr. Crain about it. Mr. Olvany told Mr. Crain he did not remember discussing the appointment with Healy.

Following the appearance of Mr. Crain's private investigation, Mr. Mara characterized the testimony attributed to him before the Federal grand jury as "the bunk." Yesterday Alvin K. McK. Sylvester, Assistant United States Attorney, declared that the reports concerning Mara's testimony to the Federal grand jury were "substantially correct."

In forwarding his request to Mr. Crain for a copy of the county grand jury's minutes, made in a letter sent by messenger to the District Attorney's office, Mr. Tuttle called attention to the courtesy shown by him to Mr. Crain in supplying the latter with the minutes of the Federal grand jury.

Federal officials also hoped that the county grand jury minutes may show whether contempt of court was committed by Healy, Mrs. Ewald and Tommaney when, previous to Mr. Crain's investigation, they had refused to tell the Federal grand jury anything about the alleged loan transaction on the ground that this might tend to degrade or incriminate them. Mrs. Ewald specifically supported her refusal to testify by asserting that she might be incriminated under the State law forbidding traffic in offices.

Mr. Tuttle's letter will not reach Mr. Crain until Monday, but over the telephone from his Summer home at Southampton, L. I., Mr. Crain said last night that he will be glad to accede to Mr. Tuttle's request. Mr. Crain declared that he will go before Judge Allen in General Sessions on Monday and ask for an order permitting the transfer of the minutes. Judge Allen will also receive on Monday the report of the grand jury dismissing the charges in connection with Ewald's appointment.

Federal officials also revealed that Mr. Healy's bank books show that at the time he borrowed $10,000 from Mrs. Ewald, wife of the magistrate, supposedly for the purchase of a Summer home, he had $10,000 in his own accounts.

$20,000 Deposits Revealed.

Bank records show, the Federal officials said, that between Jan. 1, 1927, and June 1 of the same year Healy had deposited $20,000 in the Harlem branch of the Corn Exchange Bank.

The deposits of the five-month period in question were made in regular instalments, but included also the lump sum of $10,000 received by Healy from Mrs. Ewald in April, 1927, on the eve of her husband's appointment.

According to Federal officials, Healy, between January and May of 1927, was depositing money at the rate of $51,000 a year. His salary as deputy commissioner is $7,500 a year.

Mr. Tuttle has subpoenaed Mr. Healy's bank books for the entire year of 1927 and hopes to determine next week the exact amount deposited by Healy for the twelvemonth period.

Bank books of Mrs. Ewald, Ewald and Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk in the office of Sheriff Farley, have also been subpoenaed, as have the bank books of Dr. Francis M. Schirp, a member of the political committee of the Steuben Society, which recommended Ewald's appointment. Dr. Schirp, according to allegations rejected by the county grand jury, received $2,000.

Healy, Mrs. Ewald and Tommaney told the grand jury that the money, paid on the eve of Ewald's appointment, which was April 30, 1927, was a loan arranged for Healy through Tommaney as intermediary. The loan was non-interest bearing. Mrs. Ewald's testimony was that she received a note from Tommaney for repayment of the loan, but that the note has been lost. Ewald contended he knew nothing of the transaction until a fortnight ago, when he read it in the newspapers.

In investigating Healy's bank account and those of the other principals, Mr. Tuttle is now seeking to determine for himself whether the money received by Healy was actually a loan or whether it constituted a payment on which an income tax should have been paid. It is to this end that Mr. Tuttle has subpoenaed the joint bank accounts of the Ewalds, and the trust accounts held by Mrs. Ewald for her stepsons, Peter Kenneth and George F. Ewald Jr. The trust accounts are of particular interest to Mr. Tuttle, since $9,000 of the $10,000 transaction with Healy came from these funds. It was from one of these funds that Mrs. Ewald drew $5,000 which she transferred to what she termed her own account before drawing a check to this amount to Tommaney for Healy. The other $5,000 of the $10,000 payment was given in cash, $4,000 of which came from the other trust fund.

Mr. Tuttle is seeking to determine why Mrs. Ewald should have made a non-interest-bearing loan to a politician on the eve of her husband's appointment to the bench, and why Healy borrowed this money at a time when his bank account shows him to have had more than the price of his home, which was said to be $6,500.

PLANS TO SUE WOMAN IN POISON FOOD CASE

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 15.—While chemists began today their examination of popcorn, crackers and pieces of bread upon which Mrs. Gabriel Clark of 25 Garden Street is alleged to have placed poison and then tossed them over her back fence within the reach of the children of her neighbor, counsel for Mrs. Clark announced that a $50,000 false arrest suit would be started on behalf of the 24-year-old woman, who herself is a mother.

Sol Rubin, counsel for Mrs. Clark, said the damage suit would be brought against Mrs. Mary Kennedy, whose yard adjoins that of Mrs. Clark, and who made the complaint in city court. The charge is that Mrs. Clark placed poison on food intended for the use of others, and it carries a maximum sentence of ten years in prison.

Mr. Rubin explained that Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Kennedy had been unfriendly, partly because of disputes among their children.

Chemists said they would not be able to complete their analysis of the food until Monday. Doctors today examined Vincent Kennedy, the 3-year-old youth who is said to have been poisoned. He was found to be out of danger.

KOSUTICH LOSES APPEAL.

Exclusion From Country Upheld, He Asks Another Hearing.

August Kosutich, former Yugoslav Cabinet Minister and leader of the Croat Peasant Party, has been excluded from the United States in a third decision rendered on Ellis Island yesterday after hearing before a board of special inquiry. Mr. Kosutich, who arrived here more than two weeks ago, has been detained on the island on charges made by Yugoslav representatives here and in Washington.

A week ago Ellis Island authorities decided against his admission, and he appealed the case to the Department of Labor. The department at first reversed the special board's findings, but two hours after granting admission to him, it held the decision in abeyance and instructed for further examination.

TELLS OF TONG PLOT AT $500 A MURDER

THREE SUSPECTS QUERIED

Several Alleged to Have Been Marked for Death in War Between Orientals.

Lamberto Eullarian, 28 years old, a Filipino, of 163½ West 102d Street, who was arrested with three Chinese last Sunday night as a suspect in a plot to slay members of the On Leong Tong, asserted yesterday to Assistant District Attorney Joseph V. Burns that he had been hired by his fellow-prisoners to employ white men as slayers in the alleged conspiracy.

John Wong, owner of a laundry at 323 East Twenty-sixth Street, where the four men were arrested; his cousin, Stanley Wong, also of the Twenty-sixth Street address, and George Chu of 104 Lenox Avenue denied any knowledge of the plot, however. Detectives found three pistols and seven knives in the Filipino's possession.

Two youths, on whose information the police arrested the four, also were questioned by the prosecutor. Although they were technically held as material witnesses, the authorities refused to reveal their identities. Eullarian was alleged to have told Mr. Burns that instead of being the instigator of the plot he merely was a hireling of the three Chinese. He admitted, according to the prosecutor, that he enlisted the services of one of the other two witnesses, through whose revelation to Detective Rosenberg of the Morrisania station the four prisoners were seized.

Mr. Burns said that Eullarian's story was that Chu approached him in Columbus Avenue, near Sixty-third Street, several weeks ago and said that the Tong On, a new organization, was engaged in warfare against the On Leong Tong and the Hip Sing Tong, and that several On Leong men had been marked for death. Eullarian was quoted as having said that the new tong had a $500,000 fund to carry on the warfare, and that it was suggested that if Eullarian could employ several white men as the slayers, he would receive $500 for each murder.

Eullarian, Mr. Burns said, stated that Chu and Stanley Wong came to his home later and discussed the plan and Eullarian agreed to produce two white men as the slayers. He met the two unidentified witnesses soon after this and brought them to the Twenty-sixth Street laundry last Sunday night, he went on, when the detectives, who had trailed the trio, arrested Eullarian as he emerged with the weapons in bundles.

The four prisoners were taken to Police Headquarters for further questioning after the prosecutor's interrogation. They are to be arraigned in the Yorkville court this morning on charges of violating the Sullivan law.

Riker's Island Dog Leaders Killed for Raids On City Pigs After Officials Sit in Judgment

Spotty and The Sheik, the leaders of the pork-stealing dogs on Riker's Island, were ambushed and shot to death at dusk yesterday by agents of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Warden Morehead of the island's municipal farms and the agents stalked the pack leaders to their rendezvous in the dumps, and when the dogs came out, prepared for new forays against the warden's baby porkers, the shots sounded.

Warden Morehouse was pleased. With the death of Spotty and The Sheik, "foreign dogs who came over to the island on the ash scows, bringing a taste for bacon on the hoof," he feels that his sties are safe. There are many other dogs on the island, "but the remaining hounds are respectable and not wild and ferocious as Spotty and The Sheik were," said the warden. "They kill rats, but they don't bother pigs."

A verdict of guilty against the dogs—The Sheik and Spotty by name—was returned at a conference between Commissioner Charles S. Hand of the Sanitation Department and Commissioner of Correction Richard C. Patterson Jr. Mr. Patterson had complained that the dogs used to kill rats at the dumps had invaded the western end of the island and devoured nineteen sucklings at the prison piggery.

Warden Morehead, in charge of the municipal farms, demanded that the dogs be destroyed as a menace to the safety of the pigs, the inmates and the officials of the prison. Mr. Morehead charged that attempts of his keepers to shoot the mongrels were frustrated by the street cleaning division's employees. Patrick Hinds, superintendent in charge of the dumps, retorted that the dogs were needed to fight the rats and that his men would not work without them.

At the conference the warden contended that his 600 pigs were more important than a pack of "wild and ferocious dogs," and the dump superintendent replied that he would not allow the animals to be harmed. It was agreed, however, that The Sheik and Spotty, the leaders and the most vicious of the pack, must be destroyed. An A. S. P. C. A. official went to the island to see that the animals were killed mercifully.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 15.—Recorder Joseph Altman ordered today that two vicious dogs be killed for having bitten neighbors of their owners. When Recorder Altman told one of the owners, John Blinderwick, a barber, of 2,211 Arctic Avenue, that he should have kept his dog muzzled, Blinderwick answered, "Judge, I wish you would muzzle the wife; then a lot of other things wouldn't happen. Anyhow, she cares more about the dog than I do." The other dog sentenced to die is owned by Charles Pollock of 46 North Annapolis Avenue, who said the animal "is out of town."

URGES PISTOL LAW WITH LICENSE CLAUSE

Uniform Law Commission, at Chicago, Approves Act After 7 Years' Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—After seven years' consideration and the writing of three drafts, a uniform firearms act was recommended to the States today by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws in session here. Twenty-eight States voted for it. Delaware, New York, Georgia and Porto Rico voted against it, and Texas refused to vote.

"No person who has been convicted in this State or elsewhere of a crime of violence shall own a pistol or have one in his possession or under his control.

"No person shall carry a pistol in any vehicle or concealed on or about his person, except in his place of abode or fixed place of busines, without a license therefor.

"The judge of a court of record, the chief of police of a municipality, the sheriff of a county, may upon the application of any person issue a license to such person to carry a pistol in a vehicle or concealed on or about his person within this State for not more than one year from date of issue, if it appears that the applicant has good reason to fear injury to his person or property, or has any other proper reason for carrying a pistol, and that he is a suitable person to be so licensed."

The conference also adopted a uniform air licensing act, which in theory extends the Federal law licensing pilots and machines to the States, making the same rules apply to all States. Professor George C. Bogert of the University of Chicago, chairman of the committee, said that the adoption of this act would prevent inexperienced pilots from taking up passengers for a short ride in planes unairworthy.

Sullivan Doyle, and his nephew, Noel Sullivan. They are named residuary legatees, and to them will go the income from the estate after the specific bequests are made. At the end of twenty-five years the estate will be divided equally among the three or their heirs.

Because of the way Senator Phelan phrased the bequest to Mrs. Moody, discussion quickly started as to whether she would endanger her amateur standing by accepting it. The paragraph read:

"To Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, in appreciation of her winning the tennis championship for California, $20,000 and Sigall's portrait of herself and Greek head of a woman at Villa Montalvo."

Roscoe Maples, president of the California Tennis Association, said he was inclined to believe that Mrs. Moody could accept the gift without sacrificing her amateur standing.

"After all, it was just a gift from one Californian to another, proud of honor done the State, and an act of friendship," he remarked.

Will Refer Question to Association.

The question of whether acceptance by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of a bequest made "in appreciation of" her tennis efforts would endanger her amateur standing probably will be referred to the amateur rule committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Louis B. Dailey, president, told The Associated Press here yesterday.

The question is understood to be without precedent in tennis, but one official suggested as a possible parallel the case of Bobby Jones, who declined to accept a house offered to him by citizens of Atlanta.

card being generally accepted to give immunity from arrest for traffic and other violations noted by the sheriff's policemen.

Another item was a membership card, 772, to Jack Zuta, in the William Hale Thompson Republican Club, with the printed signature of Homer K. Galpin, chairman.

A financial statement in the records indicated that, in one week, Zuta, as business manager of the underworld syndicate headed by George (Bugs) Moran and the Aiello brothers, paid out $100,000 as "dividends" on the Fairview dog track; the investigators refused to say who received the "dividends." In other weeks, $107,000 was paid from the receipts of four North Side gambling houses.

Only a small part of the evidence was revealed, Mr. Rathburn and Mr. Roche explaining that the items presented seemed to speak for themselves. Other documents revealing many connections between politicians, police officials, public officers and the gangs are in the prosecutor's possession and will be subjected to careful investigation, it was announced.

The prosecutor said it was apparent from the nature of the papers found that Zuta had preserved it deliberately, with the purpose in mind that, should any of the afficials involved become "unmanageable" or should he for any other reasons desire to intimidate them, he would display evidence that he had paid them money.

Items as to Judge Schulman.

Checks and notes upon which the name of Judge Schulman appears are in the aggregate amount of $5,500. A description of the items follows:

A note for $1,000, dated Dec. 21, 1921, payable three months after date, signed by Joseph Schulman and made payable to himself, endorsed by Schulman in blank.

A canceled check for $500 on the Westtown State Bank, dated Feb. 21, 1922, signed by Zuta, made payable to Schulman and endorsed by Schulman.

A note for $500, dated May 22, 1922, payable four months after date, signed by Joseph Schulman and made payable to himself, endorsed by Schulman in blank.

A canceled check for $1,000, dated Aug. 7, 1922, on the Westtown State Bank, signed by Zuta, made payable to Joseph W. Schulman and endorsed by Schulman.

A note for $1,500 dated Aug. 15, 1922, payable six months after date, signed by Joseph Schulman and made payable to himself, endorsed by Schulman in blank.

A canceled check for $500, dated Nov. 25, 1925, on the Westtown State Bank, signed by Zuta, made payable to Joseph Schulman and endorsed by Schulman.

A check memorandum of the Westtown State Bank, dated Dec. 29, 1925, stating that a check for $500 signed by Joseph W. Schulman and made payable to Jack Zuta, had been returned by Schulman's bank unpaid.

An effort to reach Judge Schulman was unsuccessful. His home telephone did not answer. Judge Schulman has been on the municipal bench continuously during the period covered by the Zuta papers.

Williams Denies Zuta Dealings.

The name of Richard J. Williams appeared on a note for $600, dated Aug. 2, 1924, payable six months from date, and payable to himself. It was endorsed by Williams in blank.

Sergeant Williams is known as having been a friend of Julius Rosenheim, murdered paid informant of The Chicago Daily News. When Rosenheim, at the suggestion of officials of The Daily News, was placed on the investigating staff of Frank J. Loesch during Mr. Loesch's prosecution of vote fraud as special assistant State's attorney, Rosenheim induced Mr. Loesch also to obtain the services of Sergeant Williams.

Mr. Loesch has since stated that he found both Rosenheim and Williams unreliable. Later Williams appeared on the State's Attorney's roll of police investigators and it was learned that he had been assigned to do work for E. R. Brunker, reformer and had of the Civic Safety Commission. Complaints against the activities of Williams were received by Mr. Roche, when then severed Williams from all connection with the State's Attorneey's office.

Williams, interviewed tonight, said he never in his life had any transactions with Zuta.

Two checks of Zuta's appeared to have been cashed by Louis I. Fisher. One was for $500, dated Oct. 4, 1926, on the West Town State Bank, payable to currency and endorsed by Fisher and a scrawled signature which appeared to be "F. G. Bozius." The other was for $100, dated Feb. 11, 1927, on the West Town State Bank, payable to cash and endorsed by Fisher and a scrawled signature which appeared to be "A. C. Kallish."

Louis Fisher has acted at times as counsel for interests promoting dog track ventures. Judge Fisher, his brother, two years ago issued injunctions restraining the police and the State's attorney from interfering with the operation of the Hawthorne and Thornton dog tracks. The Supreme Court, passing on the validity of the injunctions, found that the dog tracks were illegal enterprises.

Checks to Van Lent and Eller.

The checks payable to Van Lent were dated during the time he was a member of the State Senate and a power in west side politics. One is for $500 dated April 4, 1922, and the other for $100, dated Oct. 16, 1926, both on the Westtown State Bank.

Mr. Van Lent could not be located tonight.

A check sined by Zuta for $250, dated April 4, 1922, was made payable to Emanuel Eller. It is endorsed by Mr. Eller and was deposited in the West Side Trust and Savings Bank.

Mr. Eller in 1922 was a candidate for municipal judge and he was elected to that bench in June of that year. He could not be located tonight.

To Fight Impounding of Records.

Photostatic copies are being made and State's Attorney Swanson said he would oppose efforts to have the records impounded.

The more important of the two boxes was discovered in the vaults of the Capitol Building here. It was rented under the name of Jack Saleto.

The second box was located in the basement vaults of the American Bond and Mortgage Company Building. There for many months the North Side gang had its business headquarters. It was in the name of Ike Ginsberg, Zuta's first counsin and the executor of his estate.

In the Capitol Building box, besides Zuta's personal records, were twenty-one $2.50 gold pieces, two $5 gold pieces, several diamonds and some other pieces of jewelry.

Mr. Swanson in a statement he issued prior to the making public of part of the records, said:

"A novel result in gangland murders has just been accomplished by the office in charge of Chief Investigator Pat Roche and Assistant State's Attorneys Charles F. Rathburn and James McShane. Due to the leading parts in gangland affairs assigned by the press to the late Jack Zuta, it may be of interest to the public to know that Roche is in possession of the contents of two safety-deposit boxes found in Chicago under an assumed name, but belonging to Zuta.

"Much interest is contained in these boxes pertaining to the connection of Zuta with many persons, but the information so contained therein must be checked, and publicity at this time would hinder the use of such information for investigational purposes."

Rockford Killing Seen as Link.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP).—The finding of the boxes containing the Zuta records followed by a few hours the killing of Joseph Giovingo, an alleged bootlegger, in Rockford. Giovingo was shot to death by gunmen in an automobile as he stood talking to two policemen. Near by at the time was Thomas Abbottini, alias Abbott, Chicago gangster whose name had been linked with both the Zuta and Lingle killings, and police said it was likely the bullets had been meant for Abbottini.

Abbottini disappeared after the shooting but later gave himself up for questioning at Chicago detective headquarters.

Deputy sheriffs found the car used by Giovingo's slayers at Rockford. It was abandoned on the outskirts of the city, its rear window shattered by the fusillade of bullets fired by police as the killers drove away. Police said the car was stolen. In it was an empty 12-gauge shotgun shell.

HELD IN JEWELRY HOLD-UP.

Ex-Convict Jailed as Suspect in Forsyth Street Robbery.

Thomas Sheridan, 28 years old, an ex-convict, was held without bail for hearing on Monday when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Weil in the Tombs Court on suspicion that he participated on July 14 in the $17,000 jewelry store hold-up at 100 Forsyth Street.

The jeweler, Morris Liebowitz, charged in an affidavit that Sheridan threatened him with a pistol in the hold-up. Police said he was known as The Harp and James Flynn and that he was a friend of Jack (Legs) Diamond, one-time gang leader and more recently a night club owner.

Assistant District Attorney Mandle, in asking that Sheridan be held without bail, said the suspect's police record showed nine arrests but only one conviction, on which he was sentenced in the Bronx in 1923 to five years in Sing Sing for a hold-up.

Sheridan denied any connection with the Liebowitz robbery, and said for more than a year he had been the manager of a hotel in the Catskills.

RING IN LOOSE MILK REPORTED REVIVED

"FAIR-PRICE" LIST ISSUED

First Bulletin of Wynne's Board Says Produce Supply in City Is Far in Excess of Demand.

Acting on reports that "milk racketeers" have combined to force up the price of loose milk four cents a quart next week, Assistant Attorney General William B. Groat Jr. decided yesterday to hold a special hearing this morning into the milk situation, preliminary to the general inquiry which State authorities will open on Monday into food profiteering in this city.

Mr. Groat charged that the old milk ring headed by Larry Fay, which a year ago was broken up when its leader and 140 others were indicted by the grand jury, has been revived. Between sixty and seventy of Mr. Fay's associates in the former combination are said to be involved in the new group. Mr. Groat said the director of the new ring was known to the Attorney General's office, but he would not divulge his name.

Taking advantage of the drought the ring, with headquarters in the Bronx and Harlem, has ordered an advance in the price of loose milk to $4.40 per 40 quart can, beginning next week, according to a report to Mr. Groat. The increase would mean that every quart of milk will cost grocers 11 cents wholesale, or 4 cents more than the price at which the Dairymen's League supplies loose milk to Borden's Farm Products Company, its chief market. The Borden Company, even under the recently increased price of the Dairymen's League, pays only $3.37 for 47 quarts of loose milk or about 7 cents a quart.

Promises to Jail Racketeers.

"If we find that there is a conspiracy to boost milk prices by milk racketeers, we shall go as far as we can to kill the combine and to put the racketeers behind bars," Mr. Groat promised.

While Mr. Groat was rushing out subpoenas to witnesses, Health Commissioner Wynne returned to town to set in operation the recently organized Fair Price for Foods Board. The first bulletin of the board showed that there is an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables in the city and that wholesalers have a supply of produce far in excess of the public demand.

While wholesale prices of foods are very low, in many cases being only half what they were a year ago, some unscrupulous retailers are charging exorbitant prices, according to the report. Dr. Wynne declared, however, that there has been a "noticeable falling off" in profiteering by retailers. The publicity against profiteering undertaken by the Health Department and the newspapers, he said, has "scared" many dealers into quoting lower prices. Retail prices, however, still do not reflect the generally very low prices in the wholesale market, he said.

The first radio broadcast of the Fair Price Board will be made Monday morning at 11:05 o'clock over radio station WNYC, when Dr. Wynne will inform consumers on fair prices for the necessities of life. His advice will be based on the reports of 100 department inspectors who are making a survey. Dr. Wynne will give similar talks at least three times a week during the crusade against high prices. Other talks will be given daily over the same station at that hour.

The high food prices, in the opinion of Mr. Groat, are due directly to a conspiracy by food dealers.

"We are going to bend every effort to put an end to any such combination," he promised. "With various public agencies besides our own concentrating on this work, we feel confident that we are going to make it very hot for food profiteers. Under the unwelcome spotlight of glaring publicity, profiteering activities are bound to become minimized and if possible we shall put a definite end to them altogether."

Predicts "Shocking" Revelations.

Mr. Groat predicted that revelations at the State inquiry next week would prove "a shock." He said his prediction was based on reports to the Attorney General's office. He declined to name the witnesses subpoenaed, because, he said, "many of them will play safe and run out of town." Officers of the leading milk distributers here will appear before the inquiry about the middle of next week, he asserted.

Health Department inspectors yesterday found retail prices particularly high in tomatoes, lettuce, peas, string beans and cucumbers. They reported that pushcart peddlers are perhaps reaping the richest harvest.

Fish was reported unusually abundant. Although it was being retailed at prices nearly 100 per cent above the wholesale quotations, Dr. Wynne declared that haddock, cod, fluke, porgies and scallops were low priced. He urged more liberal use of fish.

Porgies led the market in low prices, selling yesterday at wholesale for 5 cents and at retail for 12 cents. Bluefish sold from 5 to 20 cents a pound, according to size; salmon wholesaled at 20 cents a pound and retailed for 35 cents. Scallops wholesaled at 18 cents and retailed at 30 cents, and fluke wholesaled at 15 cents and retailed for 25 cents. Cod was 12 cents wholesale and 23 cents retail.

Fair Price List Issued.

Celery of the finest quality at 5 cents a large bunch will permit a generous profit. Crates containing 42 roots are selling in the wholesale market at 60 for 75 cents

Tomatoes should not sell for more than 3 cents a pound, as crates of tomatoes averaging 30 to 35 pounds are selling for less than 2 cents a pound. Fancy large pears should retail for 2 cents each. The wholesale price, the lowest in twenty years, is $1.25-$1.50 a crate.

Potatoes, finest quality, should retail below 2 cents a pound; selling wholesale at $2 to $2.35 per bag of 150 pounds.

New cabbage will find a good market to dealers if sold at 10 cents for three pounds.

Peaches admit of a retail price of 15 cents a dozen, new apples of the best grade, 4 or 5 cents a pound, and the finest and largest honeydew melons should retail for no more than 30 cents each. The medium-size honeydew should retail at no more than 15 to 20 cents each.

Beets, carrots, all varieties of salad, onions, cucumbers and cauliflower are all coming to the city in abundant quantities and should retail at low prices.

Meats and live poultry are very low at wholesale, the report added. It declared that a fair price for Western dressed beef admitting of a generous profit was 25 cents on rib roast and 30 to 33 cents on round, sirloin and porterhouse roasts. The finest dressed fricassee fowls should not sell for more than 35 cents a pound, while Long Island ducklings, the survey declared, should retail at 32 to 35 cents.

The "fair price board" in its first report emphasized that all of its quotations admitted of very generous profits to the retail dealer.

"Profiteering in foodstuffs is only possible when housewives do not pay personal attention to marketing," it concluded. "We urge all housewives to take particular care not to be imposed upon. They can get full value for their dollars only by personally supervising all they buy."

Rains in Drought Areas Rout Market Bears; Active Stocks Swing Upward, Steel Leading

Reports that the drought-stricken areas were being relieved by rains threw a scare yesterday into Wall Street's "bear party" and caused a hurried covering movement that lifted the value of active issues on the New York Stock Exchange from 1 to 12 points.

The market began to move forward about noon, but it was not until 2 o'clock that the big upswing got under way. By that time the financial community was convinced that the drought was being broken and this was all that was needed to cause a disorderly retreat by the shorts. The rise on the Stock Exchange in the last hour of trading was swift and spectacular. United States Steel and American Can set the pace and the rest of the list followed.

When the market closed the quotations disclosed a net gain of 5⅝ points in Steel, 12 points in J. I. Case, 8 points in Allied Chemical, 8⅝ points in Air Reduction, 7½ points in American Can, 30 points in American Machine and Foundry, 5⅝ points in American Telephone and Telegraph, 8½ points in American Tobacco B, 8 points in Auburn Auto, 4¼ points in Foster Wheeler, 7⅝ points in Eastman Kodak, 4¼ points in Johns-Manville, 7 points in Vanadium, 6⅝ points in Westinghouse Electric and 4 points in United Aircraft.

To some it looked as if an old-fashioned "bear trap" was being sprung in the last hour, but actually it was the rain news more than anything else which caused the rise. Shortly before the close it was reported in brokerage circles that Roger Babson, the statistician whose prophecies of market disaster preceded the big break of last Autumn, was to issue an optimistic statement on the stock market. These reports had some effect and may have caused some of the speculators for the decline to cover, but it was the fear that overnight rains would definitely end the drought that caused the rout of the shorts between 2 and 3 o'clock.

The wide publicity given within the last two or three days to the overcrowded short position has exposed the "bear party" to attacks by bullish operators and undoubtedly there was some activity of this kind yesterday, brokers said.

NAME ALL ST. PAUL VICTIMS.

Police See Kansas City Vengeance in Slaying of Gangster Trio.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 15 (AP).—State and county authorities, plunged into activity by the triple gangster execution near here Wednesday night, completed identification of the victims and then turned their efforts tonight toward learning who ambushed the trio on a lonely country road.

Nearly a dozen theories were expressed by the authorities to account for the sudden outbreak of gang warfare which took the lives of Frank Coleman and Mike Rusick, Kansas City gangsters, and Sammy Silverman alias Stein, Minneapolis bank robber and slayer of a Kansas City policeman. One was that the victims had been slain because of double-dealing with other gangsters from Kansas City.

Identification of Rusick was made today.

OLD SMITH HOME IS SOLD.

House at 72 Oliver Street Was Wedding Gift to His Daughter.

The dwelling at 72 Oliver Street, for many years the home of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, has been sold by Mrs. Emily Smith Warner, his daughter, to the Wilton Holding Corporation, it was learned yesterday.

The house was a wedding present from Mr. Smith to his daughter in 1926. Mr. Smith's original home on Oliver Street was at 25, but the later residence at 72 was the home of the Smith family for many years. The five-story dwelling lies between Oak and Cherry Streets.

The property was transferred to the new owner subject to a mortgage of $11,500.

HAIL HITS NEAR MALONE, N.Y.

Crops Are Damaged—Bolt Strikes Two Children.

MALONE, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—The worst hailstorm in twenty-five years struck several small communities about three miles from here today, and hailstones as large as golf balls ruined corn fields and badly damaged potatoes and garden crops.

Bellmont, Owl's Head and Duane suffered. Heavy rain and lightning followed, and two children were knocked unconscious when a bolt struck a house at Duane. Fields adjacent to streams suffered considerably from flood waters.

HOOVER ORDERS USE OF ROAD FUNDS NOW

Grange, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the Farmers' Union, was pledged to the President by their respective heads.

Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, said the county bureaus of his organization throughout the drought areas would be instructed to place themselves at the command of the local relief bodies. C. C. Talbot, chairman of the board of the Farmers' Union, said his organization had a credit system through which substantial financial assistance could be arranged for rehabilitation purposes. S. H. Thompson of the Farm Bureau Federation repeated former assurances of cooperation.

Reports reaching the White House today were that rains in the last forty-eight hours had allayed alarm in many blighted areas. Rains ranging from one-half to one inch fell in nearly all of Missouri, Southern Illinois, Southern Indiana, nearly all of Kentucky, most of West Virginia, in the southwestern portion of Virginia, Tennessee and Alabama, according to the Weather Bureau.

Areas reported as still needing rain are Northern Ohio, Northern Illinois, Northern Indiana, Iowa, Oklahoma, Texas and the Dakotas.

Secretary Hyde, computing losses in the most affected States on the basis of gross production of all crops in a ten-year average estimates that West Virginia lost 65 per cent of production; Montana, 66.2; Kentucky, 66.7; Arkansas, 69.8; Virginia 70.5; Missouri, 77; Ohio, 78; Oklahoma, 78; North Dakota, 80.1; Tennessee, 83.7; South Dakota, 84; Wyoming, 84.3; Indiana, 85.5, and Illinois, 86.6.

Governors Erickson of Montana, Hammill of Iowa, Leslie of Indiana and Weaver of Nebraska, who attended yesterday's conference, called at the White House before leaving Washington today to express their satisfaction with the nine-point plan and to pledge their cooperation.

DOUBT BUCKLEY "KILLER."

But Officers Take Man to Detroit After "Confession" in Stryker, Ohio.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—Detroit detectives who arrived tonight at Stryker, Ohio, cast doubt upon the story of a man held there under the name of Edwin L. Miller, who is alleged to have confessed to the murder of Gerald E. (Jerry) Buckley, radio announcer, at Detroit several weeks ago.

Despite disbelief in the man's "confession," in which they found several discrepancies, the officers started with him for Detroit.

Questioned by the detectives, Miller, a wanderer who arrived here on a truck on which he begged a ride, said that he received $25 for killing Buckley from a man whom he described as a "Greek about 40 years old."

Miller said he had been looking for work when he was offered a job by this man, who gave him a pistol and the $25 and then drove him to the hotel after furnishing him with a description of Buckley.

Miller said he shot Buckley and then returned to find his employer had disappeared and that he then fled in a Yellow cab. The detectives said the flight of the murderer was made in a Checker cab.

Miller is also said to have admitted he had been taken to a hospital once for a sanity examination.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Governor Roosevelt will give a hearing Wednesday afternoon on the application for extradition of Ted Pizzino, under arrest in New York City for alleged connection with the shooting of Jerry Buckley in Detroit, Mich.

The papers were presented yesterday to the Governor, who gave counsel for Pizzino until this afternoon to determine whether they wished to apply for a hearing.

TRIAL ABSOLVES SHANOVER

Mulrooney Finds No Basis for Charges of Wagner, Freed Later.

Charges that William Shanover of the Police Department, by "planting" a revolver, had caused the conviction of Benjamin Wagner for first-degree robbery on false testimony, were dismissed yesterday by Police Commissioner Mulrooney. At the same time the commissioner explained that Shanover's demotion from third-grade detective to patrolman, which was ordered earlier in the week, was due to the commissioner's belief that the attacks upon his character in connection with the charges had "impaired his usefulness as a detective."

Wagner was convicted in April of last year and was sentenced to from twenty to thirty years in Sing Sing by Judge Franklin Taylor in Kings County. The judge subsequently granted a new trial, and still later quashed the indictment after he had been told that the evidence against Wagner was the result of a "frame-up." Judge Taylor filed a complaint against Shanover with Grover Whalen, then Police Commissioner.

"I am satisfied," Commissioner Murooney said in his decision, "that Shanover did not testify falsely. In my opinion, Wagner was armed with the revolver found in his possession at the time of the hold-up. Wagner testifed that the episode of Shanover's offensive language occurred in a theatre on the night of Jan. 28, 1930. Police records disclose that Shanover was on duty several miles away at the specified time."

Time Payments for Telephones A Drought Relief Step in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—The plan of the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Company to aid drought sufferers in rural sections by permitting them to pay telephone bills on the instalment plan received the approval of the Utilities Commission today.

Rural subscribers in three counties will pay one-third of their monthly bills when they fall due and the remainder in two deferred equal payments.

The commission may take steps to collect the rates when the drought period is considered at an end.

SAVES SOME JERSEY CROPS.

Rain Comes in Time for Badly Burned Produce.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 15.—Rain which fell in Southern New Jersey last night and today saved many crops which had been thought burned too badly to survive.

Some of the blighted crops were being plowed under today, and farmers were preparing to plant late produce, which they hoped would get a good start from promised showers. Midseason tomatoes, field and sweet corn, beans, canteloupes and watermelons will be benefited little if any by rain, but sweet potatoes, eggplant, peppers and other crops probably will survive.

South Jersey apples were believed to have been uninjured by the drought, and the peach crop is expected to be nearly normal.

Water experts said that if rain continued another day or so the water supply would be back nearly to normal in most districts.

Torrington (Conn.) Crops Saved.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 15 (AP).—A steady rain in Connecticut last night and this morning brought relief from the drought. Farmers in the Torrington section reported their crops had been saved, but that early Fall apples had been ruined on the trees. The rain has revived the tobacco crop, particularly that planted on light soil.

CAMPBELL INDICTED FOR BAKER MURDER

WILL FIGHT EXTRADITION

Prisoner, Now in Alexandria (Va.) Jail, Will Contest District of Columbia Jurisdiction.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—Herbert M. Campbell of Virginia Highlands, Va., was indicted today by a District of Columbia grand jury for the murder in April of Mary Baker, a Navy Department employe.

Campbell, a Virginia real estate operator, was arrested after ballistics experts reported that a revolver belonging to him was used to kill Miss Baker.

He denied guilt and offered an alibi, which was supported by members of his family. He was released by Virginia authorities but was immediately taken into custody by Federal officers, and the indictment followed.

Immediately after the report of the grand jury, which acted after examining more than a dozen witnesses in a two-day session, an extradition hearing was set for Wednesday before United States Commissioner Smith at Alexandria, Va., where Campbell is in jail.

Counsel for Campbell said that he would fight extradition, declaring he would attempt to prove that his client could not possibly have killed Miss Baker in the District of Columbia.

The Baker case has been a puzzle to District of Columbia, Virginia and Federal officers. The long investigation resulted in the arrest and questioning of scores of suspects, but Campbell is the only person to be indicted.

The girl's body was found in a culvert near Arlington National Cemetery after discovery of her abandoned automobile caused a search.

RECEIVE TAX ABATEMENTS.

Estates of S. W. Adler, L. Hellinger and A. W. Krech Benefit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Three abatements on accounts of overassessment of estate taxes of New York City taxpayers were announced by the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury Department as follows today:

Estate of Samuel W. Adler (Cyrus Adler and others, executors)—$94,722.35.

Estate of Alvin W. Krech (the Equitable Trust Company of New York and others, executors)—$30,544.93.

The overassessment in each instance was caused by the allowance of a credit under the provisions of Section 301 (B) of the revenue act of 1926 representing the amount of State inheritance taxes paid subsequent to the filing of the Federal estate tax return.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Treasury Department has recommended to the joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation overassessment allowances of $1,057,720 to the New York Life Insurance Company, New York, for 1923; $137,712 to the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh, for 1922 to 1925, and $96,820 to the Torrington Company, Torrington, Conn., for 1920.

SAYS BRITISH TIRE OF DOLE.

Senator Connally and Representatives French and Seger Return.

Dissatisfaction with the dole is growing in England, according to United States Senator Thomas T. Connally of Texas, who returned yesterday on the United States liner George Washington. Senator Connally attended the interparliamentary conferences in London. He said unemployment in England was great.

Representatives Burton L. French of Idaho and George N. Seger of New Jersey, who also attended the conference, returned on the George Washington. Mr. Seger said he toured Italy, Austria, Germany, Scotland, Ireland and France, studying the waterways, and was convinced that Germany is far ahead of the rest of the world in the handling of her water systems, particularly in the matter of flood control.

Mr. Seger said he would introduce at the next session of Congress a bill for relief of congestion at the New York Quarantine Station and would propose extension of the quarantine section of the harbor to include the Kill van Kull and part of the Raritan River. The cost would be about $500,000, he said.

FLOOD MAROONS 2,000 TRAVELERS

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Aug. 15 (AP).—Some 2,000 travelers, passengers in automobiles, buses and trains, were marooned near here today, waiting for flood waters, increased by prolonged heavy rains, to subside.

The centre of the flooded area is ten miles west of here in Baxter Basin. Z. E. Sevison, Wyoming highway engineer, said an almost continuous lake, three to five feet deep, extended fifteen miles north of the Union Pacific Railroad tracks.

Five overland buses were stranded in the basin. More than 500 automobiles were parked on both sides of the lake, many tourists camping

FRENCH WARN REICH ON TREATY REVISION

'WAR CRY,' SAYS EX-PREMIER

German Leaders Are Returning to Old Saber-Rattling Tactics, He Writes.

POLAND MAKES A PROTEST

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Foreign Minister Briand's recent energetic intervention to check what appeared to many observers as the beginning of a German movement for revision of the Treaty of Versailles and the immediate conciliatory reply it provoked has failed to satisfy the French Nationalists. The big journalistic guns of the Right press have been placed in action against Dr. Gottfried R. Treviranus, Reich Minister formerly in charge of the occupied areas of the Rhineland, and that very large portion of German opinion for whom he spoke when he said that rectification of Germany's eastern frontiers was now an urgent task for the German Government.

In his first treaty revision speech the German Minister failed rather significantly to make it clear that the revision campaign would be carried on by peaceful means. It was not surprising, therefore, that his remarks caused a storm of protest in all sections of the French press and considerable uneasiness in official quarters.

Having nurtured Franco-German rapprochement for ten years, Foreign Minister Briand lost no time in calling in the German Ambassador to Paris, to whom he expressed his complete dissatisfaction.

Revises Utterances.

Another Treviranus speech followed next day, but prominent in the Minister's utterances was the assertion that whatever Germany tried to do along the lines of treaty revision would be undertaken only through channels of peace—a statement with which moderate opinion in France could find no special fault. Dr. Treviranus has repeated his revised speech and impartial commentators have viewed M. Briand's efforts in the light of a diplomatic victory, since his efforts seemed to eliminate the aggressive and alarming aspect of the first speech. It was recalled that no one could blame Germany for hoping that the future would bring reconsideration of certain territorial clauses in the treaties of peace, especially since Article XIX of the covenant of the League of Nations expressly stated that the Assembly might invite members of the League to proceed with a new examination of the treaties should they become inapplicable and should the international situation they establish appear to imperil the peace of the world.

Today, however, suspicion is written large in the minds of many Frenchmen, and two of the most potent molders of public opinion—former Premier Raymond Poincaré and the semi-official organ of the French Government, Le Temps—warn Germany in solemn terms that any attempts to start a treaty division campaign, even under the terms of the Covenant of the League, would result in energetic resistance and render more difficult the work of those who are striving to establish lasting peace in Europe.

Similarity in Articles.

M. Poincaré's opinion and that of Le Temps stand in somewhat different language, but the intentions are the same, and a curious similarity between tonight's leading editorial in Le Temps and M. Poincaré's fortnightly article in Excelsior has not passed without comment. It is a theme upon which the distinguished statesman has written before, but this time he took occasion to point out that if Germany is seeking to attach treaty revision to the tail of the proposed federation of Europe kite, she will find that France will not move.

The revision talk launched by Germany, while having the earmarks of a peaceful move, really is a war cry, M. Poincaré declared, for to revise the present treaties would be to please many, but to offend many others at the same time. With his usual logic and respect for written agreements, the former Premier reminds Germany that if she feels she has grievances Geneva is the place to state them. There, he declared, the nations of the world can discuss and arbitrate them.

Most of the Poincaré article is taken up with quotations from German leaders tending to show a return to the old saber-rattling tactics of former days in order to obtain what they want.

Le Temps interprets recent tendencies in Germany as very disquieting and concludes that only the results of the approaching election will show whether the German people desire to encourage a Nationalist policy which would open doors to all sorts of adventures.

Newspaper Sounds Alarm.

After reminding its readers that the Polish Government has felt called upon to make an energetic protest to Berlin against the campaign to bring about revision of the peace treaties, Le Temps observes:

"A perspective has been uncovered by these speeches which is not at all reassuring for the immediate future of European politics. It appears that the utterances of Herr Treviranus and others are intended not merely as election propaganda, but in reality constitute the commencement of a campaign, planned with the usual German care, to hasten in every way revision of the peace treaties. It is, therefore, with the design of removing from herself all consequences of defeat in the late war that Germany contemplates the pursuit of European cooperation.

"Germany is forbidden to use violence, but she intends to use all diplomatic and political means at her disposal to the end that the international atmosphere shall be poisoned and that all moral progress accomplished in recent years shall be found to be dangerously compromised."

Poland Protests.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Aug. 15.—A strong protest against the speech last Saturday by Gottfried Treviranus, German Minister for occupied areas, was made last night by the Polish Foreign Minister August Zaleski, to the German Chargé D'Affairs, Herr von Rintelen.

M. Zaleski returned yesterday from Tallin, where he went with President Moscicki, and his first act on his return was to make this démarche. An official communiqué says that M. Zaleski most formally and categorically protested against a speech "aimed at the Polish State's integrity coming from a member of the German Cabinet," the Foreign Minister emphasizing that such speeches make impossible any positive work in the two countries' relations, and, worse still, create an atmosphere in which there cannot be peaceful cooperation.

The government's protest against what is regarded as a renewed attack on the existing Polish-German frontier has the support of all the nation. The whole press once more declares there can be no change in frontiers. The Socialist Deputy Stanczyk in the party paper Roboinsk warns the Germans that talking of frontier changes means disturbing the peace of Central Europe. Herr Treviranus's speech, coming on top of energetic German treaty revision propaganda, so stirred the Poles that it was considered it could not be left unanswered by the government.

Protest Ignored in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The objections of the Polish Foreign Minister, August Zaleski, to the much-discussed Treviranus speech last Sunday provoked little interest here, and it will not be discussed by the German Government, it is learned.

The German Chargé d'Affaires disclaimed ability to discuss the question and this stand is being backed up in Berlin, where it is felt that M. Zaleski is "shooting into empty space" if he considers the speech an invitation to war and serious injury to Polish German relations.

Furthermore, well-informed circles say that if M. Zaleski takes the stand that this speech threatens to upset the peaceful cooperation of Germany and Poland, it is tantamount to denying the right insured under Article XIX of the League covenant to press for revision of clauses which are proving untenable.

No German Government has ever failed to reiterate that Germany is not contented with her Eastern border arrangements. If Dr. Treviranus gave expression to this tent of the German creed more strongly than recently had been heard that does not alter the fundamental truth of his statements.

And if any one reads a threat of war into his words he is misinterpreting, for Dr. Treviranus knows as well as any one else that Germany could not attempt to seize the Corridor by force of arms even if she wanted to. The Minister merely wishes to re-emphasize this aim of German foreign policy lest the world forget that the Reich still intends to use every peaceful means at her disposal to bring about revision.

Neverthless, the incident unquestionably has embarrassed the government. And the sword rattlers are disappointed that Dr. Treviranus explained his "fiery" words were not meant as threats but as reminders.

WILL BURY DAUGHTER HERE.

Arents Family Will Not Let Body Rest With Husband's in Budapest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 15.—A telegram was received here yesterday from the parents of the former Dorothy Arents of New York, stating that they will not be present at the funeral of their daughter's husband, the Hungarian engineer, Julius von Konkoly Thege, who committed suicide in Norway.

Instead of M. Konkoly Thege being buried at the side of his wife, as was first planned, he will be buriad in Budapest, while his wife's body will be exhumed and taken at the request of her parents to the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Arents are at present in London, where they will await the arrival of their daughter's body before returning to the United States.

Mrs. Dorothy von Konkoly Thege died in Budapest last month after taking poison in mistake for medicine. Her grief-stricken husband shot himself last Monday while on a cruise with his wife's parents.

CITY GREETS LIPTON IN HARBOR TODAY

Macom Will Meet Leviathan at Quarantine and Convey Him to the Battery.

LARGE COMMITTEE NAMED

Famous Sportsman, on His Fifth Trip for Yacht Race, Expected to Speak on Radio Program.

Sir Thomas Lipton will be met at Quarantine by the yacht Macom bearing the Mayor's Committee for Reception of Distinguished Guests and the Fire Department Band when he arrives this morning on the United States liner Leviathan to attend the America's Cup races next month.

Before the famous British sportsman leaves the Macom at the Battery he will tell America in a nation-wide broadcast of his hopes of winning the cup in the races which begin on Sept. 13. He is expected to tell why he is sure that the Shamrock V, which arrived Wednesday at New London, will win.'

This is the fifth time that the octogenarian yachtsman has arrived in this country to watch the progress of the classic race in which he has entered a contending yacht. The graceful, green craft, now being tuned up at New London, already has won sixteen first prizes and four seconds out of twenty-two starts, and Sir Thomas is known to have shown more hopeful enthusiasm for his chances this time than in the past.

Radios His Acceptance.

Whether he will go to City Hall this morning for an official welcome by the Mayor was in doubt last night. In response to an invitation to be the guest of the city, he radioed Grover A. Whalen, chairman of the reception committee, saying:

"Kind wireless received. Greatly appreciate my kind friend Mayor Walker's compliment and delighted to accept. Looking forward great pleasure joining Macom and meeting good self and other friends. Best wishes."

According to plans last night, the visitor and his party were to be taken by automobile from Pier A, where the Macom will dock, to the Hotel Biltmore. Sir Thomas is expected to leave as early as possible for New London to inspect the Shamrock V, which is being made ready for the race, after her twenty-three-day crossing of the Atlantic.

His steam yacht, the Erin, which escorted the Shamrock V from Europe, was scheduled to arrive here to take Sir Thomas to New London, but it was thought that he might prefer to go by train or automobile.

WILL BROADCAST WELCOME.

Radio Chain Will Operate From Macom on Trip Into Harbor.

When Sir Thomas Lipton arrives at Quarantine this morning on the liner Leviathan a description of the welcome will be broadcast from coast to coast in the United States over extensive radio facilities. Short-wave international radio stations may be aligned with the chain to carry the word picture back to listeners in England. The local broadcasters will be WNYC, WJZ and WABC, operating from a microphone on the city welcoming craft, the Macom, which will go to Quarantine and take off Sir Thomas.

Broadcasting, with the British sportsman as a possible speaker before the Macom's microphone, is scheduled to begin at about 9 o'clock, the exact time depending on when the Macom arrives at Quarantine. Short-wave receivers ashore will intercept the Macom's broadcasting and wires will convey the description to the networks. Thomas Cowan, WNYC announcer, will describe the harbor scene.

When the party steps ashore at Pier A, the Battery, the WEAF chain will broadcast a short description, then revert to its regular scheduled program. The WABC chain will cease broadcasting the event when the Battery is reached.

Guests at White House Luncheon.

After group photographs were taken on the south lawn of the White House, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were the guests of President and Mrs. Hoover at luncheon, together with the Cabinet officials who were at the presentation ceremony, Captain Charles Russell Train, the President's naval aide, and Colonel Campbell T. Hodges, military aide.

At 3 o'clock Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh left by motor for the President's camp, nearly two hours in advance of the main Presidential party. Mr. Hoover delayed his start until after his regular Friday afternoon conference with the press.

Besides the aviation group, those going to the Rapidan as week-end guests included Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of THE NEW YORK TIMES; Will Durant, the author; Everett Sanders, former secretary to President Coolidge, and Mrs. Sanders; French Strother, President Hoover's literary assistant, and Mrs. Strother; Mrs. Stark McMullin of Palo Alto, Cal., friend of Mrs. Hoover; Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries; Captain Joel T. Boone, White House physician; Colonel Hodges and Captain Train.

The President left Washington just before 5 o'clock, with Mr. Ochs and Mr. Durant, to reach the camp about three hours later in time for a late supper. Mrs. Hoover will go to the camp tomorrow with her son Allan, for whom she waited in Washington tonight.

While the conferences tomorrow are expected to focus around plans to effect economies and bring about better cooperation in the several air services, they are also expected to deal with the development of mail and commercial air routes, both within this country and extending beyond its borders. Colonel Lindbergh has long been an enthusiast on the extension of air routes to Latin America.

President in Camp, by Evening.

Special to The New York Times.

LURAY, Va., Aug. 15.—President Hoover brought up the rear of the automobile caravan to his Rapidan camp for a week-end outing, arriving shortly after 8 P. M., straight from his desk at the White House. In the President's car were Mr. Ochs and Mr. Durant. Mrs. Hoover and the other guests had preceded them by about two hours.

The trip to the camp was without incident and made in virtually the schedule time he has been able to establish by his many trips. Mr. Hoover noticed a number of spots which last week had appeared as baking on a stove, but which during the past thirty-six hours had been dampened by good showers.

The rain had not been enough, however, to cause the green to appear above the brown covering of burnt grass, nor to make the upland corn look up with much degree of hope.

Lindbergh Plane at Hicksville.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, L. I., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh's Bird bi-plane, which had been at Roosevelt Field for an overhauling, was flown to the Long Island Aviation Country Club at Hicksville today by Wesley Raymond, accompanied by James McLean. Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh have been using the country club field as a base for their flights with the tiny craft.

REICH STATES' DEBTS RISE.

Total, With Those of Hanseatic and Other Cities, Is $4,041,000,000.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—Debts contracted by the Reich Federal States, the Hanseatic cities of Hamburg, Bremen and Lübeck, and forty-four large German cities, by the end of the fiscal year on March 31, 1930, amounted to $4,041,000,000, according to statistics published here today.

The indebtedness of the Federal States and the Hanseatic cities increased more rapidly during the last quarter of the fiscal year than during any of the preceding quarters. The situation reversed with the forty-four cities, which contracted during the last quarter debts totaling $35,457,000, as against $55,857,000 during the third quarter. The total debt of the cities on March 31 was $1,095,000,000, or $64.75 per capita. The total increase in the debt of the Federal States and Hanseatic cities was $150,000,000.

In the course of a campaign speech the former Chancellor and present Minister of the Interior, Joseph Wirth, declared the "Young plan cannot be fulfilled if the present world economic crisis continues."

Felons Fail in Dash From French Penal Isle; Two Drowned, Nine Recaptured in Trinidad

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Aug. 15.—The final curtain rang down yesterday on a dramatic attempt of eleven convicts to escape from the Cayenne penal colony when nine of them were sent to prison in Trinidad with the meager comfort that they will be released in three months if Cayenne does not ask for their return.

The party of eleven set out in a desperate effort to escape from the French penal island where they were serving terms of from five years to life. Their thirty-foot boat capsized in a storm, and two of the fugitives, exhausted after seven days' exposure, drowned. The remainder reached Trinidad famished and were taken in charge by the constabulary until they appeared in court, charged as suspected foreign criminals. They admitted they had escaped from the French penal colony and were committed to prison during the pleasure of the Governor of Trinidad.

Escape from the French penal colonies on islands off French Guiana is notoriously difficult, but because of the harsh treatment of prisoners innumerable attempts have been made. Few have succeeded.

Once or twice a year France deports her felons to this exile, which has often been referred to as "living death." The difficulties of escape are tremendous. The islands are miles from the mainland. There is no regular system of transportation. The prisoners are kept, for the most part, under rigid discipline, and opportunities to construct any craft that would carry human beings over the water to freedom are rare.

Many have escaped from the guards, but such escape is less than half the battle because of the hazards of crossing the water and those of fighting a way through tropical jungles back to civilization. The penal islands are known as the Iles du Salut. They are Devil's Island, Ile Royale and Ile St. Joseph.

Next to St. Helena, where Napoleon was exiled, Devil's Island is the most famous place of exile in the world. St. Joseph is reserved for incorrigibles, and its prisoners are kept in solitary confinement. Most of the prisoners who have made repeated attempts to escape from the penal colony are confined on Ile Royale, because heavy seas surrounding it virtually bar contact with the outside except in large vessels.

HARLEM GANGSTERS KILL TWO IN RAID

walls. The police said last night that despite the number of bullets, they believed the intruders had not used a small machine gun. They supposed that at least three pistols had been employed.

Shortly after the shooting a dense crowd collected in front of the building, which is less than half a mile from the famed "murder stable" of twenty years ago. When police reserves were trying to restore order, a small boy suddenly appeared with a black notebook he had picked up in the middle of the street. Although the police would not give out its contents, they said it contained about fifty names with large sums of money after each. There was a theory that it might have been taken from Morello, and then dropped by an assailant.

Detectives who arrived in scores under the command of Inspectors Vincent Sheeny and John Stapleton, expressed the opinion that the two men might have hoped to find "The Clutch" alone. Then, after slaying him, they were forced to shoot the others to prevent future identification. They said that in their estimation the affair was connected with the "building racket"—all of the men being contractors—but they gave no basis for the belief. They said, however, that since the Bronx started its clean-up, many of the racketeers had moved south.

Related to "Artichoke King."

Morello, who was married and had five children, lived at 1,115 Arcadian Way, Palisades, N. J. The police said he was a step-brother of the "artichoke king" who became well known in the Magistrate Vitale case. They said, also, that he is not the first of his immediate family to meet a sudden end.

Terranova at his home in Pelham Manor denied last night that Morrello was his step-brother or any relation of his. Terranova declared that he knew nothing about the shooting, except what he had read in the papers, and that he was "not interested in it." He said he had been "pestered to death" all night by telephone calls in connection with the affair, and that he wanted to be "left alone."

On the books of the headquarters record file Morello was first noted in 1894 when he was sentenced in Italy to six years, forty-five days solitary confinement and fined 5,000 lira for counterfeiting. Then, in April, 1903, he turned up in New York and was arrested and discharged in another counterfeiting case. In April, 1909, he was sentenced to Atlanta for a twenty-five-year period—also for counterfeiting. He was also fined $1,000 at that time.

Perrano, who had his ticket and passport to Italy in his pocket, had been arrested only once. That was in May, 1929, for petit larceny, and he was discharged. The police had not ascertained last night whether the third member of the party had been previously known to them. He was in Harlem Hospital in a critical condition.

Assistant District Attorney Edwin B. McGuire questioned five witnesses at the East 104th Street station last night. One was Mrs. Lima and the rest were employes of the realty company on the ground floor. He would not say what he had discovered.

Morello is a name familiar in the history and legends of the "Murder Stable"—the old headquarters for horse thieves that stood at 108th Street and Second Avenue. Twenty-three Italian gang killings took place there before 1917, and one of them was of a Nicholas Morello, who with two brothers grew wealthy through the "exclusive right to sell artichokes in the Italian neighborhood." Newspaper accounts gave the names of the other two as Vincent and Chiro.

Shot Down at Restaurant.

The other shooting took place in a hallway of 100 West 116th Street, a five-story building which houses, among other organizations, the Harlem Casino. Prince had opened the door to the restaurant on the second floor at the front when some one called that he was wanted on the telephone in the barber shop downstairs. He started out, and a man hidden in a washroom in the corridor shot him in the forehead.

Apparently no one saw either the murder or its perpetrator, nor could the police at once find a motive for the slaying. He was known as a man without steady position, as one who gambled a bit and who was occasionally arrested—although always discharged—for the possession of narcotics. But, according to his wife, Ida, with whom he lived at 601 West 163d Street, he had no enemies.

His record, however, started in 1918, when he received a short term for possessing burglars' tools. He was placed on probation in Philadelphia in 1919, as Joseph Klein, for safe burglary, and got a year and a month in Sing Sing for a loft burglary in 1920. He received a short term for assault in 1927 and was arrested twice for possessing opium. He was 35 years old.

GANG VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Man Found Slain Near Woodbury Was Wanted for Murders.

Special to The New York Times.

WOODBURY, N. J., Aug. 15.—The body of a man, apparently a gang-murder victim, found yesterday in a stretch of woods along the Clayton-Williamstown road, was identified here tonight as that of Anthony Tamburro, 26 years old, of Philadelphia, whom the police declared was wanted for a series of crimes ranging from minor hold-ups to murder.

The identification was made by his wife, Marguerite, his brother Joseph and his sister Millie. Mrs. Tamburro said her husband had left their home at 766 South Sixth Street, Philadelphia, three weeks ago, appearing downhearted and saying he was going to look for work. She denied all knowledge of his alleged gang connections, asserting that she thought he had been employed as timekeeper on a construction job.

Detectives investigating Tamburro's death declared he was wanted for a murder in Easton, Pa.; for the murder of Rocco Matteo, a Philadelphia and Camden gangster; in Camden this Summer, for the Bellmawr Country Club hold-up, in which one man was killed; for the Alpha (N. J.) bank robbery, for which three others now are serving twelve-year prison terms, and for numerous robberies in Camden.

Detective W. Clayton Apgar of Gloucester County asserted that Tamburro was the leader of the Alpha bank-robber gang. His theory was that the gangster had been "taken for a ride" for informing on underworld companions.

A post-mortem examination made by Dr. H. S. Clark, County Physician, showed that five bullets had been fired into the body at close range and the head had been beaten apparently with a blackjack. Physicians said the man had been dead since Saturday or Sunday.

POLICEMAN DROWNS WITH HANDCUFFS ON

Portland (Me.) Patrolman, Found on Sands of Cove Near Hobo Huts, Presents Mystery

NO EVIDENCE OF VIOLENCE

With Pistol Intact and Bruises Laid to Washing Ashore, Some Advance Theory of Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 15.—With wrists shackled in his own handcuffs, the body of Patrolman Michael T. Connelly, 49-year-old member of the Portland Police Department, was found this morning lying face down on the sands of a cove at the foot of a ledge bordering the Eastern Promenade Highway. Absence of evidence of violence created a mystery which his associates are as yet unable to solve.

His night stick and revolver were in place, his uniform showed no signs of a struggle, and the medical examiners, reporting an autopsy finding of death by drowning, said that a mark resembling a bullet hole in the forehead and bruises on the top of the head were probably due to the body being washed against the rocks by the tide.

While some officers are inclined to support the theory of suicide, others believe that Connelly might have been overpowered, manacled and hurled into the harbor waters from the Grand Trunk Railway docks not far from where the body was found, at 8:15 A. M., by a longshoreman looking for driftwood.

Connelly's watch stopped at 4:07. A check at headquarters disclosed that he rang in his last duty call at 2:10 A. M. Three subsequent scheduled calls were recorded to "cover him up" by the signal officer, who made this admission when told that the body had been found.

On Connelly's East End beat and near the beach where his body lay, are the remnants of an old squatter colony, which was wiped out by the police upon order of the City Council last Summer after Mrs. Evangeline Stilkey, an aged woman, was found strangled to death in one of the shacks. The mystery of her death was never solved.

Recently hoboes have been drifting back to the site of the colony, patching up huts and trying to re-establish a "jungle hang-out." It is held possible that Connelly got in the way of a yeggman or encountered either a liquor-running boat or shore confederates of smugglers, and that instead of putting up a fight with him, his assailants waylaid him.

County Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls, who is in charge of the investigation, said that little progress had been made, but insisted that nothing to substantiate the possibility of suicide had been advanced.

Connelly, appointed to the force in 1918, was considered one of the most efficient patrolmen. He was recently transferred in a shake-up of the department from the western promenade to the route taking in the water front along the eastern promenade. He left a wife and five children.

INCREASE IN WAR FUND TO BE ASKED IN FRANCE

Shorter Military Service Robs Nation of Sense of Security, Maginot Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Since the reduction of compulsory military service to one year, France can no longer feel secure from a sudden attack, the Minister of War, André Maginot, said today in an interview in which he announced that he would ask for an increase in the War Ministry's appropriation in the budget for next year.

Despite the desire of the government to hold down expenses, said M. Maginot, he believes a way will be found to allow for greater expenditures for defense, to give France that feeling of security which "cannot be given by the nation's desire for peace."

"As now organized it is only too certain our army would be insufficiently covered and only with the greatest difficulty could it prevent the incursion of enemy forces onto French territory," he said. "With sufficient credits at our disposal, I am convinced that we can equip our military organization as it now exists so that it would fill the needs. This must be done by amortization of our units, by wise repartition of our military forces and by effective organization of our frontier defenses so as to provide us the strong position necessary to hold an enemy at bay until mobilization would bring the full military resources to the aid of the first defenders."

BLAST RUINS HOME IN CORN SUGAR FEUD

Cleveland Man, Whose Two Brothers Were Killed Recently, Escapes With Family.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15 (AP).—The pretentious home of Raymond Porello, who has seen two of his brothers meet death in the strife over control of Cleveland's corn sugar trade, was demolished by a terrific explosion early today.

Police found Porello and his family at the home of his mother a short time later. Porello said that last week an attempt was made to kill one of his other four surviving brothers.

The explosion was caused by gas, Second Assistant Fire Chief James Nimmo said. He expressed the opinion some one might have opened the gas mains and left a candle burning in the attic.

Porello, the youngest of the seven brothers, told police he was certain the explosion was a plot to kill him, but declined to name his enemies.

The Porello home was shattered into ruins. Firemen estimated the loss at $25,000.

Passers-by told police they saw two men, who drove up in a large car shortly before the explosion, enter the house carrying a large package. Their automobile bore an out-of-State license.

Last month Joe Porello, reputed to have gained dominance in the corn sugar industry, and his bodyguard were slain as they stood in a speakeasy. Three weeks later Vincente James Porello met a similar fate.

'FAIRY TALE' HISTORY DENOUNCED IN FORUM

'FOREIGNERS' ALWAYS BASE

COOLIDGE EDITORIAL HIT

By LOUIS STARK.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 15.—A plea to abandon the "fairy tale" method of teaching history, which he criticized as nationalistic and bellicose, and to put in its place the concept that civilized life was a product of international intercourse, was made at the Institute of Politics today by C. Delisle Burns, Professor of Citizenship at the University of Glasgow, and former British Minister of Reconstruction, in a discussion of Western civilization.

As history is generally taught today, according to Professor Burns, children are impressed with the idea that the chief contact of their own country with "foreigners" has been conflict and that in such conflict their own nation has generally been victorious. Service to one's own country was thought of as fighting some other country. Monuments were raised every where to soldiers and not to poets.

It was interesting to note, said Professor Burns, how the history textbooks of different nations varied so widely in describing the same war. English textbooks, for example, did not go into much detail concerning Joan of Arc, who drove the English out of France, but devoted considerable space to Napoleon, who was wicked enough to wish to invade England.

Children were still being taught to be suspicious of the "wretched foreigner, who was always up to some game or other," he declared, adding, "You have got that bad in America."

Civilization Sprung From Many.

Professor Burns asserted that history was also being falsely taught from the assumption that civilization was a local product. All civilization, he pointed out, was the result of the intercourse of people internationally and despite the handicap of wars. Music, painting, medicine and banking were the products of international intercourse.

"All civilized peoples are in debt to Germany for music, to France for science, to Italy for painting and even to the Arabs for the numerals with which we calculate the cost of groceries," the speaker remarked.

"Now, if children thought of their own country as great not for wealth or power or for what it had done for them, but for what it had done for other peoples, then war and the preparation for war would seem less important than they do now. If children grew up with a sense of indebtedness to other countries than their own, 'village pumpism' would be less common."

The test of a civilization was not in the possession of instruments, but the use made of them, explained Dr. Burns, while the trains and automobiles of the present day were better that those formerly used, we have nothing to compare with the works of Shakespeare, Beethoven and Michelangelo.

He then discussed the influence of the "spiritual power" of the Western world upon politics and business. The "spiritual power" was represented by schools, universities, scientific and artistic societies. As to the effect of the "spiritual power" on modern life "we have platitudes and rhetoric but no effectual influence to defy the standards of wealth and power."

Declared Barbarism Survives.

"We buy pictures," he said. "We do not paint them. The function of the spiritual power is to dominate society. Our tragedy may possibly be that in thirty years, when most all of us are dead, we shall have left to our children the best guns that have been made together with the emotional ideas of our grandmothers."

"We have in Western civilization greatly extended education, but what are we producing by all this education? It is unnecessary to recite the failures and disappointments which are before our eyes. In all the civilized nations the old 'localism' and 'village patriotism' survive; the old admiration for wealth and power and for the crude personality of those whose chief ability is the ability to catch the limelight—this barbarism survives."

Professor Burns then enunciated the task at hand, which was, in his opinion, the establishment of a new conception of nationalism and a new conception of civilized life.

Yusuke Tsurumi, Japanese author and former member of the Japanese Diet, discussed whether the classical culture of Japan might survive the impact of Western industrial civilization.

Mr. Tsurumi associated the survival of Japanese cultural traits, such as love of harmony and reverence, with the survival of a strong and intelligent peasantry. He pointed out that industrialization was drawing the Japanese people from the farms to the cities, with an inevitable effect on the traditional family life.

Suggests Solution for Japan.

The test of Japanese statesmanship, in his opinion, was how it would preserve the rural districts against the onslaught of large industrial areas. One method which he thought possible was the gradual nationalization of the key industries through the introduction of a form of State socialism and the subsequent decentralization of these industries.

Such a course was possible, said Mr. Tsurumi, because in Japan the sense of private property was not as deep-rooted as it was in the West, as the people had a heritage of communal life and thought.

Dr. Paul Mantoux, director of the Institute of Higher International Studies at Geneva, spoke of French civilization as embodying the search for justice and the love of knowledge and the freedom of the individual. The mentality of the French artisan survives even in the era of mass production, he said.

Lord Meston of Agra and Dunottar, expert on Indian affairs, spoke briefly on the effects of British rule in India. The ancient Sanskrit literature, which laid the foundation for the disclosure to the Western world of the great Oriental literature, would have been lost to the world had it not been for the work of a British resident of India, according to Lord Meston.

As a result of whatever the British have done for good or for evil, India is now surging with an emotional movement that demands liberty, said Lord Meston. He regarded this as the greatest tribute to the way in which Great Britain has handled India.

Another tribute to England in her relation to India was the fact that for a long time the only large grievance in India was directed against the cotton duties, a grievance which he felt was thoroughly justified.

Coolidge Editorial Assailed.

At his round table on the economic situation of Western Europe Professor Edwin F. Gay of Harvard University discussed the prevailing arguments for the establishment of an American merchant marine and quoted from an editorial of former President Calvin Coolidge which said on July 28 that "we are dependent on our competitors to carry 60 per cent of our trade to market. Of course, the result is that they help themselves and they hamper us."

Professor Gay declared that he could not find "one iota of evidence" to support Mr. Coolidge's statement concerning discrimination. Foreign ship owners would not discriminate against American shipping and cut their own throats. He pointed to New York Harbor as a place where the shipping competition of the world was concentrated, and asserted that the British ship owners gave American shipping the lowest competitive cost, even lower than Americans would have to pay in their own ships. American capital was thus left free for other purposes.

A glance at shipping rates would prove that there was no discrimination. As an argument for a subsidy, it was "simply not true."

The only argument for a merchant marine that was tenable, said Dr. Gay, was that a large merchant marine might be necessary in case of war. He predicted that within the next thirty years this country will occupy a very important place in the shipping world. This may be a constant source of irritation and friction with England, and it will have to be allayed by some method of cooperation.

One point of friction, he indicated, would be whether the United States would have to duplicate every oil and coal station in the British possessions as the American merchant fleet expanded.

British Rule in India Defended.

Admiral Sir Herbert Richmond, K. C. B., replying to a question as to the alleged monopoly of marine insurance by British companies, denied that such a condition existed. He said that British companies even continued to insure French vessels during a war between England and France and when his country was seizing and destroying French shipping.

Dr. Gay concurred in the denial and said he could not imagine the British marine insurance companies turning down any business or favoring their own ships.

Lord Meston in a lecture tonight on India and nationalism emphasized that nationalism in India was in reality Hinduism, and then pointed out some of the aspects of difference between Hinduism and Western life, with special reference to the caste system and the Hindu family system.

Turning from the brief against the British control of India by the advocates of nationalism, which, he said, was made for outside consumption. Lord Meston remarked that the real appeal to young India itself was concerned with "the insurmountable aversion of an ancient theocracy for our modern ideals of liberty and equality."

In speaking of the immense amount of preventable sickness in India "which cries for alleviation," Lord Mestoh said that British efforts to improve these conditions demanded "a new conception of human rights, a new ideal of social service, the courage to reject any fatalistic acceptance of avoidable evils—an angle of vision, in short, at which Hinduism has never yet placed its followers."

Tenement Fire Routs 24 Families.

Twenty-four families were routed from a six-story tenement house at 34 Greenwich Street, yesterday morning, when a fire in the basement threatened to envelop the upper floors. A second alarm was sent in as the blaze began to spread. About twenty persons reached the street by fire escapes. An unused still was extracted from the charred wood in the cellar, but it was denied that the apparatus had anything to do with the fire. The damage was estimated at $2,000.

ten newspaper correspondents aboard, six of whom are Canadian and four British. For six hours yesterday the airship was not in touch with headquarters because of the press traffic which was being sent through the Portishead radio station, and then came another press period of four hours.

This accounted for the long lapses between the official Air Ministry reports yesterday, when rumors were current that the airship was having trouble. Another brief delay in official messages was due to atmospheric conditions over the Atlantic.

The only difficulty the R-100 had yesterday was in encountering an unexpected atmospheric depression when 450 miles off the Irish coast. Thhe reason for changing to a more southerly course was largely to escape the unfavorable weather area as soon as possible. This atmospheric depression was confirmed by messages sent to England from the steamship Ansonia, which established contact with the R-100.

People all over the British Isles have followed their airship's progress with the keenest interest by means of the broadcasting of all official reports as soon as they are received. Early yesterday it seemed likely that the R-100 might reach Cardington around midnight or not long afterward, but the rain and bad weather encountered cut down her speed considerably. At one time today the airship reported a wind of forty-three miles an hour on her beam.

Just before midnight a special broadcast was arranged from the mooring tower for the description of advance preparations for the airship's arrival. The latest bulletins from the R-100 were read with comment on the progress of the Atlantic journey.

We are due at Cardington at 11 A. M. Greenwich Time (7 A. M. New York Time). But we may cruise over London to extend Canadian greetings.

The suggestion has been made that the R-100 cross again to bring Premier Bennett and the Canadian Ministers to the Imperial Conference.

We passed the Canadian Pacific steamer Beaverbrae at 20:30 Greenwich Time (4:30 P. M. New York Time), the first ship sighted in twenty-seven hours. The wonderful crossing has been enjoyed by all the newspaper correspondents. They have had good exercise on the gasoline pumps.

Storm Damages Ship's Stove.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE R-100 [Noon], Aug. 15.—At 2 P. M., ship's time, we were 800 land miles from Fasnet Rock and 1,200 miles from our hangar at Cardington. Hastening at a ground speed of seventy miles an hour, we are now going to the south of Ireland with the promise of favorable winds. We expect to arrive at Cardington tomorrow at 9 A. M., Greenwich Time (4 A. M., New York Time).

For a time we were slowed down by a northeast storm because meteorological data were received too late to avoid it.

The heavy rain short-circuited the electric stove in the kitchen and only cold meals will be had till it is dry. Sardines replaced fried and boiled eggs, and grilled bacon was replaced by cold meats. All are shaving in cold water instead of hot.

Four of the six engines are now operating.

The Cunarder Ausonia, which is just ahead, reports that the fog extends from Belle Isle. She sailed five and a half days before the airship. The seas below are very rough but the dirigible is steady.

Head Winds Reduce Speed.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE R-100, Aug. 15 [Midnight New York Time].—We have encountered unexpected head winds, reducing our speed to thirty-five miles over the sea. The airship's officers expect she will cross Longitude 35 by 6 A. M.

A heavy rain is descending but it is welcomed because it obviates valving gas to maintain the normal altitude of 1,700 feet. The temperature is 45 degrees Fahrenheit.

The R-100 cannot fly over the Irish Free State without permission because it is regarded as foreign territory so a route over North Ireland is probable.

Every one on board is convinced an airship is best for ocean travel. The delicate flower vases have not moved on the tables. A normal sea life is being enjoyed by the passengers, including an afternoon nap.

Enjoy Tropical Sunset.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE R-100, Aug. 14 [9:30 P. M. New York Time].—A smoking room atmosphere prevails among the passengers. Every one has forgotten that the airship is traveling 1,700 feet aloft at express speed. We talk of politics and airships and send thanks for radio greetings.

There was a marvelous tropical sunset.

Jacques Cartier has sent a wireless order for the purchase of stock to his broker in Montreal.

We are runing into rain which is being collected for ballast.

Wide Range of Speeds.

ON BOARD THE R-100, Aug. 15 (AP).—Widely contrasting speeds, ranging from 15 miles an hour to 100, were shown by the R-100 today as it first bucked squalls and bad weather and later sped into ideal conditions, with a pleasant wind behind.

The ship was tortured by heavy rains and wind last night, the gale reaching a speed of forty-five miles an hour and cutting the ground speed of the airship to fifteen miles an hour.

The rain indirectly was responsible for a mishap which spoiled the hope of hot beverages for breakfast by putting the electric cook stove out of commission. About three and a half tons of rain which had collected in reservoirs fo rthe refilling of ballast tanks poured into the kitchen through a valve vent and caused a short circuit in the stove.

Some of the swirling water also came through the gangway, but it did not bother the passengers. They slept peacefully through the terrific storm and their first intimation that anything had happened came this morning at breakfast when they were informed there would be no hot drinks because of the disabled stove.

A heavy fog lasted until noon, but then it cleared, and, with a favorable wind, the gigantic airship roared toward the Irish coast and Cardington at a speed of 100 miles an hour.

The passengers did not mind going without hot coffee or tea for breakfast, but they all are craving a smoke.

Despite the high speed reached after the fog had cleared, it is now considered doubtful that the R-100 will establish a record crossing. The storm is to blame for that.

Thursday evening's sunset was accompanied by dark clouds which shortly after filled the sky. The temperature dropped and there was every indication of the setting in of a furious atmospheric disturbance.

The dirigible descended almost precipitately 1,000 feet, and just in time managed to clear the storm zone. The heavy rain followed. The passengers were loud in praise of the officers' skill in navigating the ship.

Newspaper representatives aboard the dirigible, seeking to be helpful, got in trouble with the ship's officers. They volunteered to pump petrol to the engines. In some fashion a dump valve had been left open and an irate officer demanded to know what they meant by pumping petrol into the sea. Luckily the mistake was quickly discovered and only a few gallons of the precious fuel was lost.

Airship Off Fastnet Light.

LONDON, Saturday, Aug. 16 (AP).—The Air Ministry announced early this morning that it expected the British dirigible R-100 to moor at Cardington between 8 and 8:30 A. M., British Summer time, today (3 and 3:30 A. M. New York time).

The Ministry at the same time made public a message sent by the R-100 at 10:30 o'clock last night, Greenwich time (6:30 P. M. New York time), giving the position of the airship at that time as 52:05 degrees N. Lat. and 16:30 W. Long., or about 450 miles west of Fastnet Rock on the southwestern tip of Ireland.

The airship said she was making good time through dull weather, with some rain and overcast skies.

"Our course has now been set for Fastnet Light, which, with luck, we hope to strike by 2:30 A. M., Greenwich time," the message continued.

"We are over a low bank of clouds, however, and it seems too much to hope that it will clear up by then.

"Notwithstanding the strong wind encountered earlier in the day, good progress is being made and the ship has behaved splendidly. All on board are in very good spirits and spend their time at cards and in reading.

"The general feeling is that it is good to be home again."

The message said that the ship was then making sixty-five knots.

The Associated Press today received the following message from the steamship Cameronia:

"Friday, 3:11 P. M., G. M. T. (11:11 A. M., New York Time). In communication by radio with the R-100, apparently seventy miles south-southwest of our position, 53.58 north, 27.07 west. Weather overcast, south-southwest wind.

SWISS FINDS BACKERS FOR EVEREST FLIGHT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug 15.—Walter Mittelholzer, a well-known Swiss pilot and director of the Swiss airline to Austria, who was the first to fly across the crater of Kilimanjaro, in Tanganyika, has told your correspondent that his plans to fly over the world's highest peak, Mount Everest, are complete, but that his actual start, which otherwise could take place in the coming Spring, depended on whether the special motor required for such an enterprise could be constructed by then.

M. Mittelholzer, who won note for his gallant attempt to rescue Roald Amundsen in the north polar region, insists that such an enterprise should not be called a sporting affair, but that it has an economic background, especially in regard to the establishment of regular airplane service across the Alps.

"It is all a question of technique, and the principal idea is to construct an air-cooled motor with compression which will not lose 50 or more per cent of its performance capacity when entering the higher regions above 15,000 feet—a disadvantage from which most present motors suffer. What is needed is a three-motored plane of the Junkers or Fokker type with special motors able to carry four persons with a fuel reserve for eight hours and an additional useful load. Such motors already are being built in England and France, and probably also in the United States.

"My starting base would be Kashmer, which is 4,500 feet high and about two hundred miles from the peak of Mount Everest. Then, flying in a nearly straight line, I will have reached a sufficient height when nearing the peak without wasting any fuel in mounting. Such a trip, however, would not only be valuable from an economic but also from a scientific point of view, because, before crossing the peak, I will make several cruising flights for cartographic purposes."

M. Mittelholzer said that the whole plan already has been financed through Swiss friends.

FABRIC TORN, R-100 MOVES CAUTIOUSLY

SILENCE CAUSES ALARM

Craft Runs Into Storm Just When Shifting Radio Contact From Canadian to British Station.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Captain Booth's cautious navigation, especially during the later stages of the trip, is taken here as a clear indication that the R-100 has been steered deliberately into favorable winds less to gain speed than to save strain on the envelope fabric, which had again developed a defect.

It was reported from the airship that one man clambered up a slender guy rope to patch a small hole in the fabric, and doubtless Captain Booth is not taking any unnecessary risks by driving his craft at full speed. Provided he can maintain a cruising speed of about fifty or sixty miles an hour by using three or four engines, according to the state of the wind, Captain Booth apparently is quite satisfied.

Disabled Motor Not Missed.

Thus far the fact that one engine out of six is disabled has made no difference in this trip. The R-100 came gayly down the St. Lawrence on three engines at nearly seventy miles an hour with a following wind of fifteen miles an hour on her starboard beam. As she came out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence the wind, dropping to ten miles an hour, had backed and was nearly behind her. Yet her speed was only fifty-seven miles an hour, which indicated that fabric trouble had manifested itself and dictated caution as regards the utilization of engine power.

Afterward, in steady conditions, she picked up speed to sixty-one miles an hour until she met a slight adverse wind which took nearly twenty miles an hour off her speed. By that time she was in a small depression in which she met six hours' rain. Gradually she edged her way southward to take advantage of the westerly winds usually to be found on the southern rim of these Atlantic depressions, or patches of bad weather with low barometric pressure. Experts tracing her course soon saw her derive benefit from them.

Brisk Following Wind.

A following wind of thirty-three miles an hour was reported by the airship at 1 P. M. British Summer Time [8 A. M. New York Daylight Saving Time], though the weather was still overcast and the thermometer had risen from about 53 degrees to 63 degrees. For some time the temperature had been down as low as 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Her ground speed, however, was no more than fifty miles an hour.

From charts here it is seen that the R-100 came out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence somewhat south of the Great Circle course, her nearest way home. Later she swung still further south of that course to skirt the edge of a depression, and at the point where she reported six hours of rain she had come 250 miles south of the Great Circle course. Then apparently she found her way into more favorable conditions and steered northeastward until only 150 miles south of the Great Circle course with a following wind and a prospect of fine weather ahead.

A message from the R-100 received at 9 P. M., British Summer Time [4 P. M., New York Daylight Saving Time] said she expected to sight first land at Galway Bay, Ireland, about 4 A. M., British Summer Time on Saturday [11 P. M. Friday, New York Daylight Saving Time].

The weather generally was unsettled over the Atlantic, according to the latest Air Ministry report tonight. Winds are from a westerly point at the south latitude of 50 degrees, but more variable further north.

A glorious sunset with the sun disappearing in purple and gold behind the flat top of an iceberg and a visit to one of the engine cars are the outstanding impressions of one of the passengers today as reported in a radiogram to The London Times. The airship was then using only three engines, changing over periodically.

"Under the guidance of the chief engineer, I climbed through the darkness down into the after engine car," says the radiogram. "We were almost stunned by the noise of the engines of 1,400 horsepower, which were roaring away unmuffled. Through the darkness we could see blue flashes of exhaust gases from the starboard motors ahead. The aft engines were running 800 revolutions a minute, but, in obedience to a signal from the control car, the throttle was opened and the blue exhaust flame turned rose-colored and the engines accelerated to 1,600 revolutions.

"Two engineers and myself crammed into the tiny space had a sensation of being imprisoned under the engine hood of a 24-cylinder automobile suspended 2,000 feet over the mid-Atlantic."

For several hours in the afternoon the Air Ministry was unable to get a reply to its messages to the R-100, and there was no little anxiety. Radio transmission across the Atlantic was difficult at the time and it is assumed the airship had withdrawn her aerial on encountering an electrical storm. All this time the airship, it is now apparent, was bumping her way through rain clouds and adverse winds. This was just at the time the airship had ceased to send her messages to London via Canada and had not yet established direct contact with British stations.

There were many reports of "tremendous battles with the elements," mysterious depressions and "fights with head winds with disabled engines." But no official confirmation of these reports has yet been forthcoming.

Drastic Alterations Likely.

The mishap to R-100's outer covering again on her homeward voyage has convinced the authorities that drastic alterations must be made, and more than likely the old fabric which has now done service for nearly two years will be stripped off the framework and the ship will be provided with a completely new skin. This may be of heavier texture, because the ship, during her Canadian voyage, has shown that she has ample lifting power for her size, and some saving in weight may still be effected, particularly in the water ballast tanks. These, it was proved during the voyage, could be replenished by using rain water collected on the upper portion of the hull and directed through sluices to the ballast tanks.

It was evidently the faulty hull covering which allowed rain water to leak through during the night and cause a short-circuit of the electric cooker in the kitchen. The danger of this can be estimated by any person with a knowledge of domestic electric lighting. The fuses provided for such emergency may blow out and turn off the current, but there is a palpable risk of the rain-soaked wiring itself catching fire. In a structure containing millions of cubic feet of inflammable hydrogen gas such a happening over the Atlantic is not pleasant to contemplate.

Ship Travels "Crabwise."

Another feature of airship travel which appears to have impressed the passengers is the manner in which the ship travels "crabwise." Not only does she run long periods with her nose cocked up at varying angles to maintain her height, like an airplane, by the assistance of her engines without sacrificing ballast, but she also seems to lean up against the wind when it is not directly ahead or behind. This is to counteract the effects of drift.

At one time in a strong cross-breeze today the R-100, so one passenger observed, was moving along her course at an angle of 45 degrees. There was no tilt, of course, in the saloon to indicate this, but by watching the waters beneath one gained an impression of a skidding automobile traveling smoothly along a road almost broadside on.

The airship appeared quite indifferent to the winds buffeting the waves beneath, and the smoothness of the vessel's motion, even in rainstorms, is a source of never-ending wonder to the travelers. As soon as the wind veered around behind the ship's tail, however, her sailing was straight on and her ground speed at once mounted to 100 miles an hour.

FALSE RUMORS AFLOAT.

Many People in Montreal "Hear" R-100 Is Crippled.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Since the departure of the R-100 for Cardington, the "cranks" who spread false rumors have been particularly busy. Local newspapers were deluged yesterday with telephone calls from people who had "heard" that the big airship was limping back to St. Hubert with engine trouble.

Today the story got bigger and better. A great many people called up and asserted that they had "heard over the radio" or that some one told them that it had been announced over the radio that the R-100 had blown up midway on her trip over the ocean and gone down with all passengers and members of the crew.

NEW YORK PROFESSOR DESCRIBES AIR CRASH

Dr. George V. Edwards Tells How Fog Forced Pilot to Seek a Landing in Germany.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WEILER, Germany, Aug. 15.—Dr. George V. Edwards, Professor of Latin in the Brooklyn branch of the College of the City of New York, who was involved in an airplane accident here last night in which he broke his right leg, injured his right ankle, sprained his left knee and suffered head contusions, gave to your correspondent today the following description of the accident:

"The flight from Bolzano to Innsbruck on Thursday morning was beautiful. The mountain caps were covered with fresh snow, and as the weather was fair we booked seats for Zurich.

"In the afternoon the weather became bad, but all went well after the departure, although in my opinion we flew very quickly. Later we encountered dense fog and the pilot climbed over the mountains in the direction of the Zugspitze.

"As the weather failed to improve we went far into Bavaria and were finally compelled to turn back.

"The clouds then became so thick that we were scarcely able to see the mountains. We headed for Lake Constance, but the pilot lost direction in the fog and descended to seek a landing place. Three times we nearly effected a landing. The last time the pilot suddenly had to swerve as the mountain loomed above the tree tops. The right wing of the plane then struck the mountainside and the plane capsized and crashed.

"Help soon came from the near-by hospital to which I and the other passenger were swiftly carried."

Dr. Edwards has cabled to relatives and friends in New York assuring them his condition was satisfactory and that there was no reason to worry, his only concern being that he had missed the boat at Cherbourg.

The doctors hope Dr. Edwards will be able to leave his bed within a week.

AIRCRAFT 'DESTROY' BRITISH FACTORIES

MANY MACHINES ARE LOST

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The destructive nature of modern air warfare was vividly illustrated in the British manoeuvres which ended this morning in the reduction of "Redland," or northern manufacturing England, to a state of chaos, but with enormous losses to "Blueland's" attacking air fleet in the south. Both sides, it is officially stated, decided to call a truce and "accept the mediation of the League of Nations."

In three full days of fighting three of Redland's important industrial towns and one great seaport were rendered untenable, and much damage was done to others, while on the Blueland side 150 airplanes had been lost in the process.

The commander of Redland's air force was ordered to defend the mines and the factories and to preserve a way out of the country for minerals and inward for supplies. He found this task impossible because of the speed and elusiveness of the attacking bombers, and decided to meet offensive with offensive. Inhabitants of his country in a few hours were subjected to forty-six terrific attacks of high explosives and gas shells.

Blueland's commander chose a new and daring form of attack. He made his swift-flying bombing planes keep low, skimming tree tops and factory roofs. They provided such fast-moving targets that shell-fire was impossible and machine-gunning extremely difficult.

Some of the raiders dived at 250 miles an hour as they passed the ground machine gunners. Observers say these low-flying raids were comparatively inexpensive to the raiders and highly destructive to the ground stations.

Raids by Redland's fighting airplanes on Blueland's airdromes were equally destructive. These were timed to reach their objectives as the ground staffs were preparing their machines for raids. Of the 150 machines which Blueland lost, it is estimated that 100 were destroyed on the ground.

The outstanding impression of observers is that an enemy working at a reasonably short range cannot be kept out of neighboring territory and cannot with certainty be prevented, when once in the air, from doing serious damage.

ROUTE STUDY FILLS DAY FOR KINGSFORD-SMITH

He Will Not Seek a Record in Flight to Australia—Expects to Reach Home About Oct. 1.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VEERE, The Netherlands, Aug. 15.—Major Charles Kingsford-Smith spent today studying charts and rerouting his Australian flight in the hope of saving a day and possibly two days.

"I have no intention of seeking to break the record from England to Australia," he said, "but I am anxious for a quick arrival."

He believes the trip will take thirteen days if he is not delayed, bringing him home for his marriage to Miss Mary Powell of Melbourne about Oct. 1.

Major Kingsford-Smith holds the present record, made in the Southern Cross, of twelve days and twenty hours from Australia to England.

His intended route is via Rome, Athens, Aleppo, Bushire, Karachi, Allahabad, Calcutta, Rangoon, Singapore, Soerabaja, Koepang and Port Darwin. He could shorten his time from Allahabad by going by way of Aleyb, Singora, Palembang and Bima. He may arrange for supplies at those points.

The flier will use his single-seater Avro Avran biplane with a Gypsy motor and special streamlines which has a flying radius of 1,600 miles and a speed of ninety miles an hour.

INDIAN TROOPS MASS IN PESHAWAR AREA

AFRIDIS ARE MOBILIZING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SIMLA, India, Aug. 15.—Martial law was declared today throughout the Peshawar district of the Northwest Frontier Province. This is regarded as an indication of the increasing seriousness of the tribal situation. Officially it is stated that the action was taken as the result of an appeal by the local authorities in charge of the frontier stations, who declare that under the existing regulations they were unable to deal effectively with the Afridi menace.

In a statement giving the reasons for the new move the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, says that "with the assistance of ill-disposed villagers" the Afridi tribesmen, although suffering considerable casualties, have generally been able to evade any decisive contact with the troops operating to evict them.

Large British troop movements are being carried out, it is announced, as a precautionary measure. The situation is officially described here as one of "considerable gravity and danger." Troops are being dispatched to Nowshera, Kohat, Rawal Pindi and Risalpur.

Afridis Said to Number 1,200.

The tribesmen's strength in the neighborhood of Peshawar is officially estimated at 1,200. They are moving about rapidly in bands of 50 to 200 among the ravines and walled villages. The Afridis in the district of Tirah, it is stated, are doing everything possible to enlist the cooperation of the Mohmands to the north and of other Afridis to the south. Two sections of Orakzai tribesmen already are known to have raised a force with the intention of attacking Kohat.

The need for reinforcements and for the imposition of martial law, it is stated here, became evident when it was discovered that the Afridis were armed and equipped on a scale hitherto unsuspected.

A Jahnsi brigade which is en route to Rawal Pindi is headed by the Seaforth Highlanders, the old "Rosshire Buffs," who are dreaded by the Afridis more than any other British regiment on account of the punishment they inflicted, on the Northwest frontier tribesmen more than thirty years ago, which is still remembered.

The European population of Peshawar now numbers about 1,500.

A Bombay dispatch to the London Daily Express reveals that a great jirgah [tribal meeting] will be held in Bara Valley near Peshawar tomorrow, at which the Afridi and Orakzai clans will decide whether to launch another attack on Peshawar.

"A decision for peace is unlikely," says this correspondent, "as, in their present mood, the young bloods will not submit to any penalties the government may impose for the recent uprising."

Commissioner Given Freer Hand.

The special purpose of the declaration of martial law is to provide the Chief Commissioner, as the head of the civil administration of the Northwest Frontier Province, with extraordinarily wide powers to enable him to take the most thorough measures in conjunction with the military to clear up the disorder in the areas under his administration.

The first part of the martial law ordinance, for instance, which provides for the continued exercise of jurisdiction by the ordinary civil courts, contains the following provision:

"Any person who voluntarily assists or relieves with money, victuals or ammunition, or knowingly harbors, protects or conceals an enemy, shall be punishable with rigorous imprisonment which may be extended to ten years, or a fine, or both."

It is explained that the term "enemy" includes any mutineers, rebels or rioters against whom operations are being pursued by His Majesty's forces or the police for the purpose of restoring or maintaining order.

Part two of the ordinance provides for the establishment of special military and civil courts and the appointment of magistrates in case of further emergency.

Four Battalions Moved Up.

SIMLA, Aug. 15 (AP).—How dangerous the border status was could only be told by military and political authorities on the spot. The average layman, however, felt today that he had only too clear a view of the situation in the news that one British and three Indian battalions were moved up from Jhansi to Rawal Pindi and that a full infantry brigade was being sent to Nowshera, twenty-five miles east of Peshawar, with a considerable force of other units going to Kohat. Brig. Gen. Robertson is in command.

Among the troops sent into the zone of action were the Second Seaforth Highlanders, the Third Battalion of the Eighth Punjab Regiment, the Second Battalion of the Jat Regiment and the Third Battalion of the Eleventh Sikh Regiment. The new troops at Nowshera numbered more than 2,000.

Gandhi States Stand in Letter.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, Aug. 15.—After three hours' parley with Mahatma Gandhi and his fellow Congress leaders imprisoned in Yerovda jail at Poona, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, the unofficial peace envoys, announced tonight that Mr. Gandhi had committed a number of points to writing, and that his letter will be submitted to the Viceroy. Their announcement reads:

"During our present visit to Poona we thrice visited Yerovda jail. The Congress leaders have addressed a letter explaining their position and their points. We are submitting this letter to the Viceroy, Lord Irwin, for his consideration and hope to interview the Viceroy later."

Sir Tej and Mr. Jayakar were to leave Poona tonight.

The Bombay Congress "war council's" resolution deprecating the peace negotiations has evoked divergent opinions. Some members of the Congress regard it as a move to prompt Mr. Gandhi and his colleagues to pitch their demands as high as possible, fearing that, without such a move, Mr. Gandhi might be prevailed upon to accept what he held to be their minimum demands. The Congress die-hards support the resolution.

Three Congress volunteers today were sentenced to five months' rigorous imprisonment on charges of picketing. The prosecution showed that they were arrested yesterday in the act of stopping a vehicle carrying foreign cloth and blankets. It was stated they claimed the right to inspect the goods and took one blanket into an adjoining building for inspection, refusing to allow the vehicle to proceed until the police arrived and arrested them. The magistrate said this was the first case of its kind and that it called for a severe sentence.

Breach Widens Between Turkey and Persia; Angora Recalls Envoy in Dispute Over Kurds

By The Associated Press.

TEHERAN, Persia, Aug. 15 (AP).—Memdou Chavket Bey, the Turkish Ambassador to Persia, has been recalled to Turkey.

ANGORA, Turkey, Aug. 15 (AP).—Negotiations designed to bring about cooperation between Turkey and Persia in repressing rebellious Kurdish tribesmen on the Persian-Turkish frontier have been in progress at Angora and Teheran.

Thus far the Persian Government has declined to permit the passage of Turkish troops across the border into Persia or to cooperate in the use of troops against the tribesmen.

The rebellious Kurds, who have taken refuge in inaccessible parts of Mount Ararat, are still encircled by Turkish troops and have made several attempts to escape through the Turkish lines but without success. Several attacks by the beleaguered Kurds were driven back.

Partisans of the tribesmen also tried to pierce the Turkish lines to bring aid to the besieged forces, but were driven off by the troops.

For some time past the relations between Turkey and Persia have been disturbed by the Turkish campaign against the Kurds. There were some reports that Turkish troops in pursuit of the rebellious tribesmen had crossed the frontier into Persia.

Recent reports from Turkey indicated that there were at least 70,000 Turkish soldiers along the Turko-Persian and Turko-Iraq frontiers.

SIMON TO SPEAK ON INDIA.

Head of the British Commission to Talk by Radio From Toronto.

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—Sir John Simon, head of the Simon commission, which produced the last official report on the situation in India, will discuss the Indian problem over the air from Toronto next Monday night. Listeners-in throughout Canada will be tuned in on Monday, Aug. 18, between 10 and 11 P. M. (Eastern Daylight Saving Time), for the broadcast, which will be made from the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Sir John, who is a delegate to the Canadian Bar Association's convention at Toronto today and Saturday and to the American Bar Association's meeting in Chicago from Aug. 20 to 22, has expressed satisfaction over the opportunity thus afforded him to tell his version of India's troubles.

"Your own Governor General, Lord Willingdon, is, however, one of the very limited number of people specially fitted to understand India's problems," said Sir John in a brief interview upon arriving the other day aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Athol. "He has been Governor of two Indian States, Madras and Bombay, and is therefore particularly well fitted to appreciate conditions as they are today."

SOVIET GROUP FINDS NEW ISLAND IN ARCTIC

Prof. D. U. Wiese Had Guessed Existence of Land in 1924, but Was Unable to Confirm View.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—A large island has been discovered in the Arctic region by the Soviet scientific expedition aboard the ice-breaker Sedof, according to reports received here. The discovery was made after the steamer had left Novaya Zemlya.

A cape of the new island lies at at Lat. 79 degrees 25 minutes N. and Long. 76 degrees 10 minutes E. The most interesting part of the discovery is that Professor D. U. Wiese, who is a member of the expedition, in 1924 guessed the existence of the island, but was unable to approach it and confirm his assumption.

The Soviet expedition aboard the Sedof left Archangel last month for Fridtjof Nansen Land, where they disembarked radio operators and technicians to relieve the former staff at the world's most northerly radio station, and then proceeded to the polar regions. They planned to place a group of colonists on North Land, formerly Nicholas II Land.

CUSTOM OFFICE BURNS.

Suspicion Aroused in Bucharest When Records Disappear.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 15.—Enormous damage was done by a fire in the Bucharest main custom office which broke out after the initiation of disciplinary proceedings against one of the chief customs officials.

Fighting the fire proved extremely difficult. As no hydrants were near the most important buildings, the water had to be brought in motor trucks. Most of the sheds, some of them containing motor tires and petrol, burned to the ground.

Witnesses in the inquiry, which had already opened, agree that the fire broke out simultaneously in different buildings. Suspicion thus awakened that the buildings were deliberately set alight was supported by the fact that the registers of payments received at the bureau had disappeared from the place where they were usually kept when the fire-fighters entered that room before the fire had spread to it.

GERMAN DISABLED 800,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—More than 800,000 German war injured are still on the books as eligible for governmental relief. The number wholly or partly incapacitated, whose inability to earn a living is demonstrably due to wounds of the after effects of war has been steadily rising until now it is 839,396, representing an increase of 118,465 since 1924 and 31,800 since a year ago.

It is believed no decrease in the number is likely to come before 1932 at the earliest. Nevertheless the government, in its recent emergency finance measures promulgated after the Reichstag dissolved, considerably limited the terms under which war cripples may apply for aid in the future.

BRITISH PEER IMPROVES.

Lord Birkenhead Gains Strength After Blood Transfusion.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP).—A bulletin issued this afternoon said that a blood transfusion resorted to for the Earl of Birkenhead, who is seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia, has had a beneficial effect.

As a result of the transfusion, the bulletin said, there was a slight increase in the patient's general strength. The statement added that Lord Birkenhead's chest condition remained satisfactory.

BENNETT GIVES PLEDGE OF WORTHY JUDICIARY

Premier Tells Canadian Bar Convention Qualification Alone Will Determine Selections.

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—(Canadian Press).—Sounding a high note of the importance of a reliant judiciary in Canada, Premier R. B. Bennett, president of the Canadian Bar Association, delivered his presidential address at the fifteenth annual meeting here today. As a member of the bar and as a Member of Parliament, the Prime Minister stated that so long as he had the power of influence, the appointment of judges in Canada would be made with regard only to their real qualifications "for the exalted position they must occupy," in the proper administration of the laws of the country.

"A reliant bar," Premier Bennett declared, "means a reliant bench. In practice it is possible to have a strong bar and a weak bench, but neither in practice nor in theory is it possible to have a strong bench unless the bar is strong too. Given the strength of the latter, it is our solemn duty to maintain commensurate excellence in our judiciary.

"By tradition we Canadians have a right to it; through necessity, we demand it; and the fine truth is, that our need and the consciousness of that need have given us courts which stand as bulwarks of probity and fair dealing to guard the happiness and prosperity of this land.

"It would be untimely and unfair if I were to qualify the generality of this statement by suggesting that members of the bar have secured elevation to this higher sphere of service through reasons other than their own true worth.

"If this is so, we can but regret it, and accept the fact as a warning of the need for greater vigilance in the future. And I, speaking as a member of the bar and as a member of the Parliament of this country, condemn any departure from the only just rule of selection, and state unequivocally that so long as I have power to influence it, the appointment of our judges will be made with regard only to their real qualifications for the exalted position they must occupy in the proper administration of our laws and upon which, in my humble opinion, in no small degree depends the maintenance of our Canadian civilization."

Lords of Appeal and judges of the High Court of England, judges and lawyers from France and the United States, with the legal profession of England, Ireland and Scotland present, augmented the attendance of more than 800 members of the Canadian judiciary and legal profession.

CHIANG RECAPTURES TSINAN FROM NORTH

turbed by the expected Communist demonstrations, but the streets of the native section were cleared of all traffic at 9 o'clock tonight and martial law will continue until dawn.

The Nanking Government has lifted the ban on Harold Lloyd films with the exception of "Welcome Danger," which remains proscribed for allegedly insulting the Chinese nation.

Claims Gains in Honan.

NANKING, Aug. 15 (AP).—Government troops today sharply defeated Northern troops in Honan Province, said a telegram from President Chiang Kai-shek, in the field at Liuho, Honan Province.

The Nationalists, he said, counterattacked heavily along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway in Honan, and the rebel defeat caused him to believe "the Nationalists would soon be able to drive the rebels from Honan and capture Kaifeng and Chengchow."

Additional military advices from Shantung said Nanking forces along the Tsingtao-Tsinan Railway had scored important gains. They were said to have advanced within forty miles of Tsinan and forced the rebels to retreat northwestward, many crossing the Yellow River.

Only the vanguard of Nationalist forces entered the southern environs of Tsinan, said the dispatches, "while the rebels were streaming northward across the Yellow River."

Carl D. Meinhardt, American Consul at Tsinan, reported to the State Department that the Nanking Government aircraft which flew over the city and dropped a few bombs and fired machine guns yesterday had caused several casualties, nearly all of whom were civilians.

It is estimated that about 2,500 foreigners are living in Tsinan.

The American Legation at Peking, upon receiving report of the bombing, made representations to the Chinese Ministry for Foreign Affairs at Nanking requesting anew that care be exercised to prevent injury to American life and property in Tsinan.

MISSIONARIES REACH SAFETY.

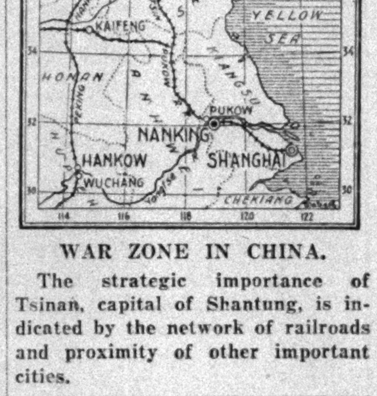
CANTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—Four Catholic priests and eight nuns, forced to flee Kanchow, Kiangsi Province, when Communist depredations made it unsafe to remain there, arrived here today after an eleven-day journey through a country infested with brigands and Reds.

The party included Father MacGillicudy of Glens Falls, N. Y.; Father McClimont of Brooklyn, Father Corbett of Boston, the French Bishop Dumond and eight American sisters, the majority of whom are from Emmitsburg, Md.



WAR ZONE IN CHINA.

The strategic importance of Tsinan, capital of Shantung, is indicated by the network of railroads and proximity of other important cities.

Members of the group said it became necessary to evacuate Kanchow as a result of the Nanking Government's persistent efforts to withdraw the meager defense forces there and move them further northward to assist in the defense of Nanchang against the Reds besieging that city and surrounding territory.

They asserted that efforts of foreigners to ask the American Consul at Hankow that demands be made upon the Nanking Government for retention of the troops in the city where they were stationed were nullified. The Chinese military refused to allow foreigners the use of wireless equipment, this action causing them to decide to withdraw.

The missionaries said it was believed many Reds were in the city, all fully armed, awaiting an opportunity to join the attackers. On Aug. 4 merchants sounded alarms indicating the Reds were preparing to renew their efforts to capture the city. The missionaries, therefore, decided to leave at once, and did not learn the outcome of the expected Red attack.

A number of Protestant missionaries were urged to accompany the Catholic group to Canton but the Catholic fathers said they refused.

Bishop O'Shea of Deep River, Conn.; a French priest, two German Lutherans and five English Protestant missionaries remained in Kanchow despite the danger of the city's capture, they said.

Father Cahill of Philadelphia, Father Stabil of Syracuse, N. Y.; Father Erbe of Erie, N. Y., and Father Curtis of Baltimore were staying at Taiwoli, a small town southwest of Kanchow, while Father Young of Smithtown, L. I., and Father McLaughlin of Brooklyn were staying at Nanan, Kiangsi. Father Moeringer, also of Brooklyn, was at Lungnan. Both are in the country overrun by Reds.

The refugees here said the entire country surrounding Kanchow had been under Red rule for many months.

The missionaries also said on Aug. 1 the Reds attacked Kian, between Kanchow and Nanchang. The result of this attack was unknown. Several foreign missionaries, including Italian, French and American, were living in the Kian district.

Protection of Americans Urged.

The American Legation at Peking advised the State Department today it has requested Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs, to permit American citizens who have remained at Kanchow, to accompany Nationalist troops from the city if they have not yet withdrawn.

Arms Shipments Await Request.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—A report current tonight that the State Department had refused permission to the du Ponts to send a shipload of ammunition to China was denied tonight by the State Department. It was authoritatively learned that the du Ponts desire to send such a shipment to the Nanking Government, but that the State Department had not yet received, through the Chinese Legation, any request for the usual export permit for the shipment. Consequently no action in connection with the shipment has been taken. But there has been no refusal on the part of the department to grant the permission.

There is an embargo against the shipment of arms and ammunition from the United States to China, but the Secretary of State is authorized by law to make certain exceptions in favor of the Nanking Government. Under the present practice of the department, if the Nanking Government wants the arms or ammunition to go forward, it so informs the State Department, through the Chinese Legation at Washington.

In the case of the shipment in question it is considered probable that the necessary request from the Nanking Government for a permit has been delayed in reaching the Chinese Legation here.

Reds Assail Three Groups.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The State Department was notified in a message dated Aug. 15 that foreign troops at Shanghai included 1,243 United States Marines, 2,169 British troops, 1,230 French troops and 400 Japanese troops, with additional forces expected to land within a few days.

The American Consulate at Hankow in a telegram dated Aug. 13 reported it had reliable information that Communist newspapers widely distributed in Changsha contained the following slogans:

"Down with Chang Hsueh-liang [Manchurian war lord], running dog of the Japanese; Down with Chiang Kai-shek [President of the Nanking Government], running dog of the Americans; Down with Wang Ching-wei [Peking political leader], running dog of the British."

The consulate reported that slogans also censured the Northern Coalition Generals Feng and Yen and stated that a Soviet Government uniting the Provinces of Hupeh, Hunan and Kiangsi was contemplated.

USE OF SLAVE LABOR LAID TO AMERICANS

ACCUSATIONS DENIED HERE

President of J. G. White Engineering Corporation Also Says Work Has Not Even Started Yet.

GENEVA, Aug. 15 (AP).—Protests have been received at the League of Nations against certain conditions said to be attached to a concession held by the J. G. White Engineering Corporation, a New York concern, for the construction of public works in Abyssinia. According to the protests, the construction of these works by the American company will involve the use of slave labor.

The protests received here have come from the British Anti-Slavery Society at London, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at Geneva, and certain individuals.

The communications to the League call attention to the fact that the United States is a party to the anti-slavery convention concluded under League auspices. They recall also that the Washington government, in approving the convention, made a declaration which went further than the terms of the treaty itself in taking a positive stand against slavery and forced labor.

The matter also is understood to have been brought to the attention of the State Department at Washington by one or more of the objecting parties.

Abyssinia has signed but not ratified the anti-slavery convention.

Charge Denied Here.

Gano Dunn, president of the J. G. White Engineering Corporation, denied last night as "unfounded" the charge that his company would use slave labor in the building of public improvements in Abyssinia.

"A statement appeared recently in Baltimore," said Mr. Dunn, "that we were going to use slave labor and that the King would provide it. It looks to us like propaganda. We have not done any work there yet. Surveyors are going over there but that does not involve any construction work as yet. If these charges of slavery are repeated, we will have something more to say. But I may point out that we are an American company, working with American money. That being so, you can see us using slave labor, can't you? That's the answer."

Mr. Dunn's formal statement on the matter was as follows:

"The J. G. White Engineering Corporation has been employed by the Emperor of Ethiopia (Abyssinia) to make a survey and engineering report on certain main highways in Ethiopia and a dam and control works at Lake Tsana, the source of the Blue Nile in Ethiopia, preliminary to construction work at the lake.

"The dam and control works are for the delivery of a larger volume of water to the Sudan for the irrigation program of the Sudan Government above Khartum. The survey will occupy for a year or more the engineers who are about to leave for Ethiopia.

"The Emperor has formally informed the J. G. White Engineering Corporation that it is his intention to have it construct the dam at Lake Tsana and the roads.

"A vice president of our corporation has twice visited Ethiopia and had many conferences with the Emperor and with the officials of his Ethiopian Government. From his reports and from all the other information we have obtained, we are convinced that the Emperor is radically opposed to slave labor and is doing everything in his power to eradicate every form of slavery in his kingdom, and we believe also that the employment of slave labor by us or by any other foreigners contemplating work in Ethiopia would be obnoxious to the Emperor.

"The missionaries stationed in Ethiopia are devoting particular attention to the medical and sanitary phases of their work. We have consulted them and they are prepared to welcome our cooperation.

"When the J. G. White Engineering Corporation undertakes any construction work in Ethiopia, it will certainly treat as free men all natives that it employs and will, by proper construction camps and sanitation, introduce conditions of working and well-being that will meet the approval of enlightened humanitarians in the United States and elsewhere.

"We anticipate that the Emperor will not only insist on but will cooperate with us in bringing about these results. Our interest in the Ethiopian work is conditioned upon such cooperation."

RED KILLED IN ZAGREB.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Aug. 15.—A revolver fight between Zagreb policemen and two Communist leaders whom they sought to arrest ended in the death of one of the Communists. Two of the men are known by the police by the names of Stanko and Aga. The Communists resisted arrest by opening a rapid fire on the policemen, who returned the fire, killing Stanko and seriously wounding Aga.

It is not known whether any other persons were shot during the battle. The police have urged citizens of Zagreb to report immediately if any one is missing.

AMERICANS IN DRESDEN STUDY HYGIENE EXHIBIT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DRESDEN, Aug. 15.—An official American delegation has arrived here from Washington to study the Dresden international hygiene exhibition with a view to reporting on the advances which have been made in hygiene education. The delegation is composed of Dr. Charles Wardell Stiles of the United States Public Health Service, Major George C. Dunham of the Army Medical School and Captain Charles S. Butler, Commandant of the Naval Medical School.

"This is the most remarkable exhibition from the standpoint of the education of the public I have ever seen," Captain Butler told your correspondent.

"The lessons for the physician which are collected here surpass anything ever collected in one place," Dr. Stiles declared. "Of special interest are the ways the Germans have devised of making anatomy clear to the layman in the interest of public health."

After a thorough study of the exhibits under the special guidance of the exhibition authorities, the American delegation will break up, Dr. Stiles going to the Zoological Congress at Padua, Captain Butler to the Eighth Congress on Medical History in Rome and Major Dunham returning to the United States. Each will make a report to his department.

British Find Women Excel Men in Operating Telephones

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The British Postmaster General, commenting on the resolution of the Postal Workers' Union against the employment of women as telephone operators, says that the only way to improve the service is to have all women operators. In support of that view he cites the results of a recent test on quickness in response to calls.

Between 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., when women were in charge of the switchboards, the average response time on London exchanges was 6.3 seconds. Between 5 P. M. and 8 P. M., when both men and women were working, the average time was 8 seconds. After 8 P. M., when men only were working, the average was 13 seconds.

The Postmaster General calls attention to the fact that women operators are employed all night in the United States, and he thinks this would be a good practice for England.

SAYS VITAMINS HALT SPREAD OF LEPROSY

LOOKS TO BETTER METHODS

By WILFRID FLEISHER.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKYO, Aug. 15.—Dr. Kioyoshi Shiga, head of the government hospital at Seoul, Korea, who recently announced that he had succeeded in artificially cultivating the bacillus of leprosy, has prepared for your correspondent an exclusive statement of his findings, in which he sets forth the deduction, derived from his experiments, that leprosy only develops under conditions where there is an absence of vitamins.

Dr. Shiga believes that if the further experiments he is now carrying on confirm the previous findings it will be possible greatly to improve the methods, both of the prevention and the treatment of leprosy.

Dr. Shigo, in his statement, says:

"It is a matter of regret that little progress has been made in the study of measures for the prevention and the treatment of leprosy within the past sixty years since the discovery of the leprosy bacillus. This is due mainly to the fact that bacteriologists have not been able to cultivate the bacillus of leprosy.

"With about 50,000 lepers in Japan proper and more than 20,000 in Korea, there are more cases of leprosy in the Japanese Empire in proportion to the population than in any other part of the world. In view of this deplorable situation it is the duty of the Japanese medical profession to discover the proper cure for this dreadful disease, no matter what the cost may be.

"I have devoted the past two years to the study of the cultivation of the leprosy bacillus, and while my efforts have not been entirely successful, I have found it possible to cultivate the bacillus of leprosy.

"1. My experiments have proved the possibility of cultivating the bacillus of leprosy through cultive media.

"2. The experiments have convinced me of the possibility of cultivating a colony of the bacilli by strengthening the power of the bacilli through cultive media.

"3. With this conviction, I started to improve the cultivation ground. While there has been little noticeable progress in this direction so far, there is a definite prospect of success. Professor Ohtawara of Kumamoto University, and Dr. Watanabe of Kitazato Medical Laboratory are now carrying on experiments in this direction.

"4. The experiments also proved the acclimatization of the bacilli to the cultivation ground is effective in increasing the power of the bacilli. This has been shown by the formation of a colony of the fourth generation, whereas the third generation failed to produce a colony.

"5. Special experiments are still necessary to prove conclusively that the colony is a collection of leprosy bacilli. I believe it is, but I have not yet scientifically proved this.

"6. The injection of leprosy bacilli taken from a leper into a rat at first showed no effect upon the animal. Later, however, after the rat had been fed with food devoid of vitamins, it developed signs of leprosy. If further experiments bring about the same results, I shall be able to explain the conditions under which leprosy develops. This will lead to the improvement of the measures for the prevention and treatment of the disease."

The Imperial household has announced that the Dowager Empress intends to create a special fund for improving the hospitals for the care of lepers in Japan. She has commissioned Viscount Iriye, the Court Chamberlain, to investigate the conditions of both the private and public institutions for lepers.

WAGE CUT IN RUHR PLANNED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ESSEN, Aug. 15.—The Federation of Mine Owners in the Ruhr Basin today canceled the wage schedule with the aim of enforcing a wage reduction of about 10 per cent, which is deemed essential in the general price reduction of all manufactured goods, as planned by the government.

This move is likely to result in a bitter fight because the labor unions, including the Christian workers' organization, is determined to repulse such an attack. Other operators point out that nearly 9,000,000 tons of coal are stored and that the monthly haul has been reduced from 10,900,000 to 8,000,000 tons.

By the end of July there were 40,000 fewer miners employed than at the same time a year ago and a further reduction is expected this month. There are now still 326,000 miners employed in the Ruhr Basin. Negotiations between operators and miners are expected to begin next week.

WAR MOTHER'S BODY WILL BE SENT HOME

ANOTHER IS SERIOUSLY ILL

But Only 16 Out of 3,000 Have Had to Go to American Hospital for Treatment.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The body of Mrs. Harriet Bates, 69, of Portage, Pa., who died at a Verdun hotel last night from a cerebral hemorrhage, reached Paris tonight and will be sent home within a few days. The husband of the first Gold Star mother to die while making the pilgrimage to her son's grave overseas was notified this morning.

Medical care provided by the United States War Department failed to save Mrs. Bates. She was attended by an army physician, Major Richard Eames, and two army nurses. She is reported to have known she was dying and declared with a smile before losing consciousness that she was glad the end was coming while she was so near her son's last resting place. With other mothers in the party she had visited Romagne Cemetery, where her son is buried, before she was stricken.

Another war mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Gast of Chickasaw, Ohio, was still in a critical condition, although slightly improved, at the American Hospital here today. She is suffering from acute intestinal disorders. Her daughter, Mrs. Mary Hendrick of Salina, Ohio, has been notified of her condition.

More than 3,000 Gold Star mothers have already been brought over to visit their sons' graves at the United States Government's expense. The number of mothers admitted to the American Hospital here for treatment so far totals only sixteen. Reference to life insurance tables of expectancy shows that under ordinary conditions of home life and at the advanced age of most of these mothers, more than ten times as many as really were ill could have been expected to be.

Two to Leave Hospital.

PARIS, Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Lizzie Schafman of New Brighton, Minn., and Mrs. Anna Schmitt of Pittsburgh, Pa., both in the American Hospital for more than a week, will be sent together tomorrow to the Meuse-Argonne Cemetery on their battlefield visit.

Without knowledge that one of their party had died, the other mothers meanwhile today went excursioning on the Seine.

Escort Is Provided.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Upon receipt of news of the death of Mrs. Bates in France, Secretary of War Hurley directed Colonel Richard T. Ellis, the officer in charge of the pilgrimage, to have the body embalmed and returned to the United States on the President Harding leaving Cherbourg next Tuesday. Secretary Hurley designated Major Floyd D. Carlock to escort the body to Mrs. Bates's home, where as representative of the War Department he will render such assistance as possible to the family.

Two Killed in Milan Auto Crash.

MILAN, Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Maria Emma Maggiorana, 55, of Rome, wife of an American, and Omero Etmiston, vice president of the Milan Italo-American Chamber of Commerce, were killed tonight when a taxicab in which they were riding struck a trolley. Mrs. Maggioranu's daughter, Vittoria, 20, and her son, Pietro, 18, were slightly injured. The chauffeur, who was seriously injured, was arrested.

BIRTH CONTROL RULE STIRS CONTROVERSY

CLEARER WORDING URGED

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—As might have been expected, the part of the Lambeth Conference report which has attracted most of the popular attention is the guarded resolution of the Bishops approving birth control under strict limitations.

The comment on this point, however, is not generally favorable. The Bishops are criticized on the one hand for not going far enough in the matter, while on the other hand their action is deplored as going too far and as a departure from the former attitude of the Church.

"The birth control question is difficult," says Viscount Brentford, leader of the Protestant movement. "The Roman Catholic Church has declared definitely against it, but the Catholics are always able to take a definite decision on any question.

"With us, the Bishops have tried to accept birth control, but to modify it. I think they must go further and make their modifications clearer. They must give directions which can be understood by the people. Difficult as it is, the question cannot be left where the Bishops left it, partly allowing and partly disallowing it. But the Lambeth Conference moved with the times in advocating the education of children in sex matters."

The Bishop of Bloemfontein, the Right Rev. Dr. Walter Casey, one of the sixty-seven delegates to the Conference who voted against the birth control resolution, has written to The Church Times, the organ of Anglo-Catholicism, saying:

"When you issue the Lambeth report, I wish to say, in order to clear my soul, that there are statements in it from which I conscientiously and vehemently dissociate myself."

The Church Times, commenting editorially on the birth control questioned, says:

"The conference makes a great departure from the position adopted by the Lambeth Conference of 1920. The admission of the principle of the artificial control of conception constitutes a positive revolution in Christian morality.

"Altogether apart from the question of whether the conference is right or wrong, its decision involves very grave practical dangers. The conference claims such practices should be regulated by what it calls Christian principles, which are, nevertheless, most vaguely and inadequately enunciated.

"To admit the necessity on any occasion of such a practice is unquestionably an enormous concession to the spirit and perhaps to the practice of the modern world, which is by no means guided in its conduct by Christian principles. It certainly involves a startling departure from the traditional teaching of the Catholic moralists and will occasion profound concern to all who agree with the minority of the Bishops."

BISHOP DAVIES TELLS OF LAMBETH MEETING

Denies That Discussions on Birth Control Were "Fomented" by Americans.

Bishop Thomas F. Davies of the Episcopal Church of Springfield, Mass., returned yesterday on the Cunard liner Aquitania from London, where he attended the meetings of the Lambeth Conference. He and Mrs. Davies left London on Aug. 9, a day before the final service in Westminster Abbey.

The Bishop told of discussions at the conferences on birth control and denied that the topic was "fomented" by American representatives, declaring that the American representation seemed indifferent to the subject.

"Sex morality in America is improving all of the time," the Bishop said. "It has never been a source of great alarm to me. I have always observed that obscenity and ugliness come from ignorance. The mystery and silence surrounding the subject of sex is breaking down before common sense and education."

William Bloom, American fashion designer, returned on the liner after a brief stay in Paris, where he attended the style openings. He said he believed America was no longer dependent on Paris for women's fashions, as far as sports and afternoon wear were concerned, and that in a few years the country would be totally independent, creating her own fashions for every style of dresses.

Also on the Aquitania was Robert J. Casey, novelist and writer of mystery stories, who has toured the South Seas with Mrs. Casey. In their thirty-nine-foot boat they visited one island with 189 inhabitants. Only four of these were men, Mr. Casey said, and they lived like caliphs, did no work and were even fed by women servants when they got very tired.

The Aquitania was delayed twenty-six hours out of Cherbourg by fog. She brought 1,300 passengers and nearly 5,000 sacks of mail.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Aug. 15.—Forty-six bandits were killed and forty-two wounded by United States Marines and the constabulary in Nicaragua, and one guard was killed, eight wounded and one missing, in June and July, Rear Admiral Edward Hale Campbell, commander of the Special Service Squadron, announced tonight on his return from an inspection trip to Nicaragua.

"It has been definitely established that Sandino is in Nicaragua and that he was wounded in the leg when his headquarters on the summit of a mountain were bombed by a Marine plane," Admiral Campbell said. "Only dead and wounded bandits actually seen are shown on this report. The indications are that numerous others have been either killed or wounded."

LAYS HAITIAN CRISIS TO ISLAND POLITICS

State Department Indicates Colvin Is Not Personally Objectionable to Port au Prince.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Defending President Hoover's nomination of Carl Colvin, an American citizen, to be chief of the technical bureau of the Haitian Department of Agriculture, the State Department today indicated that the resignation of the Haitian Cabinet may have been due to political agitation in the island republic rather than, as reported, to the nomination of Mr. Colvin.

Mr. Colvin was named by President Hoover under a treaty arrangement by which it was agreed that the President of Haiti should appoint an engineer, to be nominated by the President of the United States, to head the technical bureau of agriculture, which has jurisdiction over matters of sanitation and public improvements.

Mr. Colvin, who had been appointed assistant to Dr. George F. Freeman, has carried on Dr. Freeman's previous work as chief of the Service Technique since Dr. Freeman left Haiti April 1. On June 26 the State Department proposed to President Hoover that Mr. Colvin be nominated by President Hoover for appointment by the President of Haiti as director of the technical bureau, and on July 1, 1930, the legation at Port au Prince was instructed to inform President Roy of Mr. Colvin's nomination.

"During the six weeks since Mr. Colvin's nomination," the State Department announcement says, "it has been reported to the department that the delay in consummating his appointment has been the result of opposition on the part of persons in Haiti affiliated in one manner or another with the participants in the students' strike, which involved the Service Technique, in the latter part of 1929. The American legation at Port au Prince received frequent official assurances that the delay in the appointment of Mr. Colvin in no wise implied any personal objection.

"The department has received official reports from Haiti for some time past of a campaign conducted in the local press with the purpose of forcing the resignation of the Haitian Cabinet. This campaign is understood to have been related to the campaign now under way in Haiti."

In pointing out that Mr. Colvin has carried out Dr. Freeman's duties during the period that Dr. Freeman has been absent from Haiti, the State Department says it is understood "that during his entire Haitian service he has displayed tact, administrative ability and sound judgment."

WANTS MORE ITALIANS IN LEAGUE SECRETARIAT

Rome Complains That It Lacks Equal Representation With Other Nations.

GENEVA, Aug. 15 (AP).—Complaints concerning the composition of the League of Nations Secretariat and the powers vested in the Secretary General and Assistant Secretary General are contained in documents just forwarded by the Italian Government to the League.

The Italians complain that, while Great Britain and France have respectively forty and thirty representatives among the officials in the higher categories, Italy has only eleven and Germany thirteen. The note does not mention, however, that a large number of these are translators and writers who are required to speak English and French as their mother tongues, since these two are the official languages of the League.

The Italian note also observes that while two non-member States Russia and the United States are represented in the first category officials, only thirty-eight of the fifty-four States holding membership in the League are so represented.

As to the power vested in the Secretary General and his assistants, the Italian Government would like to see closer supervision by the Council. It also would like to see the contracts of officers scrutinized, holding that good officials under the present seven-year system need have no fear concerning renewal, while it views with disquiet the possibility of mediocre officials hiding behind their initial contracts.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Major Gen. Hugh Drum, Inspector General of the United States Army, visited Camp Smith, Peekskill, today to inspect the Ninety-third Infantry Brigade, New York National Guard, which includes the Fourteenth Regiment of Brooklyn and the 165th Regiment of Manhattan.

It was the first day since the Summer training season opened last June that most of the training schedule had to be suspended because of rain. The soldiers of the Fourteenth, who were to take outdoor manoeuvres, abandoned their tactical problems. Most of the target practice also was suspended for the guardsmen of the 165th.

Major Gen. William N. Haskell, commanding General of the New York National Guard, received General Drum. The plan for the review of the troops on parade by General Drum was canceled because of rain.

PRESBYTERIAN ROLL SHOWS 20,359 LOSS

Drop in National Membership Is Explained by Enforcement of Stricter Rules.

GAIN IN SUNDAY SCHOOLS

$3,065,047 Is Year's Decrease in Income—Thirty-four Fewer Churches Listed.

A net loss of 20,359 members as compared with the previous year has been sustained by the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, according to its annual statistical statement for the year ended March 31 last. The report, which was made public yesterday in Philadelphia through the Rev. Dr. Lewis Seymour Mudge, stated clerk of the General Assembly, shows that the Church's membership is 1,984,108. The total number of Sunday School members is placed at 1,596,030, a net increase of 717.

The statement sets forth that the total Church income for all purposes last year was $63,048,063, a decrease of $3,065,047. Of the total decrease, is is explained, about $1,000,000 is in what are termed miscellaneous benevolences, an item which might fluctuate yearly and is dependent upon local undenominational conditions. Congregational expenses in the Church last year amounted to $49,296,831, a decrease of $153,855.

Last year the Church gave $4,115,784 to its National Missions Board, a decrease of $289,339; to its Foreign Missions Board, $3,565,963, a decrease of $210,975; to its Christian Education Board, $881,723, a decrease of $44,277, and to miscellaneous benevolences, $2,619,039, a decrease of $1,074,170. The sum of $1,073,818 was expended by the self-supporting synods of the church last year, a decrease of $23,907.

The per capita giving of the members of the church for all purposes last year was $32.51, a decrease of 69 cents; the per capita giving to benevolences was $6.87, a decrease of 90 cents, and to the official Presbyterian Board it was $4.63, a decrease of 28 cents.

Individual Presbyterian churches now number 9,327, a decrease from last year of thirty-four. Fifty-two new churches were organized during the year and ninety-two were dissolved. The total number of ministers is 9,987, an increase of twenty-one. The Church has forty-six synods and 293 presbyteries, with 50,079 elders and 21,662 deacons.

The loss of members is explained by the fact that no Easter Sunday was included in the count made during the past Church year and to the increasingly rigid requirements insisted upon locally for the retention of names upon the communicant membership roll.

"It is to be noted," the statement explains, "that during the last Church year there were removed from the communicant rolls of the denomination for disciplinary reasons 75,580 persons, or about 10,000 more than the annual average for the last five years. Attention is drawn to the fact that all Presbyterian statistics relating to membership are based solely on the number of communicants in good standing and not on the Presbyterian population or upon the number of baptized members."

The ranking order of the ten largest synods remains the same as in 1929, as follows: Pennsylvania, 368,491; New York, 261,905; New Jersey, 166,087; Ohio, 160,043; Illinois, 131,150; California, 95,544; Indiana, 68,481; Michigan, 68,316; Iowa, 67,025, and Missouri, 57,098.

The largest individual Presbyterian church in the country is the First, of Seattle, Wash., with 7,886. The others of the first ten are Immanuel, Los Angeles, Cal., 4,087; First, Tulsa, Okla., 3,207; Tabernacle, Indianapolis, Ind., 3,144; Central, Denver, Col., 3,088; First, Oklahoma City, Okla., 3,059; Pasadena, Pasadena, Cal., 2,974; First, Portland, Ore., 2,800; First, Pittsburgh, Pa., 2,736, and Madison Avenue, New York, 2,674.

CATHEDRAL IN MEXICO OPENS AFTER 4 YEARS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—The Catholic cathedral in this city was reopened today, after having been closed for four years. The ceremony was attended by thousands of Catholics, who filled the church and overflowed into the patio, and the deep notes of the cathedral bells again were heard in the Mexican capital.

The ceremony was a public manifestation of the end of the crisis between the Catholic Church and the Mexican Government during the administration of General Plutarco Elias Calles, which resulted in the closing of all the churches, on instructions from the Pope, and the withdrawal of all the priests and prelates from the exercise of their customary functions.

The ceremony today began in front of the cathedral and in the big Plaza Zocalo, facing the National Palace, where throngs had been congregating since before dawn. Many of the worshipers remained constantly on their knees in prayer, while others, fatigued, sought rest on folding chairs, awaiting the moment when the rust-eaten iron gates and doors would at last be reopened. Thousands who awaited the beginning of the ceremony had come long distances afoot, doing without easier means of transportation as a penance.

The feast of the Virgin Mary coincided with the opening of the cathedral, and hundreds of Mexicans, whose name day it was, attended. Hundreds of girls also attended in their white dresses on the way to confirmation.

The reopening was the occasion for a high pontifical mass, celebrated by the two Archbishops, Mgr. Pascual Diaz, Mexico's supreme prelate, and Mgr. Ruiz y Flores, the Apostolic Delegate. The Archbishops were attended by many Church dignitaries at the high altar.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning a score of bellringers ascended to the posts in the cathedral towers which they had not occupied for four years. As the booming notes of the bells sounded the kneeling crowd below prayed and many wept in thanksgiving.

Many parts of the cathedral are still under repair and subscriptions for carrying out that work are being started.

Hoover Line Definitely Traced To Switzerland, German Says

GENEVA, Aug. 15.—Professor Hermann Macco of Berlin again has arrived in the Swiss village of Unter Kulm, in the Canton of Argovie, to complete his inquiry into the genealogy of President Hoover.

Professor Macco has discovered a large number of documents in the ancient Swiss archives as far back as the thirteenth century relating to President Hoover's ancestry.

Professor Macco has established that the Huber family in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries possessed a large number of windmills and tracts of farming land in Ober Kulm, but emigrated to the Palatinate in Germany, owing to an agricultural crisis in Switzerland in the seventeenth century. In the same century Andreas Huber emigrated to America and changed the name Huber to Hoover. No doubt remains, according to Professor Macco, that the Hoover family is of Swiss origin.

DENIES CATHOLICS SEEK PLAY CENSORS

Father Woods Says on Radio That Church Aims to Teach Peril of Some Shows.

SEES 'ATTACKS ON THE SOUL'

A denial that the Catholic Church was attempting to set up a censorship for the American stage was issued last night by the Rev. Father Robert E. Woods, broadcasting over Station WLWL. Father Woods is an official of the Catholic Theatre Movement, whose quarterly bulletin, issued last Sunday, heralded a movement to clean up the stage. The movement has already won the support of many Protestant clergymen.

"Rather than set up a censorship," said Father Woods, "the Catholic Church is attempting to make each Christian man and woman realize that many of the present stage offerings are a direct attack on his soul and on the ideals and religious principles by which he orders his life. The Catholic Church is not starting any crusade against the American theatre. The work of the Catholic Theatre Movement is not new. It was commenced eighteen years ago with the founding of the organization. Its purposes and ideals have not been changed one iota since then."

Father Woods said that officials of the Church realized that not until decent people withheld their support would the business of producing improper shows become unprofitable.

He defended the action of his organization in publishing a "white list," declaring the list was doing a good service. The Catholic Theatre Movement had never sought publicity in its activities, he continued, and the amount of notice taken by the press of the recent bulletin came as a surprise to the officials of the society.

"Our work has been going on since we were organized and few paid attention to us," he said. "Hitherto our only source of publicity has been the Catholic press and these fortnightly radio talks. We are only attempting to hold up our standards of faith, which are the same today as they were one thousand years ago."

Father Woods was to have spoken on "Grateful Memories of the Drama," but declared that the impression had been spread that the Catholic Church was attempting to set up a censorship, and he wished to deny it.

"It is the firm conviction of the Catholic Theatre Movement," he said, "that not by lurid verbal castigations, which merely serve to advertise the object of them to the degenerate and dirty-minded among theatregoers; not by attempting to set up a legal club-wielding censorship can the present unfortunate plight of the stage be remedied, but only by the growing realization in the breast of each Christian man and woman that it is vitally important to him as an individual that the stage be kept clean and that the insidious attempt to undermine by propaganda, whether by direct opposition or by ridicule, the firm basis of moral and religious principles upon which he professedly orders his life, is a direct attack on his own soul and all his ideals. We only aim to have him put those principles into practice and under their guidance be every man his own censor."

CONTROVERSY WIDENS SPLIT IN CUBA GROUP

Each Side in Good-Will Body Accuses the Other in Action to Oust Drossner and Platt

The controversy among the members of the Cuba Good Will Committee, resulting in the announcement that Charles J. Drossner and George W. Platt had been ousted as secretary and treasurer of the organization and replaced by Carl Byoir, publisher of the Havana Post and the Havana Telegram, widened yesterday as a spokesman for one group said the shake-up would stand and a representative of the other asserted the ouster proceedings would not be recognized.

At the offices of the committee, 551 Fifth Avenue, Mr. Drossner and Mr. Platt said the action of the few members and the announcement from the offices of the Havana Post, at 10 East Fortieth Street, regarding the ouster was illegal. Mr. Drossner said he would call a meeting of the full committee within two weeks and would explain then why Mr. Byoir, who he said resigned from the committee two months ago, had no right to displace any one on the committee.

Carl J. Dickey, assistant to Mr. Byoir, said the action in ousting Mr. Drossner and Mr. Platt was legal and in accordance with the committee rules. He said Mr. Drossner and Mr. Platt would not be permitted to retain their positions. Each side charged the other with trying to use the committee for private interests.

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO THE CHURCHGOER

SEMINARY SESSION CLOSES

Dr. J. A. Morehead Off to World Convention—Dr. H. A. Schorr Elected Rabbi of Adath Israel.

The basement structure of the Roman Catholic Church of the Visitation, Bailey Avenue and West 238th Street, the Bronx, was opened for services yesterday for the first time. There were three masses in celebration of the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin. More than 600 adults and more than 100 children were in attendance. The pastor is the Rev. Joseph V. Stanford. He was appointed by Cardinal Hayes in October, 1928, to organize a new parish in this section. Until now mass has been celebrated in two vacant stores at Bailey Avenue and West 237th Street.

The plot plan calls for four buildings eventually, a church, a parochial school, a convent and a rectory. The part completed so far is what will be the first floor of the parochial school. The entire cost will be $275,000. In November the formal laying of the cornerstone will take place.

Three young men will be ordained as friars minor this morning at 8 o'clock in St. Anthony's Franciscan Church, Sullivan Street. The candidates are James Ranavaro of the Church of Our Lady of Pity, the Bronx; Leo Crescio of the Sacred Heart Church, Stamford, Conn.; Roger Imperiale of Our Lady of Peace Church, Brooklyn.

The second annual Summer school of Union Theological Seminary, Broadway and 120th Street, closed a six weeks' session yesterday. There were 201 students, as compared with 170 students at the first annual Summer school at the seminary. Most of the students this year were ministers, and the others were almost all full-time church workers, among whom were many women. The closing exercises were held in the James Memorial Chapel, led by the Rev. Dr. Henry K. Sherrill, retiring rector of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Boston, who will be consecrated this Fall as Bishop of Massachusetts, succeeding the late Bishop Charles L. Slattery. The Rev. Dr. Gaylord S. White, dean of students at the seminary, who was chairman of the committee on Summer session and extension work, left yesterday afternoon for a brief vacation.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Morehead, president of the executive committee for continuation work of the Lutheran world convention, who is on his way to Norway to attend a meeting of that body in Nidaros and Oslo, will try to locate in Canada or Brazil 500 Russian Lutheran refugees from Siberia who are stranded at Harbin, China. On sailing he said that one of the problems to be treated would be "the care of migrating Lutherans." Dr. Morehead, whose offices are in the Lutheran Church House, 39 West Thirty-fifth Street, resigned recently as executive director of the national Lutheran council to devote all his time to the world Lutheran organization.

The Rev. Dr. Henry A. Schorr has been elected, unanimously, rabbi of Temple Adath Israel, Grand Concourse and 169th Street, the Bronx. He will begin his duties there on Sept. 1. Dr. Schorr is a member of the first graduating class of the Jewish Institute of Religion and is a former president of its alumni association. For the last four years he has been affiliated with Unity Synagogue, formerly Temple Peni-El. It was during his ministry that the new synagogue building at 130 West Seventy-ninth Street, was erected. He is Jewish chaplain of Bellevue Hospital.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the United Lutheran Synod of New York, will visit in Stockholm, Sweden, as the guest of Archbishop Soederblom, Lutheran Primate of Sweden. Later Dr. Trexler and Dr. Edmund Devol of 507 Fifth Avenue, who is traveling with him, will visit the site of Base Hospital 8, A. E. F., in Saveny, France.

The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, assistant pastor of the Broadway Congregational Tabernacle, at Fifty-sixth Street, returned on the Belgenland this week from a two months' trip in Europe as one of ten "interchange" preachers between America and Great Britain. He preached in Scotland and England and in the American Church, Paris. He also spoke at the International Congregational Council in Bournemouth, England, to which he was one of the American delegates.

In his monthly letter to his parishioners in the August Cathedral Bulletin Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle says: "Modesty in dress was made by His Eminence, the Cardinal Archbishop, a prominent topic in his speeches at the commencements of women's colleges in May and June. He called attention to the Holy Father's brief upon the subject and urged all to give the matter serious and honest attention. He made clear that it was not his intention, nor that of the Sovereign Pontiff, to urge that our women become dowdy, but he urged them to insist upon decency and to resist deplorable innovations. He stressed particular attention to beach costumes."

The Rev. Donald B. Aldrich, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, has returned from a vacation in Europe. He will preach tomorrow in the Union Church in Dennis, at the centre of Cape Cod, Mass.

The noon service of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, Broadway and Tenth Street, will be held Wednesday and Friday in Huntington Close, the green which is a memorial to the late Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, for many years the rector. Semi-weekly open air services here will be continued until cool weather.

Martin Luther Kretzmann will be commissioned as a missionary to Tamils, in India, Sunday, Aug. 24, at 3:30 o'clock in the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 21 Ridge Street, near Main Street, Orange, N. J.

Brooklyn Home Gets Bequest.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—Leaving the bulk of her estate in trust to her husband during his life, the late Mrs. Emma L. Schaeffer Owles, by the terms of her will, filed in the Orphans' Court today, directed that the Methodist Episcopal Home for the Aged here and the Brooklyn Methodist Episcopal Home for the Aged and Infirm should receive $10,000 each after her husband's death.

SOVIET ACTS TO PUSH COLONIZING OF BUREYA

General Immigration and the Development of Collectives There Is Proposed.

MOSCOW, Aug. 11 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Present methods of colonizing Bureya, where the Soviet Government planned a Jewish republic, have been pronounced unsatisfactory by the Soviet Land Commissariat, after hearing a report of the special commission sent to Bureya to investigate conditions complained of there.

The commissariat has recommended that the immigration department, in conjunction with the land commissariat and Comzet, government department for settling the Jews on land, and other interested organizations introduce practical measures to effect immigration of 50,000 working Jews to Bureya within the coming year. The land commissariat said immigration there had been conducted without plan.

It was recommended that future colonization be concentrated in the vicinity of the large Soviet colonies and that industries be established near the collectives and workers' settlements. It recommends that houses be constructed and land parceled off so that on the arrival of the immigrants they will not be dismayed and decide to return to their old towns.

The government has requested that Bureya be separated so as to form an independent economic centre with its own executive committee supervising its work. It was also suggested that the Comzet and the Ozet society for settling the Jews on land prepare regulations establishing relations between themselves and the new organization, which will conduct the colonization of the Jewish immigrants.

Plans being prepared by the land commissariat reveal that the development of collectives will be undertaken in Bureya. Increased immigration appears to be the main aim and this increase will not be confined to Jews.

AGENCY TO MARKET ARTIST'S PAINTINGS

La Grange Agrees to Supply 35 a Year to Syndicate Which Will Hold Exhibitions.

An experiment in the commercial exploitation of a living artist's work has been begun here with the formation of a syndicate to sell the canvases of Jacques La Grange, painter of marine and industrial subjects, who lives at the Hotel des Artistes, 1 West Sixty-seventh Street.

Mr. La Grange, who was born abroad and came to this country in 1916, has already exhibited his work in New York galleries. The first of his exhibitions under the sponsorship of the syndicate will open at the Babcock Gallery, 5 East Fifty-seventh Street, on Sept. 22, and subsequently will be shown throughout the country.

The Jacques La Grange Syndicate, as the exploiting agency is called, is entirely experimental and speculative, Mr. La Grange said yesterday. He has the conviction that a painting, after it has left the artist's hands, becomes a commercial commodity and should be marketed as are commercial products. The purpose of the syndicate, he said, is to make money. Its members are acquaintances who liked his work shown at previous exhibitions here.

Each has agreed to contribute as much as $1,000, Mr. La Grange says, and he has agreed to produce a minimum of thirty-five paintings a year. The galleries which exhibit the paintings will get one-third of the sales total. Of the remaining two-thirds the artist will get one-half and the syndicate half. This arrangement is supplemented by a sliding scale to take care of unexpectedly large profits.

BRAVE WIND AND RAIN FOR SURF FAITH CURES

Despite the chill winds and misty rain thousands of Catholic invalids thronged to the Rockaways and to Coney Island yesterday and bathed in the ocean, in accordance with the old belief that the ocean waters have curative powers on the Feast of the Assumption.

Special masses were celebrated yesterday morning at the Shrine Church of Our Lady of Solace in West Seventeenth Street, Coney Island, by the rector, the Rev. Walter A. Kerwin. In the afternoon several thousand worshippers gathered at the church and marched about the neighborhood.

Many of those who visited the beaches had to be assisted into the water by lifeguards or friends, and because of the unfavorable weather few stayed for more than a few minutes.

NEWPORT, R. It was the first big social event that has been given at Sherwood in years. More than 400 guests attended.

Before the dance, Miss Delano was the dinner guest of Miss Doris Duke, who had a group of about fifty young people at the home of her mother, Mrs. James B. Duke, Rough Point. All went to Sherwood later, as did the guests from the numerous other dinner parties given in the colony.

Jersey Angler Hails Salami As Bait Trout Can't Resist

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Aug. 15.—Some catch their trout with gaudy flies, some lure them with plump worms and one school of bait-users has nothing but contempt for the other. Today, however, Joseph M. Vicarisi of Farrandale Avenue, heads a new faith among trout fishermen.

"Salame," said Mr. Vicarisi, "is the only bait for trout."

And he went on to tell how he caught fourteen of the biggest up in Silver Lake, N. H., with good old-fashioned salame, which is the menu name for a highly-spiced kind of Italian sausage. One of the fish was so hungry for the bait that he pulled Mr. Vicarisi overboard. A three-pounder it was, at the very least, he said.

"When I left the lake," he averred, "everybody up there was catching them with salame. They can't resist it. It makes their mouths water. And that's no boloney."

FIGHT RADIO STATION AT JERSEY HEARING

Former Federal Official Says the Volume Will Aid in Cutting Receivers' Electricity Bills.

A hearing opened before the New Jersey State Board of Public Utility Commissioners in Newark yesterday on the petition of the Atlantic Broadcasting Corporation to erect for Station WABC a 50,000-watt transmitting station in Wayne Township near two bridges, in Passaic County.

The proposed station has been approved by the Federal Radio Commission, but under a State law enacted this year approval of the location must be obtained from the Public Utility Commission. This was the first hearing of its kind.

The petition was opposed by Duane E. Minard, Assistant Attorney General, on behalf of the State of New Jersey by direction of Governor Larson. The Governor instructed Attorney General Stevens several weeks ago to investigate the petition and oppose it if it would cause inconvenience in the vicinity. Passaic County and Wayne Township also appeared against the petition. The commission has received many protests against the application from persons in the vicinity of Paterson. The writers feared the proposed 50,000-watt station would drown out local broadcasting. The New Jersey State Broadcasters' Association and several local stations also are fighting the petition.

The Atlantic Broadcasting Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the Columbia Broadcasting Company, was represented by Emerson L. Richards, State Senator from Atlantic County. Witnesses yesterday included Samuel Pickard and Isaac L. Levy, vice presidents of the Atlantic; E. K. Cohan, technical director of the Columbia, and Job Chambers, radio engineer of Station WLWL, Cincinnati.

Mr. Pickard, who is a former member of the Federal Radio Commission, said that if the station were built in New York or Long Island there would be walls of steel between the station and the receivers and that "steel absorbs radio waves as sands of the desert absorb water."

He denied that a 50,000-watt station would interfere with small stations, pointing to other 50,000-watt stations in the country as examples.

The greater the power of a station the less static there would be, the witness declared. Another advantage would be lower electricity bills to the receiver, he said, as it would not be necessary to tune in with as much volume. Mr. Pickard maintained that residents of Morris County who objected last year to location of the station at Columbia Bridge, on the Morris-Essex County line, were "unduly alarmed."

On cross-examination Mr. Minard sought to show that a high-powered station would smother the lesser ones. The witness denied this.

Similar testimony was given by the other witnesses. The hearing was adjourned to Monday morning, when the petitioner's case will be continued.

Signal to Be Fired in Chicago Studio—WJZ to Describe Gold Cup Boat Contest.

The sound of the starter's gun, fired in the WBBM studio at Chicago, sending the fliers in the Women's Air Derby on their way tomorrow from Long Beach, Cal., will be heard over WABC's coast-to-coast network at 7:30 P. M., Eastern Daylight Time. The sound of the gun will be carried over wires for 2,000 miles and reproduced by loud-speakers at the flying field simultaneously with its transmission over the radio chain to be heard by listeners. The presentation will last for five minutes.

Major Reed Landis, son of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, will fire the starting gun. There will be also a brief address by Major R. W. Schroeder, former holder of the world's altitude record.

When the final race of the twenty-eighth annual National Gold Cup contest is run between fast motor boat contenders this afternoon near Red Bank, N. J., on the Shrewsbury River, a description of the event will be heard beginning at 3:50 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, over WJZ's network, as carried from the official boat by short-wave radio. The official craft with its radio equipment will be stationed at the finish line. Henry Clay Foster, chairman of the regatta committee, and Gar Wood, boat racer and builder, are scheduled to speak.

ODE 'TO BEETHOVEN' HAS ITS PREMIERE

Albert Coates Gives Henry Joslyn's American Symphonic Work in Great Hall of City College.

The program of the Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, with Albert Coates returning to the conductor's stand, was held last night in the Great Hall of City College on account of cloudy weather. Mr. Coates had been in Philadelphia for the three previous evenings as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and will conduct his last two concerts at the Stadium this season this evening and tomorrow night.

The program last night included the first performance of the new American composition, a symphonic ode "To Beethoven," by Henry Joslyn, who was born in Elmira, N. Y., in 1892. Mr. Joslyn has described his work as an "abstract commentary on death," which after its composition "sounded like an ode to Beethoven." It contains several passages of grave quality but seemed as a whole more melodic than tragic. The work was well orchestrated and contains several interesting string passages.

Other items on the program were Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony, Mendelssohn's scherzo from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and Respighi's "Roman Festival."

The program announced for tonight contains Elgar's march, "Pomp and Circumstance"; Boccherini's symphony in C major, Moussorgsky's Gopak and Russian dance from "The Fair of Sorochinsk," Liadoff's "Kikimora," Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries," Balakireff's "Islamey," Grainger's "Shepherd's Hey" and "Molly on the Shore" and Tchaikovsky's overture-fantasy, "Romeo and Juliet."

TWO EQUITY MEMBERS FINED 3 WEEKS' SALARY

D. R. Dumbrille and Betty Gallagher, Who Dealt With Morris, Unlicensed Agent, Penalized.

Two Equity actors who dealt with an unlicensed agent have each been fined three weeks' salary by their organization, it was learned yesterday. The actors are Douglass R. Dumbrille and Betty Gallagher, who found rôles in the "Princess Charming" company through the William Morris Agency. The Equity council, in fixing the fines at its meeting on Tuesday, ordered that the money should go to the Actors' Fund.

The Actors' Equity Association recently licensed a list of agents and forbade its members to deal with unaccredited representatives. The Dumbrille-Gallagher case marks the first instance of a violation of this order.

The case also promises to precipitate a crisis between Equity and the licensed agents, who threaten to nullify their contracts with Equity if the Morris Agency is admitted to their fold. Arthur Lyons, president of the Theatrical Artists' Representatives' Association, said yesterday that facts connected with the ownership of the Morris Agency constitute an automatic violation of the association's charter. On the other hand, Frank Gillmore of Equity said that the issuance of a permit to the Morris Agency is being delayed only by "technical reasons."

CONSIDER MANAGERS' OFFER

Stagehands Expect Amicable Outcome on Demand for Pay Rise.

Members of the local stagehands' union will hold a meeting a week from tomorrow to decide whether to accept the managers' offer of a renewal of the existing contract or to stand firm in their demands for an increase. The union, it is reported, has asked a weekly increase of $5 for the heads of departments, who are now paid $82.50 weekly, and 50 cents more a performance for stagehands, who now receive $6.75. The current agreement, which was entered into two years ago, will expire Sept. 1.

The meeting will be held at the offices of Theatrical Protective Union No. 1, at 784 Eighth Avenue. William F. Canavan, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and Motion Picture Operators, of which the local union is a branch, said yesterday that he expected an amicable settlement.

Stagehand agreements also expire on Labor Day in Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati, Washington, New Haven and Hartford. In each case they are a matter of local negotiation. Contracts with the musicians' union also expired in New York this year, but have been renewed for another three years.

ASKS FIGHT ON BILLBOARDS

Architects' Institute Urges Chapters in All States to Join in Drive.

The American Institute of Architects sent an appeal yesterday to its seventy chapters to work for the abolition by State Legislatures of billboards along the countryside throughout the United States, restricting them to the commercial districts of towns and cities. The chapters are asked to organize public opinion to check "the selfish desecration of the landscape," the institute adding that the number of signboards, billboards and other advertising devices along roads, highways and boulevards was increasing steadily.

Declaring that the problem should be solved by each State, the institute asked its chapters to cooperate with public authorities, societies and individuals now engaged in combating billboards. William S. Parker, president of the Boston chapter, it was announced, has been appointed to represent the institute on the Massachusetts Billboard Law Defense Committee. A decision from the United States Supreme Court on the constitutional status of billboards in that State is now pending, the institute said, which will prove a precedent for all States.

Y., will be given this evening by the Operatic Art Association, of which Albert Deichler is director. The orchestra will be directed by Rachel Leon.

The cross of the Legion of Honor has just been awarded to Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist, according to a cable received from Paris yesterday by Arthur Judson, concert manager. Mr. Szigeti, who has not played in this country for two seasons, returns this Fall for his fifth American tour. On Oct. 19 and 26 he will be soloist with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Erich Kleiber.

Thrilling flashes of airplane fighting in the clouds and magnificent scenes of a Zeppelin supposed to be bombing London during the war counteract silly episodes in the early stages of "Hell's Angels," the costly audible film which young Howard Hughes presented last night at both the Criterion and Gaiety Theatres.

This widely heralded production is said to have cost $4,000,000, which amount includes a silent film version, most of which was shelved because just when it was finished sound overtook Hollywood.

In every instance so soon as the producer forgets Helen, the flaxen-haired creature, and takes to the war, his film is absorbing and exciting. But while she is the centre of attraction the picture is a most mediocre piece of work. In fact the less said about these glimpses and those in a student's rooms at Oxford the better, for after being filled with admiration for the Zeppelin episode and those dealing with two brothers going forth to bomb a German ammunition dump in an enemy plane, it seems all the more strange that they should have been included in the production.

The first view of the Zeppelin prowling through the clouds in the direction of the British metropolis starts the suspense. An excellent conception of what goes on in a Zeppelin, together with an idea of its enormous bulk, comes to the screen. The framework inside the dirigible is seen, and also her engines. Then the director, Mr. Hughes, switches his camera to the British listening post below, and later one perceives the airplanes, like hornets, soaring up to give battle to the airship.

One of the Zeppelin's younger officers has been a student at Oxford. He is ordered to get into the small car that swings from the Zeppelin to direct the bombing. The commander orders him to tell him over the telephone when the dirigible is over Trafalgar Square, but the young officer has not the heart to give the correct information. He waits until they are over the Serpentine in Hyde Park and then gives the signal. The bombs drop in the water and the young officer telephones up that everything has been demolished in Trafalgar Square. The commander is so enthusiastic over this report that while the ship is virtually at a standstill, her engines being stopped, he orders all the bombs to be dropped and the small body of water is perceived being churned up by the great explosions.

By that time the airplanes are fast overtaking the Zeppelin's altitude. The commander is told that the hanging car is holding back the speed of his airship and he then instructs one of his men to sever the cable holding the car. The man starts to do it, but he hasn't the nerve. So, after saying, "For Kaiser and Fatherland," the commander himself cuts the cable and the car hurtles to its doom.

Still the commander finds that the buzzing British planes are too fast for his ship and he forthwith orders all unnecessary machinery to be thrown overboard. Even that is not enough, and men and officers are asked to sacrifice themselves. They stand rigid and leap into the dark night, their forms turning and twisting as they plunge to their death. Finally the commander believes that he has eluded all the planes, but soon he discovers that there is one fleet small machine hovering above him. This plane dives and the pilot sacrifices himself by crashing into the Zeppelin and the great warship of the skies falls a huge mass of flame.

Here the picture has an intermission, and when the second half begins Monte and Roy Rutledge, two British brothers, are perceived with their squadron. Some of these scenes are a little too wild, and also Helen enters again on the screen, this time flirting with a British captain and rebuffing Roy, who is in love with her. The excitement, however, takes on a fresh impetus when Monte and Roy volunteer to go forth in the captured German plane to bomb the enemy ammunition dump. From then on the picture keeps up a fast pace, with the scenes of the brothers in the plane, the sight of their successful bombing and the pursuit by Richtohofen's air circus. These air scenes, with the crashing of flaming planes, have never been matched on the screen.

The outstanding performance in this picture is that of Lucien Prival, who acts the rôle of Baron von Kranz, a German General. In a sequence when the brothers are captured his work is unusually fine. Ben Lyon as Monte does well in most of his scenes, but nobody would ever suspect him of being British. The same applies to James Hall, who plays Roy Rutledge. Jean Harlow figures as the faithless Helen.

The Lawyer and the Chorus Girl.

ANYBODY'S WOMAN, with Ruth Chatterton, Clive Brook, Paul Lukas, Huntly Gordon, Virginia Hammond, Tom Patricola, Juliette Compton, Cecil Cunningham, Charles Gerrard, Harvey Clark, Sidney Bracey and Gertrude Sutton, based on a story by Gouverneur Morris, directed by Dorothy Arzner; "Garden of Girls," a Boris Petroff stage revue. At the Paramount.

In their enthusiasm for the idea of electric fans carrying voices across hotel courtyards, those concerned with the producing of "Anybody's Woman," the talking picture now at both the Times Square Paramount and the Brooklyn Paramount, favor coincidences that are absurdly unconvincing. This more or less ingenious notion can be accepted in an early episode, but when it crops up again in the climactic sequence the result is emphatically disappointing.

This film, which is based on a story by Gouverneur Morris, has, however, in its cast those intelligent players, Clive Brook and Ruth Chatterton, and therefore all is not lost. Paul Lukas also gives a clever performance.

In her direction Dorothy Arzner reveals no little care, but there are many moments when the incidents lack imagination. It becomes a case of preaching during many of the scenes, when they might have been tinctured with a suggestion or two from Sir James M. Barrie's play, "What Every Woman Knows." The story is invariably amateurish in its writing and its development. And even Miss Chatterton, who enjoys the opportunity of costuming herself in several attractive creations, is inconsistent in her speech. At times her voice is intentionally hard and her choice of words suited to the rôle, but on other occasions she adopts a cultured tone and suddenly acquires an enviable vocabulary.

Miss Chatterton plays a chorus girl named Pansy Gray, whose outlook on life is dismal. Apparently the only man she has ever respected was a lawyer who had defended her when she was apprehended for appearing on the stage in an inextensive costume.

The picture opens with a glimpse of Clive Brook as Neil Dunlap in a thoroughly intoxicated condition. His memory leaves him on such occasions. It is while he is mumbling in an uncertain fashion to Gustav Saxon (Mr. Lukas), a self-made man of wealth, about the wives he has divorced, that he is impelled to listen to Pansy's discourse which he is supposed to hear distinctly only when an electric fan is turned in the right direction.

In his drunken state Dunlap is so much impressed by what Pansy says to her feminine friend that he and Saxon invite her to come to their room. Dunlap believes that a woman like Pansy would do more for a man than any of the wives he has had. So he asks Pansy to marry him, and following a brief hesitation she accepts. Dunlap is, as might be presumed, the lawyer who defended Pansy.

When Dunlap appears next morning he does not remember anything that happened while he was inebriated. Pansy tells him that she is his wife and eventually Dunlap is convinced. Later in his home town he invites a number of friends and their wives to dinner to meet Pansy. The men appear, but their wives excuse their absence on the grounds of indisposition.

There is a silly incident at the dinner, and Pansy, who has been doing all she can to keep Dunlap from drinking, takes too much to drink herself. Various contretemps occur and finally Pansy leaves Dunlap. He finds life miserable without her, and finally the electric fan is brought into action again and Dunlap hears his wife's voice while she is having dinner on a terrace with Saxon.

'DANCING SWEETIES' SHOWN

DANCING SWEETIES, with Sue Carol, Grant Withers, Edna Murphy, Tully Marshall, Kate Price and Eddie Philips; based on a story by Harry Fried, directed by Ray Enright; program of Vitaphone short films, including newsreel. At the Warners' Strand.

What might have been a poignant genre study of dance hall habitués and the forces motivating their lives results only in an unskillfully managed production known as "Dancing Sweeties," the audible film at the Strand.

With a plot good enough on which to base a substantial drama, Ray Enright, who directed the story, proceeded to drag in the accepted film devices, "gagging" intervals with silly comedy and stupid sentiment and allowing trite dialogue to crop up frequently.

Bill Cleaver, winner of many silver cups for his feats on the dance floor, meets Molly O'Neil at a contest and with her as a partner triumphs over his rival. A couple who were to have been wedded at the dance hall that evening decide to disappoint the management. Cleaver and Molly agree to take their place and so escape their nagging parents. They acquire the apartment and furniture being awarded at the dance contest to the newlyweds. They are married and proceed to their new home after bidding farewell to their parents. But there is no peace for Cleaver and he leaves his wife, who is unable to do the more intricate of the terpsichorean steps, and wins more cups with a former partner. Cleaver and Molly are divorced. Later they are reunited and both return to their first abode.

The film touches only slightly the pathos that might have permeated its reels, and the injection of low comedy passages makes for a discordant hodgepodge that fringes on the old theme song dramas and skirts the ridiculous too often.

JEANNE AUBERT SUED HERE OVER GEM BILL

Court Grants Attachment on Property in Action Over $10,273 Claim by Jewelers.

Mrs. Nelson Morris, who was Jeanne Aubert, French music-hall star, and is the wife of a member of the Chicago family of meat packers, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by Henry Menke on an assigned claim of Lebolt & Co., jewelers, for $10,273 for gems bought here last August. An attachment against her property on the ground that she was a non-resident of New York was granted by Justice Carew. Mrs. Morris arrived Tuesday on the Europa.

The attachment was served by Deputy Sheriff Goldstein on the Bank of New York Company branch at Sixty-third Street and Madison Avenue, where it was said she had seventy shares of stock of the Kansas City Stock Yards Company entrusted to the bank, worth $7,000, and on the Parish Safe Deposit Company there, where she has other property deposited. The New York creditor also took proceedings against Mrs. Morris in Paris, it was said, and attached $12,000 at the Guaranty Trust Company.

Mrs. Morris is now receiving $200 a month alimony from her husband pending a suit brought in Paris for a divorce. Mr. Morris got a $2,000 verdict in April against a French music hall which employed his wife without his consent, because the French law requires a wife's obedience to her husband.

GOODERHAM MISSES MARK

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Thisbe, skippered by William P. Barrows, successfully defended the historic Canada's Cup off here today, winning the fifth and deciding race of the international series by the slight advantage of 20 seconds over Quest, Fife-designed Canadian eight-meter, with Norman Gooderham at the helm.

In a breath-taking contest twice around a triangular course for a total of twenty-one miles, the Royal Canadian Yacht Club challenger built up a comfortable lead and seemed a certainty to finish first.

Then her lead was wiped out on the second last leg, a spinnaker run, during which the American defender of the Rochester Yacht Club not only made up the Canadian's 300-yard lead but rounded the buoy first at the turn, where the United States yacht had a 14-second margin on the challenger, which was about a boat-length.

Thisbe Increases Lead.

Both close hauled to reach the finish line, the rival craft bowling along at close to a ten-knot clip. Thisbe, higher on the wind, continued to open up the gap. At the half-way point of the three and a half mile leg the American skipper had eked out a three-length lead and by the time he crossed he had dropped the Quest six lengths astern, taking the gun twenty seconds ahead of the Canadian.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for Gooderham and his Canadian crew. Except for a fluke on the very first leg of the race, when Gooderham overshot his mark in the haze that dropped about the horizon, the Canadian entry outsailed the American yacht, which is a Crane-designed eight-meter. For some unaccountable reason, the defender today lost ground badly where she had formerly been superior, at pointing and reaching.

For four of the six legs of the race, and for almost seventeen of the twenty-one miles, the Canadian, outpointing the American, had slowly amassed a lead of quarter of a mile.

Thisbe Overhauls Quest.

But then Thisbe, traveling swiftly before a light breeze on the second last leg and the last spinnaker run of the race, not only overhauled the Canadian boat but passed her a quarter of a mile from the buoy that marked the start of the home leg.

Thisbe and Quest both close-hauled on the reach and sailed down the home stretch at ten knots, but Thisbe managed to cling to her lead and crossed the finish line twenty seconds ahead of the Canadian. The finish times were: Thisbe, 4:15:57; Quest, 4:16:17.

This unsuccessful attempt to lift the trophy marked the third time the Royal Canadian Yacht Club has failed to regain the trophy captured by the Rochester Yacht Club with Irondequoit back in 1903.

Canada First Won Cup.

The trophy, now known as the Canada's Cup, was originally the prize donated by the city of Toledo for a series of races between the United States and Canada. The Canada, representing the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, won the series, and the boat's owners then presented the trophy, under a deed of gift naming it the Canada's Cup, as a permanent international trophy to be sailed for by clubs of the Yacht Racing Union of the Great Lakes.

Since then there have been six series of races for the trophy. In 1899 the Genesee, built for the Rochester Yacht Club but representing the Chicago Yacht Club, lifted the cup by vanquishing the defender Beaver at Toronto. In 1901 the cup went back to Canada, the Canadian challenger Invader defeating the Chicago defender Cadillac.

The Irondequoit, built from public subscription by the Rochester Yacht Club, lost the first two races to the Strathcona in the 1903 series, but under the guidance of a new skipper, who rushed from New York to take the helm after the second race, captured the next three to take the cup to Rochester for the first time, where it has remained ever since.

In 1905 the Iroquois of Rochester triumphed in a keenly contested series, and two years later the Seneca repulsed the challenge of the Adele.

BILLIARDS IN AIR TODAY.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—The exhibition billiard flight in the Curtiss-Wright giant Condor plane by Charles C. Peterson, St. Louis billiard star, over the Lambert-St. Louis flying field today was postponed until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning due to engineering changes which were made in the plane.

Everything was pronounced in readiness by the engineers tonight for this novel flight, which will be over East St. Louis, Ill., a distance of twenty miles. Peterson will make an attempt to set speed records for billiard play in the air.

The flight is being made under the auspices of the National Billiard Association of America with the cooperation of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation. Captain Frank Courtney, famous war aviator, will pilot the plane, which has a wing spread of 93 feet and a capacity for twenty-two persons.

YACHT ROBIN VICTOR IN CLASS Q EVENT

Priscilla III Shows Way in Eight-Meter Division With 10-Minute Margin Over Amethyst.

Special to The New York Times.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 15.—A leaden gray sky overhead and intermittent showers provided oil skin weather for the crews manning the 244 yachts sailing today off Marblehead in the second Corinthian Yacht Club midsummer race.

The gray-hulled Robin, the former Puritan Cup winner Norn, after rounding the weather mark about a length astern of Grafton Smith's yellow double-ender Northeaster V, ran by the Smith twenty-five-rater half way down the spinnaker leg home and won the Class Q race by a scant eighteen seconds. The pair of leading boats stood to the eastward and had a wide margin on the southern squadron out to the weather mark.

Frank Paine shifted from the eights to the Q's and was at the helm of Edward Abbott's new Falcon. Both the Abbott boat and Ray Hunt's old Falcon stood well out to leeward and looked like winners when the wind hauled to the south for a short while on the last part of the beat. Before the lift up to the mark could change the battle front the wind settled back in the southeast and the eastward squadron bowled along under a freshening breeze.

Johnson de Forest, Long Island Sound skipper, sailed his Priscilla III to victory over the eight-meters. The New York boat sailed home with a ten-minute margin on the Amethyst. The other New York eight-meter, Psyche, finished in next to last position, sixteen minutes after the Priscilla III.

SHAMROCK V TO GET ENTIRE MAST TODAY

YACHT TIES UP TO HER PIER

By JAMES ROBBINS.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 15.—A wooden tower to take the place of a derrick was built on the Electric Boat Company's pier in Groton today in order to set up the top section of the mast of Shamrock V, Sir Thomas Lipton's America's Cup challenger. Joining the top part with the lower, which was used as a jury mast on the trip across the Atlantic, presents a task.

When the masts of the American defense boats were stepped, it merely was a case of getting a sling on them from a derrick, placing tackle at another point of the sticks, raising them up and dropping them into the boats. These masts are all of one section.

Shamrock's stick offers a different problem. The top has to be raised up 100 feet, the height of the lower section, held perpendicular, and then carefully lowered into the fishpole socket. Then the two ends have to be bolted together with some sixty bolts at the 100-foot height. The top piece will be stepped tomorrow.

Bulky Fittings Removed.

Shamrock was moved from anchorage to pier this morning, and there her galley stove and the bulky fittings used on the trip here were removed. Her small jury mast was unstepped. With the yacht alongside the pier, the work of rerigging her will go ahead steadily.

It was not until Sir Thomas's steam yacht Erin had moved away from the pier, after unloading spars, sails and rigging for the racer, that Shamrock could be berthed. The Erin did not proceed through Long Island Sound to New York last night after leaving the pier. A heavy rain with fog set in, and the Erin anchored down the harbor, where she loomed up this morning during a lightening of the mist.

Lipton to Live on Erin.

Sir Thomas, who arrives in New York tomorrow on the Leviathan, is to live on the Erin until after the international races next month.

Erin is the most commodious yacht he ever has had, being 100 tons larger than his original Erin, which came here during his first three cup-hunting attempts, starting in 1899. Her size almost dwarfs the yacht Victoria, which he had under charter during the races ten years ago.

The present Erin has two huge decks, the upper running almost her length and being conspicuously free from fittings. Sir Thomas will be able to entertain extensively on her, and she is expected to carry a large number of guests during the cup races.

About 4 o'clock this afternoon Commodore Vincent Astor of the New York Yacht Club arrived in New London Harbor aboard his yacht Nourmahal and paid an official visit to Colonel Duncan F. D. Neill, Sir Thomas's representative here.

Colonel Neill and Commodore Astor visited the Shamrock V., Captain Heard greeting the pair as they stepped on the sloop's deck, and after the commodore had inspected the Shamrock above the water line the trio descended aft and spent a half hour below deck. Commodore Astor then boarded his steamer and left port about 7 o'clock this evening.

PEGGY WEE TO COMPETE FOR STAR CLASS TITLE

Named to Represent Western L. I. Sound Fleet in International Races on Chesapeake Bay.

Entries in the major Star Class championship yacht races were made at the recent semi-annual meeting of the Western Long Island Sound Fleet, which was held at the Arts and Trades Club, it was announced yesterday.

Peggy Wee, owned by Arthur Knapp Jr. of the Bayside Yacht Club, will represent the fleet in the international star races to be held at the Gibson Island Yacht Club on Chesapeake Bay late next month. She made the best showing in the elimination trials.

G. W. Elder's Iscyra of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club, the runner-up in the eliminations, will be sent to Havana next Winter, as will John R. Robinson's Little Bear, which finished fourth.

B. L. Linkfield's Molly O of the Bayside Yacht Club, and Robert Reybine's Orion of the Larchmont Club, which finished third and fifth, will be the representatives in the Atlantic Coast championships, which will be held next week off Southport, Conn. Mr. Linkfield was entitled to send his boat to Havana, but preferred to compete off Southport.

It was voted to eliminate the old rig of the star boats next year. Some now have the old, and some the new.

By VERNON VAN NESS.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Aug. 15.—The classic Gold Cup race, probably the greatest speedboat contest staged in this country outside of international conflicts, will have its twenty-eighth running on the waters of the historic Shrewsbury River tomorrow. Only seven boats will compete, the eighth one, Miss Columbia, veteran of the fleet, having been damaged to such an extent that she cannot take part.

Though tonight, with the Venetian parade of yachts through the brilliantly lighted course, there was a hint of more rain in the air, it was officially prophesied that there would be fair going for the speedboats tomorrow, and if the weather holds good it is very likely that upward of 30,000 persons will line the banks of the river to witness the Gold Cup races and the others on the program.

Miss Columbia, which had been laid on the shelf for several years only to be resurrected this year by Theodore Hall of the Red Bank Yacht Club, reconditioned and fitted out for the big test, is out of the race.

Crankshaft Is Broken.

Going through a trial spin less than twenty-four hours before the scheduled start of the first of the three heats of the race, Miss Columbia suffered a broken crankshaft. Despite every effort to put her in shape again, it was found that the engine could not function, and she finally was officially withdrawn.

One other accident threatened further to cut down the field. This was when Californian, being sent over the course in a whirlwind trial, struck some submerged object and ripped off the propeller. However, quick action by her owner, Richard Loynes, resulted in making repairs, and the West Coast boat will go to the starting line tomorrow.

Richard F. Hoyt, New York sportsman and the defender of the Gold Cup, which he won last year, was picked to retain his laurels tomorrow and with the same boat, Imp, with which he took the coveted trophy a year ago.

As things stood tonight, Imp will compete against the Redbanker, owned by Commodore Gerald Holbrook and Joseph E. Banfield; Hotsy-Totsy, owned by Victor Kliesrath; Scotty Too, owned by Sam Blunsford; Californian, owned by Richard Loynes; El Lagartito, owned by George Reis, and Miss Philadelphia, owned by John E. Shibe.

Motor Capacity Restricted.

The distance of the Gold Cup is ninety miles, run in three heats of thirty miles each. The race must be finished on the day it is started, under the rules. Each boat is restricted in motor capacity to one of 625 cubic inches.

The Gold Cup race is in itself only the outstanding event of a long list of races for all types of powered boats in the two-day regatta. While focusing the attention of the motor boat world on the regatta, the Gold Cup races do not overshadow the remainder of the program.

There will be thirteen events on the card tomorrow, and on Sunday there will be seventeen more, with the National Sweepstakes the crowning event of the Sabbath Day. All told, there are more than 250 boats of all types, the powerful Gold Cups, the speedy international class boats, the 151-cubic-inch hydroplanes, the most picturesque of all of them, and the numberless outboards. The latter class dominates the program and nearly every well-known driver in the country is present for the races.

Red Bank's capacity for entertaining her horde of guests was taxed to the limit, and hotels and boarding houses were bulging with their guests tonight.

Oxford Golf Captain Returns Here.

Robert H. Baugh Jr. of Birmingham, Ala., the first American to captain an Oxford University golf team, returned to New York yesterday, after three years study as a Rhodes scholar at the English institution. The Associated Press reported Baugh said he expects to go into business either here or in Birmingham, and probably will enter the national amateur championship, Sept. 22.

DETROIT R. C. WINS FOUR-OARED TITLE

Beats Dons by Six Lengths in 140-Pound Junior Race of Canadian Henley Regatta.

CRANE, PRINCETON, VICTOR

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 15 (CP).—The Detroit Rowing Club won the final in the 140-pound junior four-oared class in the Royal Canadian Henley regatta today, and the West Side crew of Buffalo captured the title in the junior eights division.

The Argonauts of Toronto, having scratched, left the four-oared race to three contestants. It was close for a mile, the Toronto Dons taking a slight lead. But at the mile mark Detroit swept past, and from this point it was a procession, the United States crew winning by six lengths from the Dons, with the Hamilton Leanders third, six lengths further back.

Detroit's winning time for the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths was 7 minutes 41 2-5 seconds.

In the eight-oarded event, West Side and Lachine on the inside courses, got away bow to bow ahead of the others, but could not shake off Detroit. At the mile the Argonauts had pulled up somewhat, and with 300 yards to go all four shells were lapped together. Lachine faltered here, West Side taking first, Detroit second, Lachine third and the Argonauts fourth. The winning time was 7:51 2-5.

Carnegie and Cameron Win.

The 140-pound junior doubles went to A. Carnegie and L. Cameron, Detroit, who beat R. Fraser and W. Dalton, Hamilton Leanders, in 8:07.

D. B. Crane of Princeton University won the junior singles from J. Reed of the Argonauts in 8:52. A. Dean, Argonauts, and E. Konrad, Buffalo West Sides, did not start.

The Princeton sculler, Crane, was distanced in the association singles, finishing fourth. The winner was R. S. Richards, Winnipeg, who won by three lengths, with G. Shaw, Argonauts, second, and J. Marentette, Detroit, third.

Buffalo Crew Is Victor.

Other events involving United States crews included the junior fours, won by the Buffalo West Sides with Ottawa second and the Dons third; and the junior doubles, won by McBrearty and Hutton of Detroit with Cornell and Cline of the Leanders second.

A. Carnegie of Detroit finished second in a field of four in the 140-pound junior singles won by J. Reed of the Argonauts, by a length and a half.

Detroit	3	3	1	16
Leanders	2	2	1	11
West Siders	3	0	0	9

AMERICAN CREWS SCORE IN BELGIUM

QUINCY OARSMEN ALSO WIN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIEGE, Belgium, Aug. 15.—The Penn Athletic Club's senior crew demonstrated its form by winning easily in the first heat of the eight-oared contest for the European rowing championship today. Denmark took second place in this heat.

Tomorrow in the semi-final the Philadelphia crew will meet France. Italy will oppose Poland and Denmark will be against Yugoslavia. The final race among the three winners will be held Sunday.

The American four-oared crew from Quincy, Ill., also qualified today by defeating Hungary and Czechoslovakia and will row against Denmark in the semi-final tomorrow.

The races are being held on the Meuse over a straight course that begins at Maghin Bridge and finishes in front of the Electricity Building of the Liege Exposition grounds.

The times for the races today were bad because of stormy weather. The Philadelphia crew in practice yesterday covered the 200-meter course in 5 minutes 54 seconds, though the best official time today was 6 minutes 3 seconds.

Penn A. C. Officers Jubilant.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—Members of the Penn Athletic Club rowing committee, headed by Jack Kelly, former Olympic single sculls champion, and Henry Penn Burke, president of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, learned with joy of the crew's winning heat over Denmark today at Liege, Belgium.

As soon as word reached here a bulletin was posted in the lobby of the clubhouse, and Mr. Burke said: "That is part of the victory journey. They must row in the semi-finals tomorrow. Barring accidents, I look for Captain Joe Dougherty's crew to win the international championship on Sunday."

According to a cablegram from Coach Frank Muller, the crew rowed in the same order today as when it broke the American Henley record on the Schuylkill May 31 in beating the Columbia junior varsity.

The Quincy (Ill.) four, which also won its heat today, with one exception is the same crew that lifted the national championship at Springfield, Mass., last year. George Hussong has taken Art Wegg's place at bow, the others being Roy Gibbs, No. 2; Ray Bennett, No. 3; George Meyers, stroke, and Chet Holtman, coxswain.

KAMRATH BEATEN IN JUNIOR TENNIS

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 15 (AP).—Two upsets featured the semi-final round play in the national junior tennis championships today when James Bobbitt, Pasadena, Cal., defeated Karl Kamrath, Austin, Texas, seeded No. 1 player, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2, in the junior singles, and Jack Lynch, Taft, Cal., defeated Frank Parker, Milwaukee, second seeded player, 5—7, 6—2, 6—2, in the boys' singles.

Lynch's victory over Parker was a decided surprise. Parker has defeated Cohn, the boys' national champion, three times this year.

Wilmer Hines, Columbia, S. C., and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Ga., won the national junior doubles championship, defeating a pair of 17-year-old Santa Monica (Cal.) boys, Billy Doeg and Larry Myers, 6—3, 8—6, 6—4.

The boys' doubles championship went to Frankie Parker of Milwaukee and George Boynton of Atlanta, who upset Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Cal., and Jack Lynch, Taft, Cal., 6—2, 6—4.

LOTT MAY BE LOST TO DAVIS CUP TEAM

Tennis Star Announces Plan to Abandon International Play for Tournaments Here.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 15.—George M. Lott of Chicago, fourth ranking player of the country and member of the Davis Cup team for the last three years, will not represent the United States in the international matches next Summer, if he abides by the decision which he made known today at the Westchester Country Club.

According to the Chicagoan, who has played in the challenge round singles for the last two years against France, he intends to enter the advertising business at the end of the current season and will henceforth confine his tennis to tournaments in this country, believing that the Davis Cup matches require too much time. Should Lott refuse to accept an invitation to try for the team next year, the United States will in all likelihood be represented by two new singles players, for it is believed that William Tilden has definitely retired from international competition.

Watts Gunn Wins Golf Title.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15 (AP).—Watts Gunn of Pittsburgh won the Western Pennsylvania amateur golf championship at the Oakmont Country Club today. He defeated Fred Weppner, Pittsburgh, 2 up, in the eighteen-hole final match. It was the thirteenth annual tourney.

YOUNGSTERS GAIN AT GREEN MEADOW

BIRCH ALSO A SURVIVOR

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

HARRISON, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Youngsters are having a great time in the Green Meadow invitation tournament this week. With the first two rounds out of the way, they almost dominate the situation.

Of the four golfers left for the semi-final round tomorrow, three have not yet attained voting age. The only veteran left in the running is C. Ward Birch, representative of the Hubbard Heights Club in Bridgeport, who attained considerable prominence earlier in the season by defeating George Voigt in the metropolitan amateur championship.

His surviving companions are Robert A. Moffett, holder of the metropolitan junior title; Charles H. Mayo Jr., Long Island junior standard bearer, and Richard Chapman, interscholastic champion.

The one who had the hardest time of all surviving was Chapman, who won his second round match from Jack Graham, the Westchester junior champion, after being three down at the turn. The outlook for Chapman was pretty dismal at that point, but he succeeded in squaring the match by the time he and Graham had played four more holes.

Graham Miscues on 13th.

Graham made things easier for him by shanking his second shot into the brook on the thirteenth. That squared the match, and Chapman won the next two to take the lead for the first time since the first hole.

The match ended on the seventeenth, with Chapman a winner by 3 and 1, where he put a wooden shot a yard from the pin and got a birdie 3.

Moffett's victories were easily won. In the morning he played the first nine holes in thirty-three strokes to be 4 up on his opponent, E. A. M. Cobden of Apawamis, whom he eventually beat by 4 and 3. Later he defeated Walter Rothenberg of Wolf Hollow, 6 and 5.

Birch Has Two Struggles.

Birch had two struggles, going an extra hole with Harry Scharff in the first round and being carried to the last hole by F. J. Beger of Shackamaxon in the second round. Mayo's victims were Melvin Newman of Quaker Ridge and A. Brodbeck of Westchester, former New York State champion. Newman gave him no trouble, but Brodbeck did. It was anybody's match until Brodbeck started taking three putts on the greens.

Where he should have been 1 up coming to the last hole he was 1 down. He almost won the last hole to square the match, for his putt hit the back of the cup and jumped out.

SARAZEN'S 67 LEADS IN ST. PAUL TOURNEY

New Yorker Five Under Par for Initial 18 Holes of $10,000 Open Event.

FARRELL, HACKBARTH NEXT

Card 68s to Lead Goodman, Cooper and Manero by One Stroke—H. Smith Has 70.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 15 (AP).—Gene Sarazen of New York led a spectacular assault on par over the Keller County course today and finished with a one-shot margin in the competition for the $10,000 St. Paul open golf championship.

The stocky New York professional scored a brilliant 67, five strokes under par, which not only netted him his scant advantage, but gave him a new competitive record for the course.

One stroke behind at the end of the quarter-way juncture of the 72-hole medal contest were Johnny Farrell of New York, like Sarazen, a former national open champion, and Otto Hackbarth, the veteran professional from Cincinnati, who made his first appearance in championship play in three years.

Manero Misses Putt for 68.

Three other well-known shotmakers scored 69s to land among the leaders. They were Johnny Goodman, the Omaha youth who upset Bobby Jones in the national amateur at Pebble Beach last year; Tony Manero of White Plains, N. Y., and Harry Cooper of Chicago. Manero missed a five-foot putt for a 68 on the final green.

Four others toured the 6,552-yard course in 70s. They were Horton Smith of the Cragston (N. Y.) Yacht and Country Club, one of the favorites, who went out with a fine 33 and then slumped slightly to take a 37 on the way back; Charles Lacey, the young Briton from Clementson, N. J., who threatened the national open field during its second round; Harold McSpaden, a dark horse from Bethel, Kan., and Willard Hutchinson, thee lanky professional from Chicago.

Four more of the favorites scored par-equaling 72s. They were Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour, both of Detroit; Bill Mehlhorn of New York and Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del. Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul, national amateur champion, experienced considerable trouble, but ended his journey with a 74, two over par.

Sarazen Collects Five Birdies.

Sarazen's score today was not only the most brilliant, but the steadiest. He collected five birdies and played the rest of the holes in par figures, going out in 33 strokes and coming back in 34. He hit his shots well off the tee, his irons were true and his putts, while not sensational, were deadly.

Because of today's low scores, indications were that 154 strokes would be necessary to crowd into the final two rounds of play. Another 18-hole round will be played tomorrow, after which all but the low 64 and ties will be scratched for the final 36-hole drive on Sunday.

GOVERNOR TO SEE THE RACE

By BRYAN FIELD.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The long-awaited third meeting between William Woodward's Gallant Fox and Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone will take place in the sixty-first running of The Travers tomorrow.

In the midst of the pre-race excitement, which seems to assure a crowd of 25,000, there is a wide difference of opinion as to the outcome despite Gallant Fox's unparalleled string of stake victories.

Gallant Fox has won in succession the Wood Memorial, Preakness, Kentucky Derby, Belmont Stakes, Dwyer Stakes and Arlington Classic to amass a total of nearly $275,000 which, with his 2-year-old winnings, makes him the second greatest money-winner in America.

It was in the Belmont that the two met under level weights with Gallant Fox winning decisively. This was a reversal of the outcome in the Futurity of last year, when Whichone won, thus clinching the juvenile championship, while Gallant Fox was third.

Many Support Whichone.

Many admirers of the Whitney horse have felt that he did not show his best form in the Belmont and were ready to back him substantially against Gallant Fox in the Dwyer, when he suffered a quarter crack, forcing his withdrawal. Whichone continues to receive heavy support.

Now completely recovered, Whichone is ready to do his best. He, too, has run six races this year to earn slightly more than $55,000. Aside from his second in the Belmont Stakes, Whichone has won the Ballot Handicap, the Withers Stakes and the Saranac, Whitney and Miller, the last-named three at this meeting.

These victories cause him to pick up a six-pound weight penalty, which again will send him into action against Gallant Fox under level weights at 126 pounds. Gallant Fox rules the favorite at 4 to 5, with Whichone listed at 6 to 5.

The Travers has a guaranteed value of $25,000, is at a mile and a quarter, and both horses have shown that they can go this distance, Gallant Fox having the better record back of him as he won both the Belmont and the Dwyer at a mile and a half.

The Derby and the Classic were at a mile and a quarter. Earl Sande, who piloted Gallant Fox in all his stake victories, again will be in the saddle, and Raymond Workman, contract rider for Mr. Whitney, will have the leg up on Whichone.

Is a Two-Horse Race.

Three horses are named in addition to Gallant Fox and Whichone, but two of them are doubtful starters and none is given the slightest chance among handicappers to run second, not to speak of winning. Seldom has there been a race which so patently lay between two horses, and, needless to say, partisan claims are positive and extreme.

The rival trainers, Jim Fitzsimmons for Gallant Fox and Tom Healy for Whichone, content themselves with saying that their charges are in condition and will do their best. Both veterans of the game, they are firm friends and doubtless would wish each other to win were it not for their duty to their employers.

The race is to be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company over a network including Station WEAF. It is scheduled to go on the air at 4:50 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time.

RACE ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY

Governor's Derby to Be Run at Springfield (Ill.) Next Saturday.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 15.—Entries will close tomorrow for the Governor's Derby, which will be run Saturday, Aug. 23, over the one mile and a sixteenth route. Possible starters in the Derby are Reveille Boy, Morsel, Maudlin, Fetish, Jean Lafitte, Silver Cord, High Foot, Stopgap, Blind Love, Marie Stevens and Lady Sting. Reveille Boy won the last American Derby at Washington Park, beating Gallant Knight among others.

Saratoga Entries.

KURTSINGER GETS TRIPLE

Pilots Martis, Gone Away and Deedie to Successive Victories—Bosky Also Triumphs.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Jockey Charles Kurtsinger today scored his second triple of the season on a program riddled by scratches because of the heavy track conditions. The Niagara Stable's Martis, William Ziegler Jr.'s Gone Away and John P. White's Deedie, winners in succession of the last three races, were Kurtsinger's mounts.

Raymond Workman, Harry Payne Whitney's contract rider, recorded a double with Fantad and Porternesia, and Arthur Robertson, Mr. Whitney's other rider, rode the other remaining winner, Bosky, owned by the Geneseo Stable.

As Fantad also is the property of the Geneseo Stable, for which R. V. Berlie trains, Bosky's triumph aided in a double. J. Kearns also had his share of honors, as Martis and Deedie are under his charge.

Four Favorites Score.

Four of the winners were favorites and one of them a joint public choice. The charm for the good form was broken in the nightcap, however, when Marshal Field's Double Time, favorite, was beaten by Deedie.

The scheduled features were the Troy and Mohawk Claiming Stakes, both of which had their twenty-eighth running. Porternesia was the victor in the former and earned $5,275, while Martis's triumph in the Mohawk was worth $3,330.

Porternesia closed favorite at 7 to 5 after the early wagering had found him about equal choice with George D. Widener's Panetian. It was these two horses which ran it out for the victory, Porternesia winning by three lengths.

Porternesia was away well and never left the result in doubt, although Panetian hung to his pace for the first quarter. After that Porternesia bore Frank J. Buchanan's colors far to the front and at the end of the five and a half furlongs was going easily.

Panetian Has Top Weight.

The time was 1:09 and the winner was in receipt of three pounds from Panetian, which bore the top weight of 116 pounds. Quacker was third.

Martis opened at 2 to 5 and closed at 1 to 2. He was running with three others, one of them Mr. Whitney's Angry. This fellow set a very fast early pace and at one time enjoyed a lead of three lengths or more. But he stopped and finished fourth and last.

Gone Away, Kurtsinger's second winner, was a 2 to 9 choice. Gone Away ran behind the early pace set by Macedon and then went to the front. He won by three lengths, with Macedon a length and a half ahead of Dangerous, the only other starter.

Deedie was the 12 to 5 second choice and ran in front from the beginning. Double Time finished second and Bubsy C, third.

Hunt Wins Southern Checker Title.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Aug. 15 (AP).—Edwin F. Hunt, Nashville, Tenn., lawyer, won the championship of the Southern Checker Association today, after a three-hour battle with Edward Scheidt of Chapel Hill, N. C. This was the third Southern crown for Hunt, who ranks fifth nationally.

Jockey Russell Hurt in Spill.

FORT ERIE, Ont., Aug. 15 (AP).—Jockey F. Russell suffered a fractured skull in a nasty spill in the fourth race at the Fort Erie track today. He was riding Assail.

50 YEARLINGS NET $392,800 AT SALES

$25,000 PAID FOR COLT

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The largest receipts at the yearling sales this season were recorded tonight when the colts from the Himyar Stud of Phil T. Chinn were sold for a total of $392,800. Fifty head passed under the hammer and while some were owned by others, they were marketed by Chinn, as his sale for some years has been the most successful here.

When Arthur B. Hancock sold his yearlings a few days ago for the total of $345,000 it was believed that Chinn would run second, but the spirited bidding again gave the Himyar Stud vendue top honors. The average was $7,856.

Half-Brother to Isolde.

The individual which attracted this kind of bidding was by Brown Prince II out of Theodora, both imported horses. He is a brown colt, half-brother to Isolde and according to veteran horsemen is one of the best looking youngsters brought into the ring.

Brown Prince II was one of the greatest of English racers and won the Cambridgeshire, Jockey Club, New Market Spring Stakes and other great races. He is the sire of Handy Mandy, Brown Bud, Brown Flash, Brown Wizard and other horses well known in the East and West on this side of the Atlantic.

His son tonight was applauded when he entered the ring, but gave little heed to the extra noise. Engaged for the Belmont and Pimlico Futurities, the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, and the Latonia Championship, the youngster should be a credit to even such a great string as Mrs. Whitney now possesses.

Hirsch Gets High Time Colt.

Max Hirsch, trainer of a public stable, who has been active in the bidding on several nights, paid the second highest price of $17,000. The colt is a High Time out of St. Theresa. This makes the youngster a half-brother to Misstep, winner of nearly $200,000 and one of the best of American handicap horses.

J. P. Smith, Dorwood Stable trainer, bought for $16,000 a bay colt by Chicle out of Witchery. Whichone, Harry Payne Whitney's great three-year-old, is by Chicle out of Flying Witch, and as Witchery, dam of the yearling, also is out of Flying Witch, it is apparent how close the blood relationship is.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt paid $15,000 for a half-brother to Look Up, a horse not too well known in the East. But the yearling's breeding speaks for itself, as he is by Manna, out of Sweeping Glance.

An Epinard colt out of Gossip Avenue went to Dr. H. J. McCarthy's bid of $15,300 in behalf of William Ziegler Jr. The only other horse to bring $15,000 was another High Time. Fitzsimmons was the successful bidder, getting a black colt out of Chauteaubriand for $15,000. The yearling is a brother to Hypoluxo.

Fantad, at home in the heavy going, rushed into the lead, came wide around the stretch turn, swerved to the rail in the stretch, but was clear at the time and drew away to win nicely in hand. Fortunate Youth, well up from the start, was taken down in the deep going in the stretch and tired. Brown Admiral was hard ridden all the way and had no excuse. Montauk was eased up at the end.

Bosky ran as if much the best. He broke a bit slowly, went up very fast around the turn, but came wide to the best going in the stretch, where he drew out and won in a gallop. Guilder, well up from the start, held on gamely. Honey Grove moved up with a rush in the stretch and finished very fast. Chief's Warrior had no mishap. Dress Ship had plenty of early speed. Allege ran a poor race.

Porternesia, away well, was rated perfectly, saved ground and won nicely in hand. Panetian broke slowly from the outside and rushed up but weakened in the stretch. Quacker was kept close up and outgamed Kensington for the show award. The latter, away well, showed early speed, but tired badly. Backwoodsman and Prince Apollo were outrun.

Deedie, at home in the going, rushed up on the inside, raced Double Time into defeat and drew away to win nicely in hand. Double Time, away fast, showed speed for three furlongs, then tired. Bubcy was hard ridden all the way. Black Belt broke very slowly but closed a big gap. Madam Queen ran a fair race.

JEAN LAFITTE TAKES THE OAKWOOD PURSE

WHO WIN FINISHES SECOND

Coughlin Entry Improves Position Throughout to Defeat Replevin by Neck.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Keenland Stud's 3-year-old Jean Lafitte scored his second straight victory when he captured the Oakwood Purse, the featured offering on today's program at the Hawthorne race track. Who Win from J. J. Coughlin's string was second and Replevin from M. Lowenstein's Stable was third.

The Oakwood Purse, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, was run over the mile and seventy yards' journey and carried a net value of $1,100 to the winner. Jean Lafitte traveled the distance in 1:43 2-5 and was quoted in the mutuel pay-off at $3.94 for $2.

Rated along under restraint close to the leader until straightened out in the stretch run, Jean Lafitte was then sent into command and, taking a lead of three lengths, won handily by two lengths. Who Win, off slowly, gradually improved his position throughout, coming from last place to take the place money in a hard drive by a neck.

Comiskey, at 72, Celebrates His 54th Year in Baseball

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP).—Charles A. Comiskey, the Old Roman of the baseball wars, today looked back on seventy-two years of life and fifty-four years of the national game.

At his Summer home at Eagle River, Wis., Comiskey celebrated his seventy-second birthday with his son, J. Louis Comiskey, the latter's wife and their two children.

The Old Roman has spent most of the last several years in Wisconsin because of poor health, but has maintained an eager interest in baseball affairs.

DOWNPOUR DELAYS SHOW AT NEWPORT

Postponement of the Event Is the Third in Thirty-four Years of Its History.

CURTIS TO BE GUEST TODAY

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—For the third time in thirty-four years the Newport Horse Show today was postponed because of a storm. The program will be started at 9 A. M. tomorrow, regardless of conditions, and the card run through to a conclusion. That will mean forty classes will have to be judged between the opening hour and darkness.

It is probable that the morning program will present few obstacles, since the condition of the show ring undoubtedly will deter a number of exhibitors from taking chances with their charges. While the county fair grounds are on sandy soil, which drains readily, the turf will be sodden at the best and quickly cut up.

All of the more important classes of the exhibition, including the championships, must be decided during the afternoon, the grand finale being the High-Wayman Cup for the best horse in the show.

There had been no intention of a postponement until shortly after midday, when a torrential downpour flooded ring, stables and everything else at the grounds.

At a hurriedly called conference of the horse show committee it was decided that it would be unwise to proceed with the show, exhibitors agreeing with the committee.

Many notables have attended the Newport horse show in more than three decades of its history and in the boxes tomorrow there will be the Vice President of the United States, Charles Curtis; the Governor of Rhode Island, Norman S. Case, and the Mayor of Newport, Mortimer A. Sullivan. It is planned for the officials to arrive during the middle of the afternoon, just before the judging of the championship classes begins.

BRITISH POLO TEAM HERE FOR CUP PLAY

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Optimistic and anxious for dry weather so that they could start hard practice work at once, the main body of England's team for the International Polo Challenge Cup matches arrived here last night aboard the Aquitania and joined their advance guard and ponies at Westbury, L. I., where next month they ride out against America at the Meadow Brook Club.

Captain Charles H. Tremayne, team leader, and five companions landed from the big liner just before dinner last evening. On the pier to greet them were their team-mates, Gerald Balding and Captain Maurice Kingscote, master of horse, of their own party, and F. S. O'Reilly, secretary of the United States Polo Association.

In the British party, besides the team leader, were Lewis Lacey, Captain C. T. I. Roark, Aidan Roark, Captain Richard George and Lieutenant Humphrey Guinness. As fast as the customs details could be arranged, the party left for Long Island, anxious for the start of practice.

Need Plenty of Work.

"We feel that we have a good team," said Captain Tremayne, who has been working with its formation for more than a year. "We honestly believe it to be the best British team to play since the war. The men are in shape, though we are short of work. We need work and plenty of it.

"For the start of practice here we shall line up with Captain George, Gerald Balding, Captain Roark and Lewis Lacey in that order. It remains to be seen whether there will be any changes before the start of the matches.

"I do not know when we shall really start. We want to go as soon as possible, but the start of real work, of course, is up to Captain Kingscote. When he says the ponies are ready for us, we are ready for the start. I believe he has planned for some light pony work on Monday or Tuesday, with perhaps a formal start on Thursday of next week. We shouldn't want any one to see us in those first games, for they will be merely pony contests.

Will Try American Polo.

"Yes, we are going to play American polo. At least, we are going to try it. You ask why, in practice abroad, our team has not run up such scores as yours has in practice over here. Well, for one thing, we play only six-period polo over there, you know. Then, for another, the weather was not good. We are very anxious for good weather here so that we can develop our speed."

Lacey, who has been here four or five times, joined in to remark that he believed even the atmosphere on this side was better for fast, high-scoring polo.

"Your mallet feels more whippy and I think you yourself feel better in dry weather over here," said the veteran, who has been numbered among the greatest backs of the game.

Lacey told of his passing through England on the way to Spain for polo last Spring, and said that he joined the British expedition on the spur of the moment when they asked him to try out, not having thought of playing when he started for England. Others in the party said that the 42-year-old star was going very well during practice abroad.

Aidan Roark Ready for Play.

Aidan Roark, who suffered a fall a short time before sailing and was reported by cable as having sustained a concussion, denied receiving any serious injuries and said that he was ready for fast play and felt well. He and Captain George have been making quite a fight of it for No. 1, and this position is the one regarded as the most unsettled on the team at this time.

The rest of the players all looked well and seemed in very high spirits. It was obvious that they felt they had a good chance of turning back the Americans next month, though none of them would go on record.

Captain Tremayne, asked for a prediction, merely said, "I think we shall have some good games. You've seen our ponies? I'm glad they arrived in such good shape. We think we are very well mounted and we think the men have been going well. Certainly, we have worked hard and we shall continue to work hard. You can't ask for more than that."

Captain and Mrs. C. T. I. Roark, Captain and Mrs. Tremayne and Mr. and Mrs. Lacey are staying in private homes at Westbury, the others in a cottage on the grounds of the Meadow Brook Club. When the players start their practice they plan at least two games a week.

WESTBURY POLO OFF.

Today's Game Between Ashtons and Army Four Postponed.

There will be a lapse today in high goal polo on Long Island. The game scheduled this afternoon at the Meadow Brook Club in Westbury, which was to have been between the Goulburn team of Australia and the United States Army, has been postponed because of wet grounds and no date set for it. The next match of the visiting Ashton brothers is to be announced for next week, on a date arranged by the officials of the United States Polo Association, their hosts in this country.

The only polo over the week-end will be the American test match at the Sands Point Club in Port Washington tomorrow at 4 o'clock. The same White team which has been together for the past few contests, led by Captain Thomas Hitchcock Jr., will ride against a strong Red combination.

17,500 WOMEN AT GAME

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Before a crowd of more than 45,000, including 17,500 women, who were admitted free, the champion Chicago Cubs today defeated the Robins, 4 to 3, in the tenth innnig and entrenched themselves a bit more firmly in first position, from which they tumbled the Flatbush athletes on Tuesday.

As a result the Cubs now are two games ahead of the Robins and the oncoming Giants are only a game and a half behind their Robinsonian rivals. Uncle Wilbert took his athletes to Pittsburgh tonight and will take them to Ebbets Field Sunday, with scarcely an even chance that they will be able to greet the home fans in first place.

A double into the crowd by Danny Taylor in the tenth scored Woody English with the winning run and sent the crowd swarming and swirling onto Wrigley Field, yelling madly in their joy over the last-minute triumph. Babe Herman, robbed of a double by the uncanny fielding ability of Kiki Cuyler, himself staged an even more spectacular attempt at a catch of Taylor's ball to save the game.

Robins Get Two-Run Lead.

As the ball, merely a high fly, sailed out to right the Babe backed against the ropes that held back the overflow crowd and leaped into the air. He nearly got it, but disappeared in a tangle of arms and legs and was not able to extricate himself until English had crossed the plate and was on his way to the dugout.

Señor Adolfo Luque, pitted against Charley Root, received a two-run lead from the Robins in the first inning and pitched valiantly trying to hold it, but in the fifth the same Taylor who beat Luque in the end slammed a double into the crowd in left field and Charley Grimm duplicated the blow to give the Cubs the first run.

In the sixth, however, when Cuyler's pop fly went for a double, Taylor, on the way to becoming quite the hero of Chicago fandom, slashed a clean single to centre to score Cuyler and deadlock the score.

Cuyler Saves Day for Cubs.

In the tenth Herman, hitless all day, opened with a terrific drive to right centre that seemed labeled a certain double, but Cuyler raced over and pulled it down. Bissonette walked. But the chance to score went glimmering when Moore grounded into a double play.

160,000 Saw Cubs and Robins, League Record for a Series

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—All National League attendance records were broken in the series concluded today between the Cubs and Robins. The attendance figures for the four-day series reached a total of 160,000. Of this number 140,000 were rated as paid admissions. The previous record, established here in a Giants-Cubs series last season, was 110,000.

HUBBELL OF GIANTS SHUTS OUT THE REDS

TERRY STARS ON OFFENSE

By JOHN DREBINGER.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 15.—Nothing whatever interfered with the onward march of the Giants today, least of all the Reds, who, baffled by Carl Hubbell's masterful display of left-handed pitching skill and bewildered by a maze of shots that whistled to all sectors of the field, were swift to recognize the utter futility of things and folded up completely in the second game of the series. The score was 5 to 0.

Hubbell's exhibition developed into one of his best efforts of the year, as he blanked the Reds on four scattered hits. He permitted only one Red to reach third base and only one other to advance as far as second.

Twelve Hits Off Lucas.

And while the tall, sombre-appearing southpaw was lolling the Reds to sleep the other members of the Giant machine, notably Memphis Bill Terry, whacked Red Lucas for an even dozen blows, Memphis Bill's contribution being one home run, one two-bagger and one single, with not a single shot wasted.

For three rounds Lucas the Red contrived to keep himself abreast of Hubbell the Giant, but in the fourth there came the first exchange of sharp blows that sent the Reds to a sitting posture in the centre of the arena. Lindstrom singled to centre, Terry hammered a double to right, and Ott scored both with a well-directed one-base thump to the same sector.

Terry Hits Long Homer.

Terry took personal charge of the next Giant thrust into the ranks of the befuddled Reds. Playing a sort of "now you see it, now you don't" prank on the unsuspecting Cincinnatians, he hoisted a prodigious swat that lost itself among the untenanted seats in the centre-field bleachers.

Then, still far from satisfied with his afternoon's work, Memphis Bill collaborated with Lindstrom and O'Farrell to give the Giants another tally in the eighth. This time William modestly spanked a single to centre after Lindstrom had done the same thing, and O'Farrell's sacrifice fly did the rest.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The man with the derby hat was either making a statement or asking a question. He said it plainly enough, but the debate went on after he left. Nobody knew whether he was handing out a tip or just seeking information. What he said can be transcribed in two different ways, to wit and viz:

"Whichone will win."

"Which one will win?"

There's the rub. If it was a statement he was handing out, can a confiding tourist rely upon it implicitly? If it was a question he was asking, where could a stranger desirous of contributing something toward improving the breed find the answer, before the horses go to the post?

The program is set and the line-up is known. There are more than two horses in the field that will run in the Travers, but, for all practical purposes, in advance at least, it's Whichone against Gallant Fox, Harry Payne Whitney against William Woodward, Tom Healy against Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and Sonny Workman against Earl Sande, the singing kid from Idaho.

Sticking With a Winner.

The Fox has scored over Whichone, and in sporting circles it is usually considered good form to stick with a winner. Then there are the Sande rooters who are ready to back the Flying Earl almost any time he goes to the barrier on anything faster than a clothes-horse.

So far this season Sande has been scoring on the turf in the same way that Bob Jones has been scoring on the links. He has been taking all the big events in his stride. He won't like to lose this one for half a dozen reasons, including the fact that it would spoil the record of Gallant Fox and that it would cost him a victory in the oldest stake event on the turf in this country. The Travers goes back to Civil War times. It was first run in 1864 and is antedated on the whole continent by the King's Plate, which is run over the border in Canada.

If Sonny Workman could sing, Whichone might have a better chance. It's the belief of the rail birds that Sande's crooning tenor keeps his mounts running fast and true to the finish. When the Flying Earl is hunched over on his mount's neck, coming down the stretch, he isn't trying to bite the horse's ear. He's just crooning a haunting melody as his mount goes roll-roll-rolling along.

A Possible Explanation.

At least, that's the general impression. Sande hasn't given away his song secret. He has yet to tell what songs he sang to coax or drive Gallant Fox to victory in the Derby and the Preakness. When any one tries to pin him down on the words or chorus, he walks away whistling.

If he won't tell, it's fair enough to guess. The awful suspicion in this corner is that Sande may not have a good voice at all and that Gallant Fox, for instance, may just be dashing ahead in a furious endeavor to get away from that frightful noise. There are singers like that.

Still, that's hardly fair to Sande. He looks as though he could sing like a thrush. Workman doesn't. He looks as though he could fight. Just imagine a bulldog in silks and you have a fair impression of Sonny Workman. About the softest tone he uses in a race is a clarion cry: "Pull out with that cab horse—I'm coming through."

Old Days.

The Travers was won in the past by such great thoroughbreds as Man O' War, Sun Briar, Omar Khayyam, Broomstick, Henry of Navarre and the famous Hindoo of two score and ten years ago. The old-timers at the Spa sigh and say:

"Those were the days!"

Those were the days of Richard Canfield, and, before Canfield, the days of John Morrissey, who held the unofficial heavyweight championship of the world, was elected to Congress and owned part of Saratoga town and half of the race track.

The Canfield Casino is still here, but the wheel no longer spins within its walls. The Casino and grounds were turned over to the city as a gift from Canfield and now the curious tourists saunter through the room where the famous gambler once said to Harry Stevens:

Mr. Canfield may have been stretching it a bit, but the play did run high, not only in his casino, but at the track and other places around town.

Fast and Free.

Those were the days when the bookmakers sat on the high stools next to their blackboards and took the bets of "Pittsburgh Phil," John Drake, Diamond Jim Brady, "Bet-a-Million" Gates and other such followers of the turf who were fast and free with their wagers. Even in later days, when games of chance were forbidden in the clubhouse at the track, the late R. T. Wilson once walked into the clubhouse after the last race and found some of the conservative members throwing the dice for just $1,000 a roll.

"Not here, gentlemen," said Mr. Wilson, gently but firmly, "not here, if you please," and the game came to a halt.

That's all over and done with now. In the first place, the Wall Street crash and the business slump have put a big crimp in the Saratoga season, and, in the second place, Governor Roosevelt's recent warning sent the officers of the law scurrying around to close up the faro banks, roulette wheels and bird-cages that were limping along on reduced patronage. But even with the business slump and other annoying factors, the Travers, with Gallant Fox and Whichone featuring, is drawing what looks like an old-time crowd to this historic town. Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons and Tom Healy, rival trainers, are quietly confident Sande is whistling, Workman is grinning. Gallant Fox and Whichone are saying nothing.

Triumph, 8-4, Behind Haines for Third Victory—Hafey and Watkins Connect.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals made it three out of four over the Boston Braves by taking the fourth game of the series today, 8 to 4, behind Jesse Haines's effective work on the mound.

Chick Hafey hit his twenty-second home run and George Watkins, playing first base in the absence of Jim Bottomley, who has an injured hand, also drove for the circuit.

PIRATES AND PHILLIES DIVIDE DOUBLE BILL

Pittsburgh Wins Nightcap by 3-2 in Ten Innings After Losing Opener, 7-5.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15 (AP).—Pittsburgh and Philadelphia divided a double bill today, the Quakers annexing the first game, 7 to 5, and the Pirates taking the second in ten innings, 3 to 2.

Freddie Brickell, former Pirate, who made three hits—one a triple—and scored three runs, was the big factor in the Phillies' victory.

Comorosky's triple in the tenth inning of the second fray made victory safe for the home team.

FIFTH CRICKET TEST WILL START TODAY

Final Match of Series Between England and Australia to Have No Time Limit.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Fairly good weather is predicted for the fifth cricket test-match between England and Australia which opens at the Kennington Oval tomorrow. The match is the last of the series and "The Ashes," mythical symbol of the international cricket championship, are at stake. The four other matches resulted in England and Australia winning one each, while two were drawn.

Critics agree in expecting the game will be the most memorable in the annals of test-match cricket. Excitement in England and Australia is at fever heat. The game will be played to a finish, unlike its predecessors in England, which were limited as to time. All reserved seats for the first four days have been sold.

All day today tons of foodstuffs and gallons of refreshments were trucked into the grounds in anticipation of one of the largest crowds which ever attended a cricket match. At cottage windows overlooking the grounds seats have been sold for fabulous prices, while temporary stands have been erected on the waste land near by from which enthusiasts unable to get into the grounds proper will see the match.

England will go into the struggle under a new captain, R. E. S. Wyatt of Warwickshire. A. P. F. Chapman, who headed the English eleven which regained "The Ashes" on the same grounds four years ago and the team which defended in Australia in 1928-29, was shelved for reasons which have not yet been announced by the selection committee.

Wyatt will have under him the residue of the great team seen in Australia, such as Jack Hobbs, Herbert Sutcliffe, Wally Hammond and Maurice Tate, while a choice from a number of other tried as well as new players will be made for the balance. No fewer than three great wicket keepers have been told to be on hand—George Duckworth, Leslie Ames and W. W. Whysall.

To assist Tate in the bowling there will be available I. A. R. Peebles and C. W. L. Peebles, while Hammond and Wyatt also are good as change bowlers. Additional batting strength can be built up from Prince Duleepsinhji and Maurice Leyland, the latter also being capable of taking wickets on occasion.

The Australians are believed to be at full strength and will probably use the same eleven which piled up such big scores at Lord's and Leeds.

English Cricket Results.

LONDON, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—By a narrow margin of one wicket Hampshire today won its English county cricket match from Middlesex at Southampton. The scores were: Hants, 191 and 260 for nine wickets. A stand by Lord Tennyson and Arnold gave Hants the victory.

Scores in other matches follow:

Yorkshire vs. Glamorganshire at Sheffield: Yorkshire, 294 for three wickets, declared, and 65 runs for no wickets; Glamorgan, 209 and 332 for five wickets, declared (Bates 145, Dyson 88).

Somerset vs. Warwickshire at Weston-Super-Mare: Somerset, 145 and 189 for five wickets; Warwickshire, 185 and 145.

Kent vs. Essex at Southend: Kent, 122 and 422 for nine wickets (Freeman, seven wickets for 41 runs); Essex, 145 and 122.

SHARKEY, CAMPOLO BOX HERE SEPT. 25

REJECTS CARNERA CONTEST

Winner Here Expected to Meet Stribling in Miami—Victor There to Face Schmeling.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, will battle Victorio Campolo, South American giant, in the Yankee Stadium on Sept. 25, fifteen rounds to a decision, in an elimination match which will be one of a series designed to get the best available heavyweight to face Max Schmeling, world's champion, for the title next June.

This was announced yesterday by Vice President Frank J. Bruen of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which will conduct the bout under its option on Sharkey's services.

Terms Not Announced.

Both Johnny Buckley and Jack Conway, associates in the management of Sharkey, accepted terms over the telephone from Boston and arranged to come here Monday to sign articles for the bout. Terms were not divulged, but it is understood Sharkey has been assured his purse would not be less than $100,000.

The Garden's announcement upset plans for a battle in Chicago Sept. 29 between Sharkey and Primo Carnera, Italian giant, which had been announced by Promoter Mique Malloy before he departed for Chicago Thursday evening. Malloy said he had Carnera's agreement and had received the consent of Manager Buckley.

Evidently, however, he was acting under a misapprehension in his announcement. Sharkey's allegiance to the Garden automatically removes the Boston heavyweight from the proposed Carnera match and obliges Malloy to look elsewhere for a heavyweight to tackle the Italian.

Plan Bout in February.

In announcing the bout Vice President Bruen stated Sharkey retained his position in the heavyweight title situation when he rejected the Chicago proposition and accepted the Garden's Campolo offer. Under the present plan as outlined by Bruen, the winner of the Sharkey-Campolo match will be pitted against Young Stribling at Miami in February and the winner of the Miami match will be selected to fight Schmeling for his title. It is known that the Garden authorities, believing Sharkey would be attracted by the Carnera bout inducements, were prepared to ignore the Boston heavyweight in their title eliminations and pair Stribling with Campolo in Miami, with the understanding that the winner would receive the Schmeling bout in June.

Stribling arrived last night on the Aquitania, fresh from his conquest of Phil Scott in London and eager to tackle Sharkey in his first important American match. The Georgia youngster, however, complained of an injured left hand and said he would take an indefinite rest until his hand had regained its normal strength. Garden officials, it is understood, have been assured that Stribling would be available when he is sought for the proposed Miami match.

BRITISH ATHLETES OPEN GAMES TODAY

PROGRAM TO LAST A WEEK

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 15.—An idea which Canadians have fostered and which has met with accord throughout the British Empire will spring into being tomorrow when the British Empire games are officially opened at the civic stadium here.

With representatives coming from scattered parts of the empire, including England and ten other countries, some 350 athletes will pass through the portals of Hamilton's Municipal Stadium in what is recognized as the start of a miniature Olympics.

England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Newfoundland, Bermuda, British Guiana, New Zealand, South Africa, Australia and Canada will have representatives in the week's program of track and field sports, boxing, wrestling, rowing, swimming and lawn bowling.

Hamilton itself is flag-bedecked tonight and the majority of the athletes who have been housed and fed in the Prince of Wales school during the training period, including most of England's delegation of 101 athletes which reached here only last night after a delayed sea trip due to fogs, are eager for the start.

Only one of them, H. W. Payne, the marathon runner, is not in first-class shape. While running through the streets of Hamilton today Payne was knocked down by an automobile and severely bruised, though he is expected to be ready for his event, which is not scheduled until next Thursday.

The games themselves reflect more than the usual spirit attached to most athletic meetings. M. M. Robinson, the local newspaper man who is credited with the original thought of a mammoth meeting based on the Olympic idea and who has been working to achieve it since the 1928 Olympics at Amsterdam, which he attended as secretary of the Canadian Olympic Games, in discussing the games stressed the spirit which has grown up in Canada as well as in other parts of the empire due to the growth of athletics.

THE GOVERNMENT PLAN.

Critics have made pretty free with President HOOVER'S conferences and commissions. It must be admitted that some of his "experts" have been such in the worst sense of the word. But in sudden and great emergencies the Hoover method has amply vindicated itself. No one challenged it when it was applied to the Mississippi floods. It compelled praise even from the mouths of his enemies when it was illustrated by his efforts to prevent the sequels of the stock market collapse last year from becoming more disastrous than they necessarily were. And now the President, by his prompt attention to the great damage wrought by the drought in certain States, and by the skill and comprehensive grasp he has displayed in getting together competent advisers and working out projects of relief and restoration, has once more reminded the country of his unusually high executive talent in dealing with such matters. Perhaps it takes a large calamity to summon forth his large abilities.

What stands out in the plan as thus far formulated and announced is its decentralizing nature. The Federal Government is not reaching out to take everything into its own hands. Local authorities must first do everything possible. Organization is to be by States and counties. Distress being scattered and local, it must first be appraised accurately both as to its extent and probable duration. This can best be done by men on the spot. But they will have full cooperation and all needed help from the national authorities. Nothing like indiscriminate charity is planned. The fact that the services of the Red Cross have already been offered and accepted, along with an allotment by that agency of mercy of $5,000,000 for use where instant aid of the destitute and suffering is requisite, will be taken as a sufficient assurance that investigation will be as careful as the relief of hardship will be both warm-hearted and intelligent. Thus the immediate stress of the disaster appears to be well provided for. Its remoter consequences will have to be studied as they arise, and curative measures adopted for what bids fair to be a slow and long convalescence.

In the whole affair, as it is now unfolded, we have a fine example of what governmental leadership may do. It inspires as well as directs. Its own efforts lead directly to the efforts of many others. Information and driving force are furnished at Washington, but the execution is entrusted to the localities immediately concerned. It is not a theoretical question about the division of the powers of government in this country. What we see is a practical and rapid application of common sense to the big problem in hand. Wise planning will not do everything at once, but it is indispensable at the beginning. And for it the country has today reason to be thankful, as it has for the well-devised initiative taken by President HOOVER.

IT CAN RAIN.

And NOAH he cocked his eye and said, "It looks like rain, I think."

Praise be to uvid Jupiter, the rain-bringing Hyades and the Weather Bureau! Though we do wish that the Washington soothsayers would have a heart and yield a danker ditty than "Possibly rain tonight; fair, moderate Saturday." The value of the golden truth demonstrated Thursday night and Friday morning remains unclipped and undiminished. It has rained. It can rain again. Our oldest inhabitants were beginning to doubt. Small children were growing up in a country which had apparently resolved to be rainless, as if it were not bad enough to be Dry. Savings-banks officials looked grave. Was the main incentive of thrift vanishing? There are no savings banks in Dahna and Sahara.

At last the strike in the condensing department of the atmosphere ended. The makers of the mighty ocean began to come down while we were lying awake thinking of prices going up. The earth guzzled the aspersion and gave forth that old familiar gracious "wet smell," scarcely recognized at first by nostrils too long estranged from it. The yellowing leaves decided that it was really too early for Fall. The grass felt, in the teeth of appearances, that it wasn't hay. The waterpipes gurgled and sang. Is there any sweeter music than that of the rain, if you don't happen to be out in it?

There is a certain scarcity of roofs in New York, but we hope that the penthouse population benefited; and of patter there is here no end. Anyway, purl, brooks, if there is fluid enough for purling! Get busy and bubble, runlets! All hail, you rivulets that from the green hills of Casentino descend into Arno! Stream, streamlets! Springs and wells, now is the time to stock up! Cattle on a thousand hills, no longer shall your throats be unslaked. States covered by the conference of Governors, may you get as much more precipitation as you need and try to attribute this tempering of drought to the Republican party.

It can rain. In the lovely words of BENJAMIN HARRISON, we "leave that thought with you." Meanwhile, forgetting week-ends and "resorts" in the larger interest, let us direct "the collective mind"—whatever that is—to invoking further charities from the clouds. Sympathetic magic may be helpful and words of power:

> The water above the Matterhorn
> is deep as a Mendip mine,
> But I don't care where the water > goes if it doesn't get into the > wine.

Not that you want anything like that depth; but wishes are subject to fat discounts; and even a rain-water wagon is best hitched to a star.

PLANNERS OF CITIES.

The death of Mr. GEORGE B. FORD, general director of the Regional Plan Association, will be widely mourned. This city, bent on recapturing some of its lost opportunities for orderly growth, needed more men like him—far-sighted, determined, allowing their reach to exceed their grasp, but not too far. Few planners, in America at any rate, have the tabula rasa of L'ENFANT or the authority of HAUSSMANN. They must build on things as they are, working chiefly with such tools as they are able to fashion out of good-will, guidance and cooperation.

And yet they have managed lately in many communities the country over, to attain a position of both responsibility and respect. With the coming of the motor age the man in the street for the first time stopped to listen to what they had to say. It was truly a condition that confronted him, and not a theory. He found his movements hampered, his goods delayed, his time wasted. He lived under constant pressure, like a deep-sea fish. His community found its budget mounting, its leading citizens moving out into the suburbs where their children could breathe, its industries threatening to go where they would have more room and lower taxes. He began to see the crying need of parks and parkways, and he woke up one day to find that they actually paid. Then he began to think the city planner wasn't such a mere theorist after all.

The planner met him half-way. Esthetics merged with economics, engineering and even politics. The old idea of the "city beautiful" gradually gave place to that attempt at vision in the light of the whole which characterized, for example, the work of the Regional Plan of New York, to the promotion of which Mr. FORD devoted his last energies. He and the other members of the fraternity came to talk not alone of beautiful avenues and handsome monuments and spacious parks and classic buildings, but of building heights and subways and by-pass highways, of the "friction of space" and the need of satellite communities adapted to the needs of the motor vehicle.

Even cities priding themselves on the foresight of their founders, cities whose general layout was the envy of their sisters a generation ago, are going hat in hand to the motor age planner. One wonders what Mr. FORD would have thought had he lived a few hours longer and read in yesterday morning's paper the dispatches from Paris telling of her traffic troubles and her $40,000,000 relief program. New highroads, new boulevards, new bridges. Underground and overhead passages—one for the Arc de Triomphe, let us hope, where the Unknown Soldier is now girdled about by the wheeling traffic as by a moat. A circumferential highway to serve the needs of the suburbs. New parkways. And all this for Paris, for years the glass of fashion and the mold of form for a thousand humbler communities! Well, we live to learn, and the planners will teach us.

DEFYING THE ORGANIZATION.

Because Tammany men settle most of their disputes in private conference and the losers abide by the result, the public seldom has an opportunity to drive a wedge between the cogs of the machine. Now Senator THOMAS I. SHERIDAN of the Sixteenth District will provide one. Rejected for renomination because of the opposition of one of his district leaders, Alderman KENNEALLY, the Senator is circulating petitions and will make a fight in the primary against the organization choice, JOHN J. MCNABOE. If independent Democrats wish to make a breach in the "system," he offers to lead the storming party.

However recent scandals in the City Government may have weakened Tammany, it comes up strongly to such a contest. Marshaled by the district leaders, there are forces which usually overwhelm the disgruntled and the independent. But Senator SHERIDAN is a veteran at the game; he was a protégé of CHARLES F. MURPHY; and it is understood that he has a tale to tell of the reasons for his rejection which may stir a sluggish electorate. The rumor is that Senator SHERIDAN has been sacrificed because he did not always take orders from his district leader in matters of legislation at Albany. Depending always on what those matters were, there should be fuel in them for public agitation.

The Citizens Union has had some agreeable things from time to time to say about Mr. SHERIDAN. In his first term its praise was faint and tempered by the spirit of watchful waiting. Later it went so far as to call him "useful, active and capable." In view of the reasons for his rejection by Tammany, it seems strange to read in a Citizens Union report of some years ago that Mr. SHERIDAN "lacks independence." Apparently, he has made up for that omission. He has been busy at Albany with bills designed to humanize methods of dealing with juvenile criminals; to censor books; and, rather weirdly, to revise the basis of taxation. Some glimpse of the reasons for his unpopularity with the machine comes when one reads his remark on the Senate floor one day that there are in New York City many "judicial misfits." As a plentifully briefed lawyer he had rare opportunities to examine the bench filled largely by Tammany Hall. In his campaign for the nomination he should be able to be of public service, for he is courageous and able. His is a revolt sure to be watched.

FRENCH BEER.

In spite of the continued official disapproval of these United States, the humble beverage called beer seems to be experiencing a general rise in prestige. Long a favorite in Germany and England, it has now become so popular in Italy that it threatens to supersede wine. In France, the cool bock, the frothy "demi," are among the accepted pleasures of the Summer season. The French pride themselves that now their own breweries turn out a product that rivals the most famous brands from foreign countries.

August is the month when the plains of Alsace are green with their harvest of hops, almost ready for the pickers. "The green vines," writes M. RENE BAZIN, "seem like "very pointed tents of foliage, or "rather slim campaniles, formed of "grayish blossoms powdered with "pollen, swaying on their stems "from the topmost point to the very "ground, like bells to be rung by "the wind." With this lyric outburst a writer in Lectures pour Tous begins an article in praise of "La Bière Française," particularly of the progress which has been made in its manufacture since the war. Time was when France imported her beers, especially from Germany. But the importation has dropped to such a point that at present, for one bock of German beer, 4,500 bocks of French beer are consumed in France.

The French beers which were drunk in 1860, says a modern French brewer, were almost all of high fermentation, well enough when prepared in cold weather, but which varied widely in quality when hot days came along. The variations were so great that in a region where beer consumption was high, as in Strasbourg, there was formed a sort of corporation of connoisseurs. Each morning they would go from brasserie to brasserie, tasting the brew and advising amateurs which firm rated the best bock for that day.

All that is now changed. Recent progress has been due to a cordial entente between the laboratory and the factory. PASTEUR had a hand in directing the industry. From the time when he began his studies of the brewing of beer in 1856, he constantly strove to better the French product until it should equal that of Germany. Thanks to him, asepsis and bacteriological control have revolutionized the business. The essentials of scientific manufacture have been mastered; not only antiseptic methods for the cleaning of casks and vats but also the use of artificial cold. Low fermentation and the use of refrigeration make the French beer dependable in quality. Every sort of modern equipment has replaced obsolete apparatus.

One feels that the French writer must have written his article on a dry hot day when the cold beer at his elbow seemed a nectar of the gods. Beer, he says, is the purest and safest of drinks. It is essentially nutritive. It is brimming over with carbohydrates and vitamins and albuminoids. A quart of beer drunk every day provides a man with one-ninth of all the nutriment he needs. The conclusion is inescapable. Nine quarts of beer per diem and the problem of nourishment is solved!

MODERNIZING CUERNAVACA.

There could be no better proof that life in Mexico is becoming safer for foreigners, and that the people have had enough of insurgency, than the revival of the tourist business. For nearly twenty years it has been in a decline. In the prime of DIAZ, when travelers could go where they pleased without molestation, Americans visited Mexico and came away with the pleasantest memories. They explored and camped in the mountain districts, traversed the great central table-land, found the city of Mexico one of the most attractive of capitals, roamed through towns famous for their cathedrals, were impressed by the magnificent scenery and liked the climate and the people. The ten years' war, followed by almost as many years of conflicting ambitions among the politicians, with revolts against the government, made life and property insecure, so that it was still a hazard to enter Mexico. But stabilization is now the order of the day, good roads are building in most of the States, Chambers of Commerce are organizing on all sides and tourists are invited to return.

Cuernavaca, one of the most beautiful places in Mexico and one of the most famous historically, is being restored and modernized. During the Zapata ascendency it was a spot to shun. Churches were turned into stables, and the blight of banditry was upon the countryside. TERRY has made Cuernavaca the jewel of Mexican resorts, but has not failed to warn visitors, even in the 1930 edition of his guide-book, that there is a lack of good hotels. It is "a good plan," he says, "to have the "hotel manager at Mexico City put "up a luncheon which one can carry "along in the car and eat at some "attractive wayside spot."

There is now a building boom at Cuernavaca. New hotels and cottages are going up. An ambitious Chamber of Commerce is furnishing information of attractions, and a "Cárlos Lindbergh" landing field is under construction. Such modern conveniences as good plumbing and swimming pools are being provided, and buses run hourly over good roads from Mexico City. Ambassador MORROW long ago surrendered to the charms of Cuernavaca, and his house there is said to be "a museum of modern Mexican art." The town, with its wonderful mountain setting, may be losing its quaintness, but it seems destined to become one of the most popular resorts of Mexico.

THE LAMBETH RESOLVES.

There were great searchings of heart at the Lambeth Conference. And there were great resolves of heart, chief of which was that "the "Christian Church of every nation "should refuse to countenance any "war in regard to which the government of its own country has not "declared its willingness to submit "the matter in dispute to arbitration." If this were lived up to by all the members of that particular Church around the globe, and they were joined by all the members of the other Christian churches, the end of war would be assured. The moral and the economic sanctions against it would drive it at least beyond the borders of Christendom.

A citizen following this "resolve" would have to make a reservation when he took the oath to bear arms for his country. He would have moral and spiritual authority of the highest character for refusing to go to war if his country refused to take the preliminary step toward peace. This reservation would carry national patriotism into a higher level than that which often prevails in times of great emotional excitement. The position taken by the conference offers a challenge to every government that has entered into the pact for the pacific settlement of international disputes. If this pledge is not kept, the citizen, under the instruction of the Church as to his duty as a clergyman or as a communicant, is inferentially to be free of his obligation of war service. Individuals have dared to go so far under the promptings of their own consciences. But this is the unanimous pronouncement of a body of Bishops representing their constituents in practically all the countries of the earth.

Other resolves relate to matters of more intimate concern to the family life and to individual faith. The declaration concerning birth control, which was adopted by a divided house, makes but the slightest concession: "Where there is a morally "sound reason * * * other methods "may be tried, provided this is done "in the light of the same Christian "principles." The study of sex problems is urged and the preparation of a fresh statement on the general subject of sex. But out of all the disquieting perplexities which have confronted the Church in modern society, it rises with undimmed faith and confident hope, asserting that with the help of science it is now able to trace "a continuous process "of creative development at every "stage of which we find the Divine "Presence and power." Scientific thinking has given back to us a sense of reverence for a Creator who is "always and everywhere active within the universe."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Test of the Ticket Plan. Confidence expressed by Governor SMITH in the ultimate success of the campaign against "gyp" theatre-ticket brokers is not solely based on rosy hopes. The foundation it has in results already accomplished will encourage the public to believe that at last there is a chance of keeping the price of seats even to a "hit" down to the box-office figure plus the authorized service charge.

The League of New York Theatres has its plan in working order, despite the protests of a group that still struggles for the privilege of speculating in tickets. It has not stopped, however, with the mere mechanics of the scheme. One of the sources of ticket graft has been the relations between speculators and well-known clubs in the city. A member of one of these clubs, faced with the necessitiy of getting seats in a hurry, could obtain them by paying extortionate prices. The "gyps" kept in close touch with club offices, and always had a supply of good seats at a price.

Now the league has a promise of full cooperation from seven of the most prominent clubs. They will not deal with any except authorized brokers, whose charge will be the same to them as to any one else. The next step should be to enlist the hotel agencies in the same way. In another six weeks the league's plan will have its real test, and meantime every support should be given by theatregoers and their usual offices of supply.

Architects Against Billboards. Those engaged in the campaign against billboards will welcome the support of the American Institute of Architects. It has just sent an appeal to all its chapters the country over, urging them to do what they can to help curb wayside advertising.

Recent court decisions, notably one in Indiana, have given encouragement to the movement by recognizing the esthetic side of municipal development. The Massachusetts Billboard Law Defense Committee hopes to get a ruling by the Supreme Court of the United States on the question whether outdoor advertising on private property within the public view can be constitutionally regulated.

There is no need to relax present efforts to curb this offense while waiting for the courts to have their final say. Some ancient offenders have already shown signs of repentance. Others have taken a public-spirited attitude. In English country life one oil company recently carried a full-page advertisement depicting a lovely bit of the English countryside. Below was the caption, "Shell Oil Does Not Advertise in Places Like This."

Safety First and the Flivver. In these days of heat, drought and sudden storm the Red Cross has thought it important to issue directions on escaping at least a part of the disaster that may come. Among its warnings is one about tornadoes, which is backed up by the Department of Agriculture.

Usually a tornado can be seen coming. Its great violence is somewhat mitigated by the circumstance that it is not extensive. It is not very wide, and it seldom travels faster than forty miles an hour. Its path is as a rule in an easterly direction, sometimes varying slightly from a straight line toward the south, though more often it moves north of east.

When a tornado is sighted several miles away, the thing to do is to pile the children into the family car and drive rapidly away on a road at right angles to the path of the tornado. It is likely to pursue an undeviating, relentless course straight ahead, and lives may be saved by this mode of escape, even though property is destroyed. So if you see a funnel-shaped cloud approaching, or if the sky is filled with strangely colored clouds in wild turmoil while a roar like "thousands of railroad cars crossing a bridge" is heard, hop into the flivver and drive due south.

British Inns for Walkers. Fond as the English are of outdoor exercise, they have lagged behind Continental countries in providing adequate accommodations for walkers. Tours on foot for longer than a single day are often marred by the difficulty—or impossibility—of finding comfortable and cheap lodgings.

An organization to remedy this was formed this Spring. It is called the British Youth Hostels Association, and its aim will be to utilize buildings of historic interest, where possible, as inns. If new structures have to be erected, they will be made to harmonize with their surroundings. The charge will be something in the neighborhood of 25 cents a night.

The association will attempt to save walkers from the discomforts of congested highways by placing hostels well out of the beaten track along country roads where inns are rarely to be found. It intends to do all in its power to "maintain the freedom of footpaths and to preserve the natural beauty and historic interest of the English countryside."

The movement should be welcomed by young hikers whose desire to take to the open has been thwarted by the want of cheap lodgings. American students who travel "tourist third" to England and land with only meager funds in their pockets will be glad of this means of making their money go as far as possible. Fifty dollars and a stout pair of legs should enable a young visitor to see far more of England than the same amount expended on train fares or chars-à-bancs tours.

PHONE ETHICS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I went into a nut shop recently to make a purchase, but the only clerk present stopped in the midst of waiting on me in order to answer the telephone. I submitted to this as long as I could and then walked out. He was still talking when I left.

I entered a Broadway bank on appointment with the cashier and waited while he was busy with another party. When through, he asked me in, but, like the nut clerk, turned to answer the telephone immediately afterward, though my business was important to both of us. I left after telling his secretary I could not wait. Later, he called on me at my office, which was reasonably near, to conclude the business the telephone message had interrupted.

Again, I had an appointment with my physician at a certain hour and kept it—but he himself did not return to his office until two hours later. I waited patiently until he returned, but just when he seemed ready to attend to me he turned to go into a long conversation over the phone, just as did the nut clerk and the banker.

Now, I am wondering why one who goes to the trouble and takes the time to make a personal call should have to stand by and waste that time because somebody else calls on the phone and takes immediate précedence. What gives them that privilege? Why must I give way to any one who chooses to usurp my rights simply because he uses the telephone?

It seems to me that when a banker or a nut clerk or a doctor or any other person receives a telephone call when some one is waiting in person, he should have the person telephoning requested to call up later. Even if the visitor is unexpected, he should have attention without telephone interruption; more emphatically so if he is present by appointment.

A New Jersey Dilemma.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on "Reading Out" surely attracts thought. Many conscientious readers of your paper are troubled about the peculiar political situation, especially dry Republicans. They are Lincoln Republicans. They do not wish to be "read out," yet Mr. Morrow has made the dominant issue the repeal of a part of the Constitution. For years they have done their part in making the Eighteenth Amendment a part of the supreme law. They cannot stultify themselves by voting for a man who stands for its repeal.

Must regularity be above principle? Must they surrender their conscience to the necessity of electing, by placating the Italian vote, a Senator who has only the label Republican to distinguish him from his labeled Democratic opponent? For is not Morrow for both the liquor traffic and the States' rights doctrine we thought Lincoln buried? Did not the wet Democrats flock in the Republican primaries? The vote in some places numbered more than the census population.

Yet your editorial assumes that "the mass" of the Republican party nominated him. It may be that the machine and the millionaires were behind him, yet in an extemporized three weeks' campaign Fort rallied 125,000, who surely cannot stultify themselves by voting for him and repeal. What can they do? Vote the only dry ticket—independent—Miss Esther Elfirth for the long term, and Dr. James Gilbert Mason for the short term.

Bowery Mission Needs Help.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Conditions of unemployment on the Bowery are the worst the Bowery Mission has experienced in many years. Hundreds of men throng our employment bureau each week. Many are capable and willing, but we have no jobs to distribute.

Many of these men are weak from hunger. They are often practically barefooted and in rags. They have slept on a bench or the floor instead of a bed.

The condition of these men should stir the sympathy and enlist the help of their fellow-citizens. The Bowery Mission itself has been taxed all year far beyond its resources. The suffering on the Bowery today in midsummer is as acute as it often is in midwinter.

A SONG OF AGE.

What is it that makes a lifetime?
To hold the manly strength
Of youth's rejoicing strife-time
Till it reaches the Psalmist length?
Is it worth the strain of the long years' pain
To keep the body alive?
Would you rather be old at eighty
Or young at thirty-five?

The fairest tree in the orchard
That makes the Maytime bright,
By pest and the tempest tortured,
May droop with early blight.
And many a flame of a promising name
That men thought might survive
To light the world at eighty,
Dies down at thirty-five.

But if still the heart beat steady,
With Love as its only note,
And the world's need finds you ready
To pull in the common boat;
And you've learned that Beauty's the helpmate of Duty
To keep the soul alive:
Would you rather be young at eighty

There Are, It Appears, Reasons for Central Park's Many Signs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is probably for the best that there should be a wide discussion of the park and playground question and the airing of many points of view, for this is the best way to arrive at an understanding of a complex and only partially understood problem. And when the various views are compared it will appear that most of them are not so divergent as at first they may seem.

There are many conflicting opinions as to the relative values and uses of parks and playgrounds. But this broad distinction should be borne in mind: that a park is for the use of all the people, but a playground for a relatively small part of them.

Some comparison of the importance of parks and playgrounds may be made by a study on a fine day of one or more of the small playground parks, which are apt to be mostly playground with a fringe of parking. If there are seats in the parked area, they are likely to contain many times the number of those using the playground.

Many people, not altogether without reason, have got the idea that a park lawn is not for play but merely to be looked at. Yet it should be remembered that even in Central Park, where the "Keep Off" signs are most numerous, the two largest lawns, the ball ground and the North Meadow, have been given up to ball games and their audiences. Also a formerly beautiful lawn on the west side is now replaced by tennis courts.

What is the result? The rest of the public is not only excluded from these once beautiful green expanses, but they have not even got them to look at, for both the ball ground and the North Meadow are the reverse of attractive. When they are not in intensive use they are not merely empty, they are eyesores.

The plan of the New York Chapter, American Society of Landscape Architects, for the reservoir site in Central Park was made after long consideration of the needs of the public, the possibilities of the site and the principles of park layout and management in other great American cities. It was decided that, for the greatest good of the greatest number, the principal feature should be a large lawn.

Now, the large lawn has many advantages for park purposes over a small one. The larger it is the less do minor imperfections, bare or brown spaces, count. They are overlooked or lost in the contemplation of the whole. Also, they are easily repaired, and the ease of repair is apt to be proportionate to the care and skill used in the soil preparation and seeding. Its great unbroken spaces, with shady trees conveniently near, may be used for recreation and play of many kinds by great numbers of people without serious damage, provided the play is not continued too long in one place. Even though it should be, the damage is easily repaired by keeping people off the worn places until the grass has had time to grow again.

With the small lawn it is different. Bare spaces show conspicuously, and a single discarded newspaper will deface the whole area. For it is an unfortunate fact that the public that most needs and uses the parks is shockingly careless about their appearance, and leaves its papers and other refuse—worst of all, broken bottles—for others to pick up, and quite regardless of the comfort of those who may come after.

Yet the small and well-kept foliage-framed lawn is necessary to a city park. The city needs these trim and restful green spaces for its own credit and self-respect, and for the pleasure and solace of those who wish to walk or drive through the park without scattering papers or breaking branches or wreaking other damage. These also are part of the public, a fact which seems to be sometimes forgotten. They are found among rich and poor alike and have their rights to consideration, for they are very numerous, and the parks are for the whole people, not a part of them only.

Absolute freedom cannot be allowed on any city park lawn, for the reason that in that case it would be taken possession of and probably destroyed by a part of the community to the practical exclusion of the rest, as for instance the North Meadow in Central Park. A large lawn is much easier to manage and protect than a number of small ones, but the lack of trained employes in Central Park makes it impracticable to protect adequately either the large or small lawns, so the extreme method of keeping people off the grass altogether is resorted to, probably on the principle that it is better to have lawns from which people are excluded than no lawns at all.

But park-lovers are looking forward to the time when Central Park will again come into its own with the addition of a great lawn such as has never been possible until now, and this is what the landscape architects have foreseen and what their plan provides for.

Mr. Woodlock's Resignation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent resignation of Thomas F. Woodlock from the Interstate Commerce Commission calls our attention to a fine type of man and official. While I do not feel competent to review his career as a commissioner from the technical standpoint, I would like to point out that he has for a period of five years devoted himself to his duties and has played an important rôle in the matters which have come up before the commission, such as railroad valuations, the consolidation plan, &c.

Mr. Woodlock's resignation is a real loss to the government service in that he combined the qualities of a great authority on railroads and of an official whose sole concern was to help administer the interstate commerce law in the interest of the public and railroads alike.

Mr. Mahaffie, who succeeds him on the commission, is happily also of the same type.

SAYS LUNG SURGERY OFFERS NEW HOPES

SCORES TEACHING METHODS

New Haven Doctor, in Speech at Oslo, Says Professors Present It as Dead Subject.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 15.—A sharp attack upon university professors for their methods of instruction on tuberculosis was made at Oslo, Norway, today at the meeting of the International Union Against Tuberculosis by the American representative, Dr. Stephen Maher of New Haven, Conn.

Appointed as the official delegate from the United States, Dr. Maher, who is chairman of the Connecticut Tuberculosis Commission and an authority on the prevention and cure of tuberculosis, said the professors discouraged many bright students from going into tuberculosis research work. He urged that university teachers should make clear to students with a special bent for surgery the attractiveness of the vista now opening before all the men capable of doing lung surgery.

Extracts From Speech.

"The first criticism of the university professor's teaching of tuberculosis is that many of them do not teach it; they do not teach it as the live subject that it is today. What they teach is a cold simulacrum of the modern problem. What they teach is a plaster cast or death mask of the tuberculosis problem as it looked twenty to fifty years ago.

"The graduates of such classes naturally face the work of their lives crippled with what an eminent English physician told me was the somewhat prevalent tuberculosis philosophy in his country, 'the defeatist philosophy,' the philosophy of despair, the philosophy that possibly makes good historians and statisticians, but makes dangerous doctors and unfit tuberculosis specialists. The doctor who has no hope or ambition of improving the present treatment of disease not only does not study, does not give his patients the chances for life that they should have, but he blocks medical 'traffic' and interferes with the scientific progress of his fellow-physicians.

Stresses Subject's Attraction.

"In too many universities tuberculosis is taught as Latin and Greek or other dead subjects are taught. The students are forced to memorize rules and to memorize unproved dogmatic statements. Tuberculosis is not a dead subject.

"You and I know that tuberculosis is one of the most fascinating studies that now engages the mind of man. Yet of all the thousands of young doctors graduated every year from the medical schools and hospitals of the civilized world, to how few of them has this fact been made clear!

"In order to secure for our tuberculosis work a fair share of the brightest of the new graduates, teachers in the universities must revise their lectures and perhaps their own conception of tuberculosis. Then they must make it clear that very little is yet known of the tubercle bacillus and of its devious ways of killing human beings; they must give the students and young physicians the opportunity to form opinions of their own on the many contentious phases of the tuberculosis problem.

Sees New Vista Ahead.

"They must introduce the young men and women to the progeny of the tubercle bacillus and to the various blood relations of the tubercle bacillus; to the question of the prebacillary and the filterable viruses of tuberculosis; to the problem of a possible relationship between tuberculosis and cancer; to the problem of dissociation; they must tell the truth about the contagiousness of tuberculosis and do what they can to kill the phthisisophobia that they have unwittingly done so much to spread throughout the world.

"They must explain enthusiastically to such students as have a special love of surgery, the attractiveness of the vista that is now opening before all the men capable of doing lung surgery. Concerning this last matter, it will not be sufficient to have the young men become able merely to name and describe the various operations now known as lung surgery. That kind of teaching will never stir into a flame any smoldering ember of tuberculosis enthusiasm. The surgically bent students must not only learn to perform the various operations of pulmonary tuberculosis, but they must be convinced of the tremendous importance of lung surgery, and the opportunity for fortune and renown that awaits the man, especially the young man, who proves himself a leader in this uncrowded line of endeavor.

Sees Hopes of Cure Nearer.

"They must make it clear to all their students that what the world needs, what it expects, and what every year seems to bring nearer to realization, is a cure or preventive of tuberculosis, and furthermore that the race for this great prize is a free-for-all and that the race is as likely to be won by the humblest student of tuberculosis as by the conductor of the most richly endowed laboratory or institute for research.

"They must make it clear to their students that the invitation to become tuberculosis specialists is not confined to men who themselves are tuberculous or who fear that in some way the dark shadow of tuberculosis has fallen on them or on their families. Heretofore such men have done most of the anti-tuberculosis work of the world and very good work, too; now, however, the work beckons to the ablest and healthiest of the young medical men of the world: to come, and to come immediately, to the assistance of the somewhat tired regiments that up to now have borne the battle's burden."

ASKS $300,000 MORE FOR PLAY CENTRES

PUTS MINIMUM AT $121,000

500 Sites Operating 5 Days a Week Held Necessary to Curb Accidents and Juvenile Delinquency.

Protesting that the Board of Education's budgetary request for an increase of $13,080 for after-school athletic centres "merely scratches the surface of the great need for afternoon activities which should be provided for every school child," the United Parents' Associations asked yesterday for a reconsideration of the matter and the approval of an additional appropriation of at least $121,000, and if possible $300,000.

Alexander A. Mayper, chairman of the associations' governing board, in a letter to George J. Ryan, president of the Board of Education, pointed out that a greater number of children are killed and injured while at play on the streets between the hours of 3 and 6 in the afternoon than during any other three hours of the day.

The increase approved covers only what is actually needed for additional equipment for centres now functioning, although the money will be used to add an insufficient number of sessions, Mr. Mayper said, while the goal should be the extension of the centres from "an average of two to three days a week to five days a week." For such a development of existing centres $121,000 would be needed, he contended.

The small increase allowed by the board, Mr. Mayper said, would provide only 3,500 additional sessions, "an entirely inadequate provision." The present cost of the centres is nearly $200,000 annually, and if Mr. Mayper's higher increase wins approval the appropriation will reach the $500,000 mark. There are now more than 300 play centres, but the number could be increased to 500, it was said.

"In several of his public addresses," Mr. Mayper wrote, "former Police Commissioner Whalen made the significant comment that 60 per cent of the robberies committed in this city were committed by children under 20 years of age, and that an analysis established that many of those children were led astray by evil companions of the streets because there was no place for the adolescent child to spend his time in profitable play and enjoyment."

INVESTIGATE $73 HOLD-UP.

Detectives last night were investigating the story of Thomas Hughes of 105 South Eighth Avenue, Mount Vernon, ticket agent at the Columbus Avenue station in that city of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad, who reported that he was held up and robbed of $73 at the ticket office early yesterday morning. An alarm was sent out after Hughes had given the police a description of the hold-up man.

Mary Lewis Obtains Divorce From Bohnen; Testifies He Is Engaged to German Dancer

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15 (AP).—Mary Lewis, grand opera star, obtained a divorce today from Michael Bohnen, operatic singer, on charges of desertion and cruelty, in a Superior Court hearing lasting less than ten minutes. Mr. Bohnen, who was asserted to have left his wife in July, 1929, did not contest the action.

Miss Lewis testified that Mr. Bohnen slapped her, pulled her hair and threw her about the room. Despite this treatment, she said, she followed him to Europe in hope of a reconciliation, but learned there he had become engaged to marry "a German acrobatic dancer known on the stage as La Jana."

The court approved a property settlement under which Miss Lewis receives $35,000 from Mr. Bohnen.

Five days after their marriage, which was performed by Mayor Walker at City Hall on the evening of April 14, 1927, the Bohnens faced a temporary separation. Michael Bohnen was scheduled to sail for Europe, and his bride had operatic engagements to fill here. She "threw her contracts to the winds" and sailed with him.

The same August she was to return ahead of him. He went to the pier at Cherbourg to say good-bye, but just as the boat gang plank was about to be drawn up he bought a ticket, and, with only a change of linen for baggage, sailed with her.

Exactly two years later Miss Lewis filed suit in Los Angeles for separate maintenance on grounds of cruelty. In New York, she said in her complaint, Mr. Bohnen had tried to make her jump out of a fourteenth-floor window. Berlin has become memorable as the place where he knocked her against a door so hard that the door burst from its hinges; and in Los Angeles, she charged, her husband slapped her and slammed her against a wall.

Miss Lewis in her petition also said that she and her husband had found that marriage interfered with their careers.

This suit was settled out of court and was dismissed. Miss Lewis said that there had been no reconciliations, but that "Mr. Bohnen is a fine man, and I love him."

Miss Lewis rose to Metropolitan stardom from the choir of the Presbyterian Church of Little Rock, Ark. In 1920 she was a singer at the Greenwich Village Inn, where she came to the attention of John Murray Anderson, who placed her in one of his musical productions. Two years later she won a leading rôle in the "Ziegfeld Follies."

Otto Kahn heard her sing and arranged for an audition before Gatti-Casazza, who thought highly of her voice. She went to Paris to study, entered opera in 1924, and was immediately successful. She made her Metropolitan début in January, 1926.

LACK OF SAFEGUARDS BLAMED FOR WRECK

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 15.—Basing his findings on an investigation into the wreck of a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train at Elizabeth a few weeks ago, James Maybury Jr., chief of the Bureau of Railroads of the Public Utility Commission, reported officially today that the accident was due to lack of safeguards, now installed, and carelessness of a motorist in driving his automobile upon the tracks.

Seventy persons were hurt in the wreck, which occurred when Arthur M. Allcroft of Elizabeth drove his car, said to have been without headlights, upon the tracks at the termination of a dead-end street which was unlighted and not fenced.

"From statements made in connection with the investigation, requests have been made by residents of Elizabeth within the past year to have lights installed at the highway intersection by the city," said the report.

"Since the accident a fence has been erected as arranged by the board, along the southerly line of the station platform at the end of De Hart Place. With this fence and proper lights installed by the city, the intersection of the highway should be safe for travel."

VORONOFF GOES HOME.

Maurice Chevalier, the motion picture star, sailed last night on the French liner Paris for a three months' holiday in Europe, where also he will make stage appearances for one week each in Paris, Berlin and London. During the past three years he said he has spent but six weeks in Paris.

Another passenger was Dr. Serge Voronoff, the gland surgeon, who said that the journey marked the last lap of a trip around the world on a mission for the French Government, lecturing at various French colonies on his work. Dr. Voronoff emphasized that he was not a Viennese, as had been reported, but a Frenchman. He added that Americans seem to need gland rejuvenation ten years earlier than other people because they work hard and use up so much energy.

Taxpayers at Meeting Cheer as Monnett's Letter Is Read.

Special to The New York Times.

LODI, N. J., Aug. 15.—Township taxpayers cheered tonight at the township committee meeting when the secretary read the letter of resignation sent in by Mayor Nicholas V. C. Monnett, who was one of the principal figures in the $200,000 Lodi sewer investigation. The resignation immediately went into effect. M. Field, Sebastian Ruta and Frank Krejci were elected to head the new administration.

A statement from the Little Ferry National Bank, which financed the sewer project with funds borrowed from the State by Senator Chandless, also was read. It indicated that the township owes the bank about $300,000 for the sewer work and other public improvements. One woman taxpayer arose to remark that "the township ought to sell out to the bank" because the community is virtually bankrupt.

FIRE BLOCKS RESCUERS SEEKING 41 MINERS

BLAKEBURN, B. C., Aug. 15 (AP).—All rescue workers were withdrawn from the Blakeburn Mine tonight when dense smoke began rolling toward rescue crews seeking forty-one entombed miners, believed to be dead as a result of an explosion Wednesday night. Officials feared fire in the lower part of No. 4 tunnel would cause another explosion.

The death of a canary, lowered into the mine today, was regarded by veteran workers as confirmation of the belief that the trapped miners had perished.

MONTROSE, Iowa, Aug. 15 (AP).—Four men were killed when a rock ceiling in the McManus rock quarry near here caved in this afternoon. The victims were crushed under tons of rock, loosened when the ceiling gave way.

This was the second fatal accident at the McManus quarry in less than a month. On July 18 George Johnson was killed in a rock cave-in. Previously, quarry operators said, there had been no fatal accidents there in the forty years it had been in operation.

All of the victims of the tragedy today were married and had large families.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 15 (AP).—With six men arrested in connection with Monday's bombing of non-union coal mining properties at Providence, Ky., six others were being sought tonight by State and government officials.

Four men have been arrested in Kentucky and released under bonds. Montgomery and Malone waived preliminary hearing when arraigned late today on the Federal charges. State's Attorney Fletcher Lewis said he expected "two important arrests" within the next few days.

COURT HEARS HEN TROUBLES

Receiver Asks Leave to Sell 750 Which Are About to Moult.

The New York Supreme Court was asked yesterday to take judicial notice of the fact that 750 hens belonging to the Criterion House, at Swan Lake, Sullivan County, would begin to molt in September and would lay no eggs for twelve weeks but during that time must be fed as usual. The application was made by Morris Dobkin, receiver of a partnership consisting of himself and Harry and Sarah Sasnowitz, who was appointed in a suit brought here by Dobkin for the dissolution of the partnership.

Dobkin asked the court for consent to sell the hens because although they can now be sold to neighboring hotels in Sullivan County for eating purposes at a profit his partners refuse to agree to it. Justice Untermyer, who will struggle with the question on Monday, will have the benefit of a Department of Agriculture bulletin on the ways of hens to aid him.

HUGE LIMB CRASHES MOUNT

Mrs. B. W. Campbell Barely Escapes as Falling Branch Hits Her Pony.

SHREWSBURY, N. J., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Bruce W. Campbell narrowly escaped death last Tuesday when a 400-pound limb of a historic buttonwood tree here dropped sixty feet, missed her by a scant foot and struck a thoroughbred polo pony on which she was riding, it was disclosed today. The horse, suffering from a fractured hip bone and possible internal injuries, staggered and nearly threw its rider to the ground. A veterinary said it would have to be killed.

The tree was one of a group recently doomed to be cut down and Mrs. Campbell had been one of the leaders in the successful movement to preserve them. The limb measured eleven inches in diameter and was nine feet in length. Its owner had the tree pruned of its dead branches and a workman was sawing the limb when Mrs. Campbell rode under it. A guard's warning failed to halt Mrs. Campbell in time.

In a separate bulletin, which dealt with industrial employment generally and went into local situations in considerable detail, the United States Employment Service, basing its conclusions on a survey which covered activities throughout the country, emphasized that building continued below the high peak of previous years, with a surplus of workers in the building trades, and declared that manufacturing activity continued to decline in New York City and New York State during July.

Excluding manufacturing, the total of the remaining twelve industrial groups showed a gain in employment of 1 per cent, with a decrease of 1.8 per cent in payroll totals. Manufacturing industries alone, which the bureau said have shown a considerable decrease in employment in July in each of the seven years preceding 1930, reported a decrease of 3.6 per cent in employment, accompanied by a decrease of 9.8 per cent in payroll totals.

Increased employment in July was shown in six of the thirteen industrial groups. Canning and preserving showed a seasonal increase of more than 52 per cent, and Summer resort hotels increased hotel employment 3.4 per cent. Increases of from 0.2 per cent to 1.2 per cent in employment were shown in the operation of telephone and telegraph, electric railway, and power, light and water companies and in anthracite mining.

Changes in employment and payroll totals in manufacturing industries in July as reported above are based upon returns made by 13,147 establishments in fifty-four of the principal manufacturing industries of the United States. These establishments in July had 3,011,509 employes, whose combined earnings in one week were $74,648,141.

Increase in Leather Group.

The leather group alone of the twelve groups of industries showed increased employment and payroll totals in July.

Six of the fifty-four separate industries reported increased employment in July—cane sugar refining, 6.7 per cent; fertilizers, 4.5 per cent; ice cream, 3.7 per cent; boots and shoes, 3.2 per cent; flour, 2.3 per cent, and book and job printing, 1.1 per cent.

The outstanding decreases in employment from June to July were from 10.1 per cent to 13.9 per cent and occurred in the stove, glass, millinery and lace, carpet, agricultural implement and women's clothing industries.

Radio Employment Went Up.

Rayon, radio, aircraft, jewelry, paint, varnish and miscellaneous rubber goods, data for which are not yet included in the bureau's indexes, showed decreased employment in July, with the exception of radio, which reported an increase of 25.7 per cent.

Each of the nine geographic divisions showed decreased employment in July as compared with June. The smallest decreases, from 3.1 per cent to 3.6 per cent, were in the Middle Atlantic, West North Central, South Atlantic and Mountain divisions; the greatest decrease, 5.8 per cent, was reported by the East North Central division.

The per capita earnings in manufacturing industries in July, 1930, were 5.5 per cent lower than in June, 1930.

In July, 1930, 10,200 manufacturing establishments reported an average of 80 per cent of a full normal force, working an average of 91 per cent of full time.

Conditions in State Reviewed.

Reviewing conditions in New York State, the Labor Department's statement said:

"Manufacturing activity decreased in many of the major industries and the employment situation showed no definite improvement during July. Factory closing for temporary periods was quite general, particularly in industries affected by the usual midseason dullness as well as those plants that shut down for one to two weeks for vacations, inventory taking, and plant repairs. Employment in the iron and steel industry was further curtailed and there was more than the usual seasonal decline in employment in the automobile industry and plants manufacturing automobile parts and accessories. Most of the larger plants operated part time and in some instances temporarily closed."

Temporary Releases Rose Here.

Concerning the situation in New York City the report said:

"The usual midsummer slackening and semi-annual closing for inventory, repairs to plant equipment and vacations increased the volume of part-time employment and caused the temporary release of many workers. Operations in several branches of the textile industry were further curtailed and shutdowns for brief periods affected many textile workers. A seasonal slackening of activity and a sharp decline in employment was apparent in several clothing industries; this was particularly noted in the millinery shops and plants manufacturing suits and dress goods, men's and women's garments and miscellaneous needleworking establishments. Increased activity stimulated employment in the men's clothing factories.

"This was also true of the fur industry, which reported seasonal gains in employment. The metal and machinery establishments operated below normal with reduced forces. Employment in the furniture and woodworking establishments and plants manufacturing musical instruments, gloves, paper, and rubber and leather goods remained below normal. A slight upward trend in employment was noted in the canning industry and plants manufacturing oil products, paints and chemicals. The water, light and power plants engaged additional help.

"Favorable weather throughout the month stimulated activities at the seashores and furnished temporary employment to a large number of workers."

Outdoor Labor Demand Rose.

The Employment Service, in its bulletin, said it found some encouragement in the fact that there was an increase in the demand for outdoor labor, chiefly unskilled workers and farm help, and that highway construction increased in volume. The utilities also gave work to a large number.

It said that throughout the country curtailed schedules continued in many manufacturing establishments, and that large numbers of men and women were employed on a part-time basis. Inventory taking in the factories caused considerable unemployment, but the statement said that the majority of these plants which had not reopened during the latter part of July expected to resume operations early in August.

In New Jersey activity was restricted in a number of the leading industries, but agricultural activities absorbed additional unskilled help and the harvesting of fruit and vegetables gave employment to a large number of workers.

UNEMPLOYMENT LOW IN 2 SOUTHERN STATES

Georgia and Alabama Below 1 Per Cent in Census—Nevada Highest of 12 Reporting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—A twelve-State sample of the national unemployment count thus far completed by the Census Bureau, showed two Southern States, Alabama and Georgia, freest from that condition officially described as "without a job, able to work and looking for a job."

By percentages, lowest to highest, unemployment in the widely scattered States ran: Alabama, 0.8; Georgia, 0.9; New Mexico, 1.3; Idaho, 1.4; Vermont, 1.5; Maine, 1.7; Arizona, 1.7; Oklahoma, 1.8; Indiana, 2.1; Colorado, 2.2; Montana, 2.2, and Nevada, 3.1.

Minor laurels for low score went to Liberty County, Mont., where not one of the 2,203 population complained of being jobless.

No other county in the United States thus far has reported no unemployed.

Its nearest rival was Greene County, Ala., where but two of the 19,765 population were out of jobs and looking for work.

The partial returns, considered by States and by counties, and, occasionally, by cities, showed unemployment to be capricious, visiting the country as well as the city; the mountain and desert districts as well as the seaboard industrial centres.

Nevada, least populous State, has the highest unemployment percentage (3.1) of all States thus far reporting.

Alabama boasted eight counties in which unemployment was less than one-tenth of 1 per cent; fifty-one more counties in which unemployment was less than 1 per cent, and only eight counties in which more than one person in 100 was jobless.

Georgia, with 161 counties, had 131 in which less than one person in 100 was unemployed.

In these two States and in Oklahoma, unemployment percentages were highest in the larger cities. Tulsa County reported 11,991 unemployed in her 187,405 population, or 6.4 per cent.

'Lost' 48 Years, Finds Family by Ad.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 15 (AP).—"Lost" for forty-eight years, Mrs. Mary Hortense Smith, was located today by her family through a newspaper advertisement. In the advertisement, she told her family she was living at 1,002 Harrison Street, Denver, Col., and wished to communicate with them. Her brother, a New Orleans real estate operator, said his sister dropped from sight forty-eight years ago when the family objected to her marriage plans. He said they had heard she married but did not know her husband's name.

DECLARES MERGERS INCREASE JOBLESS

CIVIL SERVICE CRITICIZED

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 15.—A warning against further concentration of large business units, criticism of the American civil service system and suggestions for the beautification of rural areas were features of today's session of the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs.

Speaking before the round table on "Business and Government," Donald Randall Richberg, a Chicago lawyer and author, who aided in drafting the Couzens railroad consolidation bill, criticized the railroad consolidation plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission as a menace to labor and contrary to public welfare. He asserted that if the government and the courts continue to lend their approval to such consolidation of business groups the result might be the formation of a workers' political party by the liberal forces of the country in protest against the stand-pat conservatism of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Mr. Richards said he saw a definite relation between the present unemployment situation and the industrial consolidation, and denounced the suggestions of some employers that this situation should be exploited to reduce wages. He quoted Samuel J. Insull of Chicago as having told him recently that "the best guarantee of labor efficiency, in his opinion, was a long line of applicants for jobs waiting at the gate."

"If the conspicuously successful operators of modern industry had not been partially blocked in their efforts to prevent self-organization of the workers they would have provided us with even lower standards of living than we now have, and with worse and more frequent cycles of business depression. The battle of organized labor, with all its weaknesses, to improve the living standards of the American wage earner has prevented our industrial leadership from achieving complete success in impoverishing its customers," Mr. Richberg said.

Henry Ford Is Praised.

As an exception to what he termed the undesirable results of concentrated control and mass production in many industries, Mr. Richberg cited Henry Ford.

"Without endorsing or approving of the philosophy of Henry Ford it must be recognized that he has forced policies upon his industry which are at variance with those ruling other important industries and that these policies have produced unparalleled social benefits."

The same menace which lies in consolidation of industries may be seen in the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan for railroad consolidation, according to Mr. Richberg, who declared further that "excessive concentration of power means larger instead of smaller costs to the consumer and that the main resullt of concentrated industrial power is overcapitalization, with resultant overvaluation and pyramiding of consumer costs.

The civil service systems of Europe and the United States were contrasted by Dr. Carl J. Friedrich of Germany, who is Assistant Professor of Government at Harvard University. The thesis was that the civil service in this country does not meet the needs of a highly industrialized society, which must increasingly fall back on the public services. He praised the European system of drawing civil servants directly from the schools and universities, where they are trained to meet publicly known requirements, in contrast with the American system of holding specific examinations for specific jobs.

American System Criticized.

Members of the round table on "The Administration of Public Business," led by Thomas H. Reed of Michigan University, joined in the discussion and criticized particularly the American system of making it compulsory to select an appointee from the three names highest on the list of eligibles. Major R. S. Buck, industrial engineer, of New York City, said he had frequently been handicapped by this restriction and believed that greater elasticity would promote efficiency of the State and Federal civil service systems.

Every State should have a landscape architect on its highway commission, the Rev. W. E. R. Goodwin told the round table on "National Country Life Questions." Dr. Goodwin, who is rector of Old Bruton Parish in Williamsburg, said that such a commission could render valuable service in helping to plan and beautify State highways and by pointing out to property owners the commercial value of beautifying their property.

The commercialization of the airplane is due to the spectacular trip of Colonel Lindbergh and others whose exploits have caused an "almost hysterical emotion to sweep over the world," Edward S. Evans, president of the Detroit Aircraft Association, said in an address on commercial aviation at the evening session of the institute.

Over $200,000,000 was invested in the airplane industry in the two years following Lindbergh's transatlantic flight, and in 1929, described as a year of mergers and expansion, Mr. Evans said the public had bid up aviation securities to four times their value. He said the current year was one of readjustment and retrenchment but likewise one of "feverish progress" in which changes and improvements in designs were so fast that they have caused great losses.

The outstanding development is in the increase of safety in which a 15 per cent improvement has been noted, 1,022,000 miles having been flown by transportation lines for every fatality. In 1929, Mr. Evans said, the proportion of accidents per miles flown was just half of what it was in 1928.

Buys Schlee-Brock Plane.

Powel Crosley, radio manufacturer, it was learned here yesterday, has purchased the Lockheed Vega monoplane in which Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock recently made a round trip from Jacksonville to San Diego and return in thirty-one hours. The plane has been entered in the non-stop derby between Los Angeles and Chicago, an event in the national air races. Brock will pilot it, and plans are being made to broadcast a running story of the flight from the plane during the race.

Mob of 2,000 Tries to Burn Communist Camp; Elmira Deputies and Troopers Defeat Raid

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 16—After a night of turmoil and hours of daytime fear forty of the children who have been in the Communists camp at Van Etten left tonight for their homes in New York City and Baltimore. Tomorrow will see the remaining thirty departing by train, thus ending the camp's activities.

A mob, estimated by some to number 2,000, gathered at the camp last night with the avowed purpose of compelling the occupants to leave the camp before they set it afire. Some of the intruders were from Waverly, N. Y., but most of them were from Pennsylvania.

They were about to execute their threat to set the camp buildings afire when Sheriff H. T. Tifft and six deputies with a dozen State Troopers arrived and stopped them.

Tonight men occupying cars with Pennsylvania licenses met a stern reception at the camp. The troopers lined the roadway, and, as each car stopped, its driver was ordered to keep moving until he had recrossed the State line.

Miss Aileen Holmes and Miss Mabel Husa, camp directoresses, who are charged, Waverly and Athens (Pa.) residents with spitting upon and cursing the flag, will go on trial.

Due to rumors of large purchases of revolver ammunition, a large detachment of State Police has been ordered to Van Etten to protect the defendants at the town hall.

The Workers' International Relief issued a statement yesterday at its office at 949 Broadway attacking the American Legion, the Ku Klux Klan and the authorities at Van Etten. It asserted that a "conspiracy to butcher the children and whip up a lynching spirit" existed among them.

The American Civil Liberties Union yesterday sent telegrams to Governor Roosevelt asking protection of the Communist camp at Van Etten and for an inquiry into the arrest of the two women leaders on Tuesday.

REVERE GANG SHOOTING TRAPS MURDER SUSPECT

REVERE, Mass., Aug. 15 (AP).—A gang shooting in this city, which sent four men to a Chelsea hospital early today, two of them seriously wounded, is declared by Cambridge police to have thrown into their hands a murder suspect they have sought for five years.

The man is booked at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital as James Donovan of East Boston, but Cambridge police inspectors say they have positively identified him as James Preston, wanted for the murder of Edward Ross, youthful bank messenger in Cambridge. Preston, Cambridge police told local authorities, was a pal of Jerry Gedzium, alias Jerry the Pole, who was executed for Ross's murder.

More than 100 shots were fired in the unexplained shooting, which wrecked the rooms of the Glendale Social Club on the third floor of the building occupied by the Revere Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, but when police arrived the premises, which are near the Crescent Beach station of the narrow-gauge railroad, were deserted.

Later Preston and the others were brought to the hospital by friends.

BROKERAGE CLERK ACCUSED

Ex-Employe Said to Have Used Customer's Account for $54,000 Trading.

Frank H. Smith, 28 years old, of 1 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, employed until recently as a margin clerk by the brokerage firm of Orr, Van Dyne & Krech of 52 William Street, was locked in the Old Slip police station last night on a charge of grand larceny. He is accused of trading on an account of the firm to the extent of $54,000, for which he had not put up any security, and the value of which stock in the meantime had fallen to $34,000.

Smith had left the employ of Orr, Van Dyne & Krech without his alleged irregularities being discovered, and went to work for another firm in the financial district. Before changing his employment, Smith is said to have destroyed all records of his transactions.

When a clerk of the brokerage firm found irregularities yesterday morning and could not trace them a private detective was sent to Smith's new place of employment. After being questioned, Smith is said to have confessed. Detectives were then called in, and they arrested Smith. He had been employed by the William Street firm for several years and was receiving a salary of $65 a week when he left. The loss to the firm is covered by a surety bond.

GET $3,300 IN 2 HOLD-UPS.

Two armed robbers escaped with a $3,000 payroll yesterday afternoon after beating a messenger over the head with a lead pipe in a hallway at 1 Junius Street, Brooklyn, when he attempted to protect a small leather case containing the money.

Twenty minutes later two men, similar in appearance, entered the Burns Brothers Coal Company office at Fifty-first Street and First Avenue, Brooklyn, and took $300 from a cash register after covering the office manager, Joseph C. Battiste, and two other employes with pistols. In each case the hold-up men escaped in sedan automobiles.

Milton Missing, 35 years old, an employe of Hefter & Co., Inc., manufacturers of paper boxes, of 1 Junius Street, was the first victim. He had just drawn the $3,000 from the Lafayette National Bank at 100 Livingston Street.

BELGIAN LEADER IN SOVIET.

Socialist Says Visit Is Purely Personal—Profintern Congress Opens.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 15.—Emile Vandervelde, Belgian Socialist leader, arrived here today, which was also marked by the opening of the fifth congress of the Profintern, the Revolutionary International Union of Workers, which now claims a membership of 17,000,000, including 11,000,000 Russians.

The Belgian leader of the Second International declared there was no political purpose in his journey, either official or semi-official. He said he would visit the Far East and that he wished to show the sights of Moscow to his wife, who is here for the first time. He has arranged no interviews with Soviet officials, most of whom are absent from Moscow on vacation, anyway. He expects to stay here four or five days.

Another Mexican Mine Would Close.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 15.—El Boleo Mine, at Santa Rosalia, Lower California, has applied to the government for permission to suspend operations because of the silver depression. The Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor is reported to have the case under consideration. Closing of the mine would throw 3,000 men out of work.

TWO KILLED, ONE HURT AS CAR SKIDS OFF ROAD

Special to The New York Times.

NYACK, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Two men are dead and a third seriously injured as the result of an automobile accident when the car in which they were riding skidded in the rainstorm early today on a sharp curve on the State road between Sparkill and Tappan, crashed into a telephone pole and overturned in a field.

The dead are Louis J. Ruckle, 33 years old, of 182 Engle Street, Englewood, N. J., and Thomas E. Sayles, 35, of 326 Washington Avenue, Dumont, N. J.

Ralph Vankuren, 37, of 91 Alexander Avenue, Nutley, N. J., is suffering from internal injuries in Nyack Hospital but is expected to recover.

The men were returning home from a day's motor trip to Bear Mountain. Blinded by the heavy storm and speeding on an unfamiliar road, the driver was unable to make the sharp turn.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 15.—Ned Bolt of 416 Centennial Avenue, High Point, N. C., a bill poster, struck by an automobile truck at Swainton this afternoon, died in the Atlantic City Hospital tonight. State police said he had parked his car and was getting out when he was struck. The driver of the truck, Calvin Eason, 1,115 McKinley Avenue, Pleasantville, was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Delaney of Sea Isle for driving without a license and held in $1,000 bail.

ASK $1,057,341 TAX REFUND

A refund of $799,106 on income taxes paid to the United States Government for 1918 is sought by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company of Jersey City in a suit filed in Federal court in Newark yesterday by Jacob L. Newmann, attorney.

Simultaneously a suit was brought in New York against Frank K. Bowers, Collector of Internal Revenue, for a $259,235.09 refund on income taxes paid by the company for 1919 and 1920. The company seeks the return of taxes totaling $1,057,341.09.

According to the Newark complaint, $2,656,752 was paid as income tax by the company for 1918 to a collector in New York now out of office and, of this amount, $799,106.99 was in excess of the legal tax due.

The suit in New Jersey is directed against the United States under an amendment to the Tucket act, providing for such procedure in a case where the collector who received the tax is no longer in office.

OHIO CONVICTS HELD IN FIRE

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—Two convicts were being held in the Columbus jail today in connection with the fire in April at the Ohio Penitentiary, when 320 prisoners locked in their cells were burned or suffocated to death.

The convicts' names were not disclosed. Great secrecy surrounded their moving from the penitentiary to city jail. They were brought out of the cell blocks under cover of night, placed in trucks in the prison yard and taken to the jail under heavy guard. No official charge had been placed against them.

For many weeks the Fire Marshal's office and Warden Thomas have been endeavoring to ascertain the origin of the penitentiary fire. Early investigations failed to disclose the cause. Some officers held that it was defective wiring, while others contended that the fire was started by convicts who hoped to escape during the confusion.

Hirsch Reprieve at Sing Sing.

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes received today the official papers from the office of Governor Roosevelt granting a four months' reprieve to Hyman Hirsch, slayer of Dr. Jacob Grossman, a New York dentist, who was to have been executed next Thursday. The execution is postponed until Dec. 8.

Attacks State Copyright Tax.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The right of States to tax income from copyrights was challenged today in an appeal to the Supreme Court by the Educational Films Corporation of America. The producing company contended that New York State had no right to impose a tax on a monopoly granted by the Federal Government. The lower courts sustained the tax.

Brakeman Killed by Third Rail.

Thomas Fox, 22 years old, of 166 West Ninety-eighth Street, a brakeman for the New York Central Lines, was killed yesterday morning in the Westchester yards when his right foot came in contact with the third rail of the westbound track while he had his hands on the coupling apparatus of two cars of a laid-up train.

When Edison and Ford Were Seventeen

THE second attempt of Thomas A. Edison to select a youthful genius, supported by the judgment of Henry Ford, leads to speculation as to the youthful abilities and inclinations of these two men. An article in The New York Times Magazine, tomorrow, Sunday, tells the story.

At the age of his latest protege, the inventor was jobless, "without opportunities, due preparation or friends, but with confidence in himself and a hungry eagerness for whatever the future might bring." The motor car wizard was earning $4.50 a week.

CITY FINDS 80 JOBS FOR 2,000 SEEKERS

2 BOYS FIRST TO GET WORK

150 WOMEN APPLICANTS

Eighty jobs were available on the opening day yesterday of New York City's Free Employment Agency. Two thousand men and women registered for the jobs, while hundreds of others, hope deferred or crushed, wearied of waiting in the rain and trudged off without registering.

From 3 o'clock in the morning until past dusk, streams of the city's unemployed filed into Lafayette Street, opposite the gray stone bulk of the Tombs, and waited hopefully on line, inside and outside the old New York Life Building at 54, for the job that would mean the end of searching. Even with the eighty jobs filled by the early afternoon, the jobless poured into the agency and waited in fountain-like streams before twenty registrars to take down their applications. There could be no estimate of the numbers who, overwhelmed by the competition for the few jobs available, turned away before reaching the registration desks.

From the hundreds of applications, as well as from the physical and sartorial differences discerned among the applicants, it was evident that they represented every section of New York's industrial life affected by the unemployment wave. Plumbers, carpenters, furriers, garment workers, bakers, laborers, clerical workers, salesmen, domestics—every craft and calling revealed the toll of the depression.

Though the opening of the city bureau was announced for 9 o'clock yesterday morning, the unemployed began to gather in front of the bureau at 3 o'clock. The rain made waiting an additional ordeal, but the crowds were saved at least an hour of drenching when Edward C. Rybicki, director of the agency, arrived at 8 o'clock with a number of registrars and ordered the doors opened and refuge from the rain permitted in the hallway of the old loft building.

Today no let-up is expected in the number of applicants. Registrars and clerks worked feverishly yesterday to register the jobless and to sort the applicants for the jobs for which they were fitted. Mr. Rybicki issued another appeal to employers and the non-paying employment agencies in the city to cooperate in the Department of Public Welfare's attempt to cope with the city's unemployment problem.

The case records filed yesterday revealed moving examples of hardship and privation through long periods of enforced idleness. Some applicants declared they had been unemployed for two years.

The job-seekers, despite the long wait and the desperation of many, were orderly and gave no trouble to the lone policeman stationed on the first floor of the building. The applicants were quiet and there was no pushing.

The eighty jobs filled yesterday, according to Mr. Rybicki, were mainly for laborers, clerical workers and errand boys. There were few openings for women and few women registered, there being not more than 150 women applicants.

Two boys, Adam Beedenbender, 16 years old, of 9,627 Merritt Terrace, Corona, and William Warren, 17, of 42 Bergen Street, were the first to be successful in landing jobs through the city agency. Lillian Self, 18, of 81-20 Van Loon Place, Elmhurst, L. I., was the first successful girl. She said she had been idle eighteen months. She was hired by the F. A. Landis Importing Company, 349 Broadway.

The bureau has ten field men, three of whom are assigned to Manhattan, to scour the city for jobs. They were able to locate a batch of forty jobs at one blow in Queens for laborers, and these were promptly filled. The wages offered on the eighty jobs ranged from $12 to $40, according to Mr. Rybicki. Applicants, in filling out their cards, asked from $15 to $40 a week.

Radical propagandists were in evidence yesterday while the lines of unemployed were being formed and reformed. They distributed some literature, but were neither molested by the police nor did they affect the temper of the crowd.

A brief reception was tendered to Mr. Rybicki, who is president of the Council of Polish Democratic Clubs, by representatives of Polish organizations at the agency's offices in the afternoon.

TO URGE OLD AGE PENSION.

Connecticut Labor Federation Will Offer Bill to Legislature.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 15 (AP).—John J. Egan, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, made public today the details of an old age pension bill which will be introduced at the next session of the Legislature.

Drafted by a committee representing the Federation of Labor and ten other organizations of the State, the bill would provide a pension of $9 a week to every indigent person over the age of 65 years provided he had been a resident of the State fifteen years and had no prison record within ten years prior to the application for the pension. The applicant, Mr. Egan said, must also show that he is a citizen of the United States and has no one legally responsible and [illegible] capable of supporting him.

It is estimated that about 20,000 persons in Connecticut would be eligible to receive the proposed pension.

Farrell Resigns as State Senator.

ALBANY, Aug. 15 (AP).—Lieut. Gov. Lehman received today the resignation of Daniel F. Farrell as member of the State Senate from the Fifth (Brooklyn) District. Senator Farrell, who has been in the Legislature twenty years, of which eleven were passed in the Senate, is to become Deputy Registrar of Kings County.

665,829 Motor Vehicles in City, An Increase of 31,346 in Year

An increase of 31,346 in motor vehicles of all classes in the metropolitan district of New York since June, 1929, was shown in the report of registrations up to June 1, made public yesterday by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles from figures compiled by the State Department of Taxation and Finance.

Buses	29,754
Commercial cars and trucks	107,701
Trailers	2,839
Dealers' cars	984
Tractors	1,426
Motorcycles	5,049

This compares with a total of 634,483 vehicles registered as of June 1, 1929. While passenger cars showed a gain of 33,698 and trucks and commercial cars increased by 1,187, buses dropped from 33,510 to 29,754.

The number of motor vehicles in the State was 2,263,259 on Jan. 1, 1930.

DEALERS' LEADER IS CALLED

Chief Supervisor Homer C. Welch, in charge of the kosher squad of the Department of Public Markets, and six of his assistants, comprising the entire squad, were questioned yesterday by James A. Higgins, Commissioner of Accounts, on the charges of graft among supervisors.

While Mr. Higgins would not reveal details of his examination he indicated that he had found sufficient basis in the answers of the supervisors to warrant an extensive inquiry into their activities. He said he would question many more witnesses next week in an effort to gather all testimony available concerning their work. One of those questioned was John R. Shea, suspended recently after he had been accused of attempting to extort $50 from H. J. Reiter, a Queens butcher. Others were Bruno Frankel, Piladis J. Cellai, Nicholas A. Post, Irving M. Nason and one other supervisor.

Asked if Welch and Shea had been questioned on the testimony of Oscar Glassberg, a Brooklyn butcher who said they had attempted to "shake him down," Mr. Higgins refused to disclose the basis of the questioning. Glassburg's testimony was given at a public hearing before the commissioner.

He admitted, however, that he had summoned the men to answer charges of grafting in connection with the sale of kosher meat and to reveal what they knew about the preparation of food sold as kosher, as well as the alleged sale of non-kosher meat as kosher. The kosher squad has recently been shaken up by Thomas F. Dwyer, Commissioner of Public Markets, but the men questioned yesterday comprised the squad as it existed before the graft charges were made. They cover the five boroughs.

Commissioner Higgins also examined the organizer and former secretary of a large wholesale meat dealers' association on the east side. He would not disclose the name of this witness, who appeared in answer to a subpoena. It was understood that Commissioner Higgins summoned the man because he had been informed that further information on alleged grafting by market supervisors could be obtained from him. As a result of the information given to him by this man, Mr. Higgins said he would "carry the Markets Department inquiry right to the bottom."

The examination of twenty-five Brooklyn and Queens butchers, who are waiting to inform the Commissioner of Accounts of specific instances in which they have paid graft to market supervisors in return for concessions, is expected to begin next week. Mr. Higgins said he would appeal to the District Attorneys of the five counties personally in the early part of the week to grant immunity to any retailer of kosher products who wished to testify.

Six new accountants appointed by Mr. Higgins last Wednesday to aid in his special investigations will assume their duties next Monday. Four additional accountants, six engineering inspectors and two stenographers will also be employed for a temporary period of about three months. They will be assigned to assist in the investigations into the Dock Department, the Board of Standards and Appeals, the Bureau of Weights and Measures and the Fire Department relief fund.

Mr. Higgins said he was still continuing his investigation of two anonymous complaints involving two departments not already embraced in his inquiry. Both he and Mayor Walker have declined to name these departments. Commissioner Higgins is expected to report his findings to the Mayor early next week.

MYSTERY IN JAIL DEATH.

Officials Give Several Versions of Fatality in Ridgefield Cell.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 15.—Several versions were given today by the police and officials of the circumstances of the death of Charles R. Carruth, a salesman, of Ormond Street, Hempstead, L. I., who was found dead in a police cell in Ridgefield this morning.

Dr. Joseph Total, called in by the police, viewed the body in the cell and said he believed acute alcoholism was the cause of death. An autopsy performed by Dr. Ralph Gilady of Hackensack, under the direction of acting County Physician Dr. Arthur Greenfield, was said to reveal no trace of alcohol. In his report, Dr. Greenfield said that a heart condition had been found that was undoubtedly the cause of death.

Supervisor of Police Clarence Darrow said he believed that Carruth was intoxicated when found and that he became abusive when the police patrol arrived to take him to the station house. Another story was that he was unconscious when found. The only detail on which the stories agreed was that Carruth was unconscious when put into the cell and that a doctor had not been called.

TRANSIT LINES SHOW A PASSENGER GAIN

SUBWAY TRAVEL INCREASES

Bronx and Richmond Bus Totals Also Higher—Most Surface-Car Systems Sustain Losses.

Rapid transit, surface car, bus and Hudson Tube lines carried approximately 834,287,000 passengers during the quarter ended March 31, a gain of 12,973,000 over the same period in 1929, according to a report made public yesterday by the Transit Commission. The report showed that the Interborough and B. M. T. subways made substantial gains in the number of passengers carried, as did bus lines in the Bronx and Staten Island. Most of the surface car lines showed passenger traffic declines compared with the first quarter of 1929, the Manhattan lines continuing, as they have done in recent years, to sustain the greatest losses.

The commission's report included an estimate of 26,875,000 passengers for the municipal bus lines which submit no official reports.

The greatest gain in traffic over last year's quarter was shown by the subway division of the Interborough, with a count of 257,966,000 passengers, an increase of 13,352,000, or 5.5 per cent. The B. M. T., with 176,993,000 passengers, showed a gain of 6,184,000, or 3.6 per cent over the traffic for the same quarter in 1929. The Interborough and the B. M. T. systems combined, accounted for more than 519,283,000 passengers, a gain of 20,082,000, or 4 per cent over those of the corresponding period a year ago.

The Interborough's elevated lines carried 84,324,000 passengers during the quarter, a gain of 546,000 over the first three months of 1929. Surface car lines, including the local line over the Williamsburg Bridge, carried 229,642,000 passengers, a drop of 10,935,000 or 4.6 per cent from the figures for the quarter ended March 31, 1929. The decrease on the Manhattan lines alone was 6,928,000 or about 10 per cent, all lines being affected. There was also a decrease in Brooklyn surface car traffic, with a drop of 2,545,000 passengers, the largest losses being suffered in sections where new city subway construction work is under way. The only gains in surface car traffic were in the Bronx, where 1,118,000 more passengers were carried than during the initial quarter of 1929, and in Queens, where the increase was 11,000.

Total operating revenues of all rapid transit and street surface lines for the quarter were $40,314,000, a gain of $532,000 over the same quarter in 1929. The entire gain was attributable to rapid transit revenues which increased $1,067,000, while surface car revenues were dropping $536,000.

KEEPS GIANTS CONTROL, STONEHAM DECLARES

Denies McNally Has 30% Interest, Saying He Himself Bought Some Kenny Stock.

Charles A. Stoneham, president of the National Exhibition Company, which controls the Giants, declared in an announcement yesterday that he had himself purchased about one-tenth of the 20 per cent interest in the ball club formerly owned by William F. Kenny. The purchase was revealed in connection with Mr. Stoneham's denial of reports that J. H. McNally had acquired 30 per cent of the stock of the club and would shortly acquired a controling interest.

At Mr. Stoneham's office yesterday it was said that Mr. Stoneham's own holdings constituted a clear majority, and hence a controlling interest in the company. Mr. Stoneham, a spokesman added, had no intention of disposing of any part of his holdings to Mr. McNally, and contemplated no change in the present organization of the company.

The formal statement issued from Mr. Stoneham's office follows:

"Neither Mr. McGraw nor Mr. Stoneham has ever been in direct or indirect communication with Mr. McNally or his asociates with respect to the sale of the controling interest of the baseball club or any other business proposition.

"If Mr. McNally has purchased the holdings of Mr. Kenny in the baseball club it means that he has acquired approximately 20 per cent of the stock of the National Exhibition Company. This cannot be correct because Mr. Stoneham has just accepted the offer, and has purchased from Francis X. McQuade approximately 10 per cent of Mr. Kenny's stock himself.

"The purchase by Mr. McNally, if made, will in no wise affect either the business management of the corporation or the management of the team. Mr. McGraw at present is in New York on personal business, which has absolutely no relation to the purchase or sale of the ball club. As soon as Mr. McGraw's personal affairs are straightened out he will join the team."

BANK AT ARGYLE CLOSED.

Guarded Against Run Following Suicide of President.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—The National Bank of Argyle closed today pending the outcome of an examination by bank examiners, begun a week ago. The action was taken by the directors and was declared to be for the protection of depositors and to guard against a possible run.

Fifteen minutes after the bank examiners began their work Monday morning, Howard E. Snyder, the bank's president, shot himself to death in a vault.

E. D. Burch and H. V. Mix, directors, said today that the examination thus far has disclosed no shortage or other irregularities and that, in their opinion, the bank could continue to do business. No reason for Snyder's suicide has been disclosed.

Service With the Byrd Expedition Holds Up Balchen and Buys in Seeking Citizenship

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—A provision of the naturalization laws requiring continuous residence in the United States by applicants for citizenship has blocked the Department of Labor from crediting to Bernt Balchen, the pilot who carried Rear Admiral Byrd across the South Pole, and John Buys, a Hollander and a seaman on one of the Byrd ships, with the time they spent in the Antarctic and on the Eleanor Bolling.

Raymond F. Crist, Commissioner of Naturalization, tried to get a bill through the last session of Congress giving them full allowance for their time at Little America, but the measure was crowded out in the rush of legislation. His suggestion now is that Balchen and Buys file petitions in a Federal District Court claiming credit for time spent in territory which may be claimed by the United States Government and on the deck of an American vessel.

Commissioner Crist expects that the bill in behalf of Balchen and Buys, introduced by Representative Bloom of New York, will be passed at the session which starts in December. He explained that until such a measure is enacted it will be impossible for the Labor Department to act, but that nothing can prevent the explorers from seeking an interpretation in the courts as to the status, under the naturalization laws, of territory claimed for this country, or of the deck of a vessel flying the American flag.

The bill provides for continuance of citizenship time when an applicant for naturalization may be absent from the country on a scientific mission, backed by the government or citizens of this country. The bill would affect only Balchen, Buys and a Russian family which had been on a research mission in the North seas.

Bernt Balchen has received assurances that his final citizenship papers will be granted him by act of Congress, according to Captain H. H. Railey, New York representative of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Balchen, a native of Norway, took out his first papers in 1927 before his flight to France with Byrd. He said last night that he had been notified by the Naturalization Bureau that because his two years' stay in the Antarctic had broken the required five years' continued residence in the United States, he would have to wait two years more before becoming a full-fledged citizen.

"He has good reason to expect his papers by special act," said Captain Railey. "Senator Shipstead of Minnesota and Admiral Byrd are assisting him."

ANASTASIA SOUGHT AS PERMIT EXPIRES

She Must Ask an Extension of Visiting Time, but Efforts to Find Her Are Fruitless.

REPORT OF SAILING SIFTED

Efforts to get in touch with Mme. Anatasia Tchaikovsky, who has been heralded as the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia, daughter of the late Czar Nicholas II, it being alleged she escaped in the massacre of the imperial family, were begun yesterday by United States immigration authorities following an announcement by the Department of Labor in Washington that she must apply for an extension of the permission under which she has resided in this country since 1928.

Ellis Island officials were investigating reports that Mme. Tchaikovsky already had departed for Europe, but Commissioner Benjamin M. Day said last night that they had not yet determined whether these were true.

Mme. Tchaikovsky's most recent protector, Miss Annie Burr Jennings of 9 East Seventieth Street, sailed for Europe on Aug. 1 in company with Miss Ellybee F. Gallaudet and a maid. At Miss Jennings's home it was said that Mme. Tchaikovsky had not accompanied them. The Princess Xenia of Russia, who brought Mme. Tchaikovsky to the United States two years ago and supported her claim to imperial birth, was not reached last night; neither was Mme. Tchaikovsky's lawyer, Wilton Lloyd-Smith of 63 Broadway. Another attorney, Edward H. Fallows of 475 Fifth Avenue, who has expressed full confidence in Mme. Tchaikovsky's romantic story of having escaped death at the hands of the assassins who killed the rest of the Russian royal family in Siberia in 1917, is understood to be seeking evidence in Europe to assist Mme. Tchaikovsky's claim to the Czar's properties.

The theory is that Mme. Tchaikovsky cannot be deported because the United States has no official relations with Russia, and for the same reason she cannot establish a permanent residence in this country. She is classified as a visiting alien and must apply every six months for extension of permission to stay. The Labor Department said that her present permit expired this month and that another would be granted when her application was received. Even if she did not appply for an extension, however, she could not be sent out of this country, it was added.

Ellis Island authorities said yesterday that they had notified Mr. Lloyd-Smith that his client's permit was about to expire, but had received no reply. Mme. Tchaikovsky had asked three times for an extension of her permit, they said, but had not made formal application.

70, ENDS LIFE IN HOTEL.

In a despondent mood, apparently as a result of malnutrition and his failure to find employment, Max H. Kling, 70 years old, committed suicide early yesterday morning in a room in the Woodstock Hotel. He was discovered with a bullet wound in the temple.

Mr. Kling, who gave his address as 170 Broadway when he registered at the hotel five days ago, had left a request to be called at 9 A. M. When he failed to answer the telephone, John Marr, a bellboy, was sent to the room to investigate and found the body. A pistol lay near by. Dr. N. Broadman, the house physician, said the man had been dead about four hours.

Joseph Goulet, manager of the hotel, and detectives found a note requesting the manager to notify R. Rosenson, 25 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn. Incoherent phrases in the note referred to "fair weather friends" and "tongues made to lie." The man had also written that he "didn't do any one any wrong." He asked that his body be sent to the morgue.

WESTCHESTER ROAD DEFENDS TRAIN CUT

CITIES FIGHT SCHEDULE

The reduction in the number of trains operating on the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway from the Harlem River at 130th Street to terminals in Westchester County from 264 to 184 a day since July 1, when operating control of the line was assumed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, was taken up yesterday at a joint hearing of the Transit Commission and the Public Service Commission in the offices of the latter at 120 Broadway.

John A. Droege, who became vice president and general manager of the Westchester line upon reorganization, testified that the service was reduced because of a need to economize in order to recoup deficits of from $1,600,000 to $1,900,000 a year since 1920. He also said that there had been a reduction of more than 90,000 in the number of passengers carried by the line during the first six months of this year.

Mr. Droege, under cross-examination by Patrick J. Rooney, Corporation Counsel of New Rochelle, conceded that the new train schedule involved a reduction of one-half in the number of trains outside the morning and evening rush hours. He explained that the rush hour schedule had not been altered. The number of local trains stopping at stations in the Bronx under the reduced schedule was given by the witness as forty-four each way each day. Leon G. Godley of the Transit Commission pointed out that the company's franchise from New York City is conditioned on a contract calling for the operation of not less than sixty local trains each way each day.

According to a table submitted the saving effected under the new schedule and because of consolidation of office forces with those of the New Haven line amounts to $262,449 a year. Mr. Rooney contended, however, that only $64,000 was saved by the new schedule.

Joseph Devery, Deputy Corporation Counsel of New York, declared that the road's figures proved that the number of passengers carried had doubled in ten years and asked the witness if it were not far-fetched to justify the train reduction because the number had decreased by 1 per cent in the first six months of this year. Witnesses for the line insisted that the decrease amounted to 10 per cent.

The hearing will be resumed next Wednesday at 10 A. M.

Motor Boat Strikes Rock Off Buffalo Yacht Club.

BUFFALO, Aug. 15 (AP).—Paul T. Schumann, 37, of Buffalo was drowned in the Niagara River off the Buffalo Yacht Club this afternoon. His wife and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Warning, also of Buffalo, were rescued by the crew of a Coast Guard cutter and two fishermen who did not disclose their identity.

The survivors said their motor boat struck a rock about 250 feet off the breakwater opposite the club, sprang a leak and sank within a minute.

Two men fishing from a rowboat heard their cries for help and went to the rescue. They had pulled the two women into their boat when the cutter arrived. Schumann's body was not recovered.

Fire Destroys Hews Pottery Plant.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 15 (AP).—Flames that destroyed the buildings of A. H. Hews & Co., Inc., owners of one of the country's largest and oldest pottery plants, were brought under control early today by the combined efforts of Cambridge, Boston, Belmont, Arlington and Somerville firemen. Loss was estimated by Dunbar Lockwood, treasurer of the company, at $500,000. Traffic along the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine Railroad, which bounds the plant on one side, was held up until a late hour.

$7,186,697 BUDGET ASKED FOR QUEENS

PAY RISES FOR CABINET

Increases of $500 to $3,000 a Year Proposed for Aides of the Borough President.

Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens submitted yesterday his request for the administration's 1931 budget, amounting to $7,186,697.57, to the Board of Estimate. This amount was less than the 1930 budget allowed by the board because all Street Cleaning Department activities were transferred to the Sanitation Commission on Dec. 31 last, cutting down the Queens 1930 budget from $10,154,807.55 to $5,396,073.05.

The total of next year's budget request is $1,790,624.52 more than the 1930 appropriation to run the borough administration, with the street-cleaning activities left out. The extra amount requested would provide for additional men, equipment and materials for highway maintenance work, and for salary increases ranging from $500 to $3,000 a year for members of the Borough President's Cabinet and their assistants, Mr. Harvey stated in his communication to the Board of Estimate.

Mr. Harvey's letter to the Board of Estimate, accompanying the budget request, read:

"A large part of the expenditures for 1931 will be spent on the 1,600 miles of dirt roads in the borough. I have asked for twenty-five motor patrol graders to add to our equipment for dirt-road maintenance work. I want every mile of dirt roads in Queens to be made safe for the emergency calls that constantly go to the Fire and Police Departments and hospitals.

"I believe I have submitted for the consideration of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment as low and economical a budget as could possibly be requested and at the same time give efficient service to the taxpayers of the Borough of Queens.

"I want to take this opportunity to publicly state that Mayor Walker has been very generous and considerate of the needs of this borough. His appropriations to us have been very fair indeed. I have no reason to believe that the Mayor will deviate from his present policy of cooperating with me to the fullest extent in helping to supply the needs of our borough, the fastest-growing borough in the city of New York.

"In conclusion, I may say that the request provided for in the budget for salary raises is simply a step to elevate the various employes in the Borough of Queens to an equal rate of compensation with those in other boroughs in New York City. I am confident that the taxpayers and various civic organizations in this borough will support me in this contention, and approve of the provisions I am making to efficiently improve and maintain all dirt roads, sewers and drainage systems throughout Queens in first-class condition."

Provision has been included in next year's budget for drainage relief to low-lying areas which are often flooded after storms because some of the existing sewers and drainage systems were installed prior to consolidation and are inadequate, Mr. Harvey said.

The officials and municipal employes scheduled to receive salary increases if the budget request is approved by the Board of Estimate, according to Mr. Harvey, with their increases, follow:

WILL GIVE UP HUSBAND.

Vermont "Enoch Arden" Wife Agrees to Aid Second Marriage.

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. Catherine R. Packard, under whose name an unidentified woman sleeps in a grass-grown grave, today met the husband who identified effects found with the other woman a year ago as those of his wife, met the woman whom he later married and then burst into tears when she saw her two small children.

The principals in a mystery involving apparent suicide and mistaken identity greeted each other as they met in the parlor of the hotel here. George J. Packard and his estranged wife, officially recorded as having died a year ago, discussed plans for separation, which the first wife agreed to in order that the woman he married this Summer might legally be married to him, and planned the care of the two children by the first marriage. They did not at once enter upon the mystery of the dead woman who was found in Chester with traces of poison in her stomach and a suicide note identified as having been written by Mrs. Packard.

Determination of the identity of the woman buried as Mrs. Packard was the principal problem facing State investigators who met with the group at the hotel. No reference was made to that problem at the meeting today.

In Concord, N. H., Roger B. (Romeo) King was taken into custody. Police believe he is the Romeo King the first Mrs. Packard admits she became friendly with after leaving her husband last Summer. Vermont State police were trying to link him with a man who twice served sentences for larceny and burglary.

The first Mrs. Packard told the Sheriff that when, in Erie, Pa., she and King had a falling out and she expressed the desire to return to Vermont, King warned her she might get "the same thing some of the rest of them got."

The Sheriff considered this remark so significant he brought King to Springfield along with two others who the first Mrs. Packard said had toured with them.

MINDEN, Nev., Aug. 15.—Just coming through that Yosemite Park this morning and passed those giant redwood trees. Fred Stone proposed that there is where these tree sitters ought to be located.

And say, you talk about a mountain just composed of one solid rock. Why, it's right in there. Coolidge's 500 words of Republican history of America would get lost on this boulder. Why, this rock is big enough to reproduce a Hiram Johnson anti-treaty speech.

John W. Davis is in the park somewhere and the rangers are looking for him. They don't allow dogs or Democratic candidates in there.

FATAL BLAST LAID TO DOORBELL SPARK

NEIGHBORHOOD IN PANIC

Robert Lyons, 35 years old, a widower with four small children, was killed and the neighborhood about his home at 188-30 Jamaica Avenue, Hollis, Queens, was thrown into a panic last night by an explosion unwittingly set off by Lyons's cousin, Thomas McTigue of 168-15 Eighty-ninth Avenue, Jamaica.

McTigue rang the doorbell of Lyons's apartment about 7:10 P. M. As he did so a violent explosion occurred within, shattering the windows in many near-by homes and bringing the neighbors running in alarm into the street.

McTigue, who had been knocked off his feet by the blast, ventured into the apartment. In a chair in the kitchen he found the body of Lyons. It was beside a gas stove, the jets of which were open. A police emergency squad worked over Lyons for an hour, but was unable to revive him.

Finding that all the windows of the apartment were tightly closed, the police adopted the theory that the rooms had become filled with illuminating gas, which had been ignited by a spark from the vibrator on the electric bell when McTigue pushed the button.

The police were unable to determine whether Lyons had left the gas on accidentally or deliberately. Dr. Howard W. Neail, assistant medical examiner, said that he was not sure whether death had been caused by asphyxiation or by the explosion, although inclining to the latter theory. An autopsy will be performed today.

Lyons was employed as the caretaker of the 104th Field Artillery Armory in Jamaica. Since the death of his wife, five years ago, he had lived alone with his two sons and two daughters, the eldest of whom is 12. The children are at present visiting his mother in Providence, R. I.

CONNOLLY, ILL, TAKEN TO PRISON HOSPITAL

Heart and Liver Ailments Were Aggravated by Charges of Privileges, Says Official.

Maurice E. Connolly, former Borough President of Queens, who was sentenced to the Welfare Island penitentiary following the exposure of graft in the purchase of sewer pipes, was transferred to the Correction Hospital Thursday afternoon to rest for two weeks, it was announced yesterday by Richard C. Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Correction. Mr. Patterson described it as a matter of routine.

Ailments of the heart and liver from which Connolly had long suffered had become accentuated by the publication last week of charges that the former Borough President had been enjoying special privileges and favoritism in prison, it was said by Joseph Fishman, Mr. Patterson's assistant. He declared, however, that Connolly's condition was not serious, that he had not requested treatment by a private physician, although this was not against the rules, and that he had received no visitors since going to the hospital.

Connolly had been serving as a clerk in the penitentiary records department. He was ordered to the hospital on recommendation of Dr. Abraham Norman, medical director of the department. Mr. Patterson's statement that he had approved this action follows:

"I received a report dated yesterday from the medical director of the department, Dr. Abraham Norman, and the report reads as follows:

"'I have this date, at 3 P. M., examined Maurice Connolly and find him to be suffering from cardiac decompensation with edema of the lower extremities and engorgement of the liver and congestion in both lungs, the treatment of which requires absolute rest in bed with the appropriate medication for the next two weeks. This condition supervened upon an old-standing cardiac dilation with arteriosclerosis from which inmate (Connolly) has been suffering for many years. I recommend, therefore, that he be transferred to Correction Hospital, where there are suitable facilities for his proper treatment, which, in our institutional hospital, we are unable to give him.'

"In accordance with Dr. Norman's recommendation, Connolly was yesterday transferred to the Correction Hospital on Welfare Island under the jurisdiction of the Department of Correction. This is the usual and routine procedure in cases of this kind."

Joseph A. McCann, warden of the penitentiary, likewise asserted that the transfer was a matter of routine, and added that he and his deputies had personally observed that Connolly was ill.

DOYLE TAX REBATE OF $34,425 IS SHOWN

OVERPAID PRIOR TO 1926

Veterinarian Says He Did Not Keep Books From 1922 to 1924 and Refund Was Granted.

JUSTICE TAKES THE STAND

Testifies That Doyle's Record Was Good—Four Witnesses Tell of $1,700 More in Fees.

Evidence designed to show that the Treasury Department approved William F. Doyle's method of preparing his income tax returns was presented yesterday in the Federal Court, where Doyle is on trial, charged with income tax evasion and perjury.

Over the objection of United States Attorney Tuttle, defense counsel read into the record communications between the veterinarian and the Internal Revenue Department in an attempt to prove that the department had allowed his contention that he could deduct split fees and commissions he paid for getting business before setting down the figure he named in his returns as gross income.

Early Documents Quoted.

While the government has amassed through testimony a total of $429,125 in fees paid to Doyle in 1927, 1928 and 1929 for appearances before the Board of Standards and Appeals, the defense asserts that when amounts he paid for commissions are deducted from that sum the figure will be within the amounts declared in his tax returns. Documentary evidence for the earlier years was introduced by the defense to substantiate the assertion that in drawing up his returns for the years involved in the indictments in the same manner as those for the previous years Doyle had governmental approval.

This evidence consisted of a letter sent by Doyle to the Internal Revenue Commissioner in 1926 asking a refund on taxes paid in 1922, 1923 and 1924 on the ground that the department had not taken into account the fees he split with persons who brought clients to him, and a later report from the Treasury Department granting him a refund of $34,425 for those years.

In the early part of his practice, Doyle said in the letter, he did not know that he was required to keep books, so that in filing the returns for 1922, 1923 and 1924 he overpaid the government. In 1926, his letter intimated, he filed an amended return because of suggestions that he might be subject to prosecution because of the form of the original returns.

Admitted to Show "Intent."

Mr. Tuttle, in opposing introduction of these documents, asserted that they were irrelevant, as they related to the years not involved in the indictments, but Judge Martineau, admitting them, instructed the jury to consider them only as relating to the "intent" of Doyle in preparing his returns along similar lines for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929.

Robert H. Fisher, an internal revenue investigator, who checked up on Doyle's tax return for 1928, was recalled to the stand for questioning regarding the books of the Goldran Realty Company.

Over the objections of the defense Mr. Tuttle was permitted to reopen his case to call additional clients of Doyle to the stand to tell of further payments. These were Jacob Metz, who said he paid Doyle $500; Sidney Kasnowit, who said he paid Doyle $250; Maurice D. Serling, an attorney, who said he paid Doyle $750, and Isaac Van Dillen, who said he paid Doyle $200.

Supreme Court Justice John L. Walsh of Brooklyn, as a character witness for Doyle, pronounced the veterinarian's reputation as "good." Court was adjourned early at the request of the jurors, who said they wanted to attend to business affairs before the week ended. The trial will be resumed Monday.

SUSPENDS 7 POLICEMEN.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 15.—The beginning of a drastic police shake-up demanded by Mayor Bacharach to raise the efficiency of the force was marked today by seven suspensions for dereliction of duty and the intimation that more would follow.

The suspensions, involving a police sergeant and members of the plainclothes and uniformed divisions, were announced by Chief of Police Patrick Doran. Those suspended are all friends. The exact nature of the charge was not revealed.

The new vice squad under Sergeant William Beatty went into action early today, raiding 5 South Mississippi Avenue, and arresting Samuel Lieberman, 35 years old, of 1,904 Pacific Avenue, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. He was held in $2,000 bail.

James P. Meehan, former Hudson County freeholder, who has been campaigning against alleged vice in the First Ward in Jersey City, said yesterday that as the head of a voluntary vigilante committee he had visited twenty "dens of iniquity" in the district on Thursday night and warned them to close. As a result, he said, eight men left the city yesterday. The police scoffed at Meehan's statement, however.

Police Judge Gets Parking Ticket.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The first person to receive a summons for violating the new parking ordinance, effective on Mamaroneck Avenue for the past week, was Police Judge Henry D. Holden of this village. The new parking ordinance prohibits parking on the main street of the village for more than one hour. Judge Holden will be away for the week-end. His summons will be answered on Monday by proxy before Acting Village Judge Louis Taylor.

The Nation's Electric Bill

for commercial and domestic purposes last year was in excess of $2,000,000,000. Yet less than 10% of our farms have electric service, only about 1% of our 250,000 miles of steam railroads are electrified, only about 55% of the total power requirements of the country are supplied electrically and domestic consumption is growing at a rate in excess of 10% annually.

The electric light and power companies are destined to benefit materially from the ever-increasing demands for electric service which must eventuate in the course of our normal national growth and expansion.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Both the stock market and the corn market reversed yesterday their trend of the day before, but the movements seemed to be independent of one another. Corn, after declining 1 cent further, advanced 4¼ cents, closing slightly below the best, while wheat at one time sold nearly 2 cents higher. Prices of stocks advanced rapidly, with transactions considerably larger than the day before and with several of the lately more active shares running up 7 to 12 points. The market ignored the day's continued fall of cotton prices; but, as a matter of fact, the day's view of all the agricultural markets seemed to be greatly confused, and the recovery in stocks was rather generally ascribed to buying-in orders from recent speculators for the decline.

That corn should have advanced on the positive news of abundant rainfall and that wheat should have risen in the face of reports indicating larger supplies might have seemed anomalous. But, quite aside from the conflicting estimates of damage which prevail regarding corn, the adjustment of values even to known conditions is to some extent a matter of guess-work, and wheat has always in its favor the consideration of an abnormally low price, out of line with producing costs. The markets have lost interest in money rates, and therefore hardly discussed the taking of the Treasury's three months' loan of $120,000,000 at an average price of 1.96 per cent per annum. This was not a "new record," however; subscriptions for last month's two-month $50,000,000 loan averaged 1.87 per cent.

Cotton's decline carried the spot price below 12 cents for the first time since June, 1921. As against yesterday's price of 11.90 cents a pound, the lowest level reached in the deflation period of 1921 was 10.85 and, except for four months of that year, the present price is the lowest since the outbreak of war in 1914 carried cotton below 8 cents. It is in fact the same as the low price of the calendar year 1913, and considerably under the monthly average of 1910 to 1913 inclusive. Yesterday's Census Bureau report on last month's consumption shows why the price is falling. With the unsold carry-over from the 1929 crop reckoned a million and a half bales greater than a year ago, takings by home spinners in July were 30 per cent below July, 1929, and, except for the three Summer months of 1924, the smallest since 1921, while exports for the month were actually the smallest since July, 1922.

The monthly statement of American foreign trade was in some respects more encouraging. As was to be expected, value of last month's exports and imports was heavily reduced again from 1929 by the fall of prices. Each decreased about $134,000,000 from the previous July, the ratio of decrease being 33 per cent in exports and 38 in imports. Since the period's fall in average prices has been around 14 per cent, reduction in quantity of goods shipped out or brought in must have been large. But the month's cut in import values is greater proportionately than in exports; as a result of which, the export surplus is slightly greater than a year ago. This, indeed, is the case with the seven months' merchandise trade balance also, which is the largest for the period since 1922. The result provides striking contrast with Great Britain's showing for July, when its exports decreased 23 per cent against only 9 per cent cut in imports.

No light is thrown on the business outlook by the week-end mercantile reviews. Dun expresses the confidence in the longer future that is entertained everywhere, but admits that the crop troubles have accentuated business caution and may compel "modification of earlier views as to the date of decisive revival."

WARNER BROS. STOCK DOWN

Price Eases on Plans for New Issue —Rights Traded.

The announcement by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., that the company would offer rights to stockholders of record of Aug. 25 to subscribe for additional shares at $20 a share in the ratio of one new share for each four shares held was followed yesterday by weakness in the issue on the New York Stock Exchange. After reacting 2⅞ points at 25⅝, the stock rallied however, and closed at 27¼, at which price the issue showed a decline of 1⅜ points for the day.

The rights were traded in on a when-issued basis on the securities market of the New York Produce Exchange yesterday, and later in the day on the New York Curb Exchange. The turnover of the rights on the Produce Exchange totaled 38,100. This business was done in the first half-hour of trading, before the rights were listed on the Curb Exchange, where 102,500 rights were sold. The rights ranged between 1⅞ and 1⅜ on the Produce Exchange, and between 1⅛ and 1⅛ on the Curb Exchange. The closing price on each Exchange was 1⅜.

The balance sheet of the Chrysler Corporation as of June 30, sent to stockholders yesterday, showed current assets of $91,944,786 instead of $19,944,786, as erroneously reported yesterday in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

News that rain was falling in the parched sections of the country produced a spirited advance on the Stock Exchange yesterday, thus accomplishing something which Wall Street's leading market operators have been vainly trying to bring about for some time. The recovery got under way at midday, but gathered momentum as time passed with rising hopes that the drought had been broken. Speculators short of stocks were apparently thrown into a panic between 2 and 3 o'clock when a covering movement of impressive force lifted the whole market. Transactions on the Stock Exchange totaled 2,105,840 shares, a large portion of this turnover being accounted for in the last hour of trading. All the market leaders participated in the advance, but the widest gains were recorded in United States Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, American Machine and Foundry, Air Reduction, J. I. Case, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse Electric, Vanadium, Worthington Pump and United Aircraft.

Running to Cover.

The last few minutes of trading were featured by the most spectacular price movements witnessed in months. Under the leadership of United States Steel and American Can, stocks jumped a point or so between sales. Although the tape fell only two or three minutes behind actual transactions, the advance was carried forward at such a pace that a spread of several points developed in numerous issues between prices on the floor and on the tape. This was bridged, as in the old days of wild trading, by flashes from the floor to the various customers' rooms announcing the progressive advance in bids for pivotal stocks. Traders, startled out of the monotony which has surrounded tape-watching during recent sessions, were undecided last night as to whether the upturn came simply as a result of the overcrowding of the short position or whether that quaint old machine, the "bear-trap," had been trundled out and sprung by leaders of the recent rally.

Call Loans Losing Favor.

The tendency of large corporations with surplus funds to place less of their cash in the call loan market and more in marketable securities is illustrated by the balance sheet of the Chrysler Corporation as of June 30, which was issued yesterday. Holdings of marketable securities, which are said to represent mainly short-term notes, amounted to $16,521,199, compared with $1,729,709 on Dec. 31, 1929. Cash and call loans decreased from $36,977,837 on Dec. 31 to $28,046,003 on June 30. An officer of the company said there was little incentive to keeping money on call at 2½ per cent when short-term notes yielded a better return.

Railroad Financing.

In the first half of 1930, with traffic declining, the railroads did more financing than in any like period in the last five years. The turn of favor from stocks to bonds was reflected in the fact that of $819,284,000 of securities sold by railroads in the first half of the year, only $66,055,000, or 8 per cent, consisted of stock. The total of railway financing in the six months was $368,935,000 greater than in the same period of last year. The shift from stocks to bonds was indicated by figures showing that in the first half of 1929 of railroad securities sold, stocks composed 15 per cent of the total and in 1928 they were 34 per cent of the total.

Money Market and Bill Issue.

Payment for the $120,000,000 of treasury bills which is due to be made in cash on Monday is not expected to have any noticeable influence upon money rates. Ordinarily cash payment for so large a block of government securities would be profoundly disturbing to credit, but in this case the treasury has an issue of $104,000,000 of bills maturing on the same date. As a result, all but $16,000,000 of the transaction will be a "wash-out." The odd $16,000,000 is not likely to be long withheld from the market, either. The treasury always has some quick debts to pay at about the time when it does its financing and some of the $16,000,000 is sure to find its way back to the market in short order. In any case, the amount is hardly large enough to cause much of a flurry under the present easy conditions.

Treasury Bill Rate.

The rate of 1.96 per cent, at which the treasury has just borrowed $120,000,000, was slightly higher than estimates made early in the week by bankers and compares with a rate of 1⅞ per cent on the last issue. Bankers said yesterday, however, that the higher rate did not indicate firmer money conditions. Two important factors, they said, had contributed to make the rate on the present issue higher than that on the last. The first was the amount of the offering, $120,000,000, compared with $50,000,000 for the last issue. The second was the extension of the time that the bills have to run. The current offering will mature in ninety-one days, or not until well into the Fall, whereas the last offering was for only sixty days and will mature in about a month. Actually, the rate secured by the treasury is believed to constitute a low record for the amount and maturity.

Stirring Up Foreign Loans.

With the London market practically closed to foreign loans, applications from prospective borrowers all over the globe are being received here in considerable volume. One government or corporation asks for $50,000,000 and would be satisfied with $10,000,000, allowing the bankers virtually to name the terms. But the current bond market here is not a very receptive one in so far as foreign loans are concerned, so that unless a bank loan can be arranged for a short period there is no chance to talk about "wresting the business from the British." Unless new money can be used by the borrowers to produce revenue, applications for loans at this time usually meet frowns.

MONEY.

Friday, Aug. 15, 1930.

Quoted rates and conditions in the money market were much the same as on Thursday. Business remained light notwithstanding the good supply of funds on offer. On the Stock Exchange 2½ per cent ruled all day, and 2 in the counter trading. Time money ranged from 2¼ to 3¼ per cent for the near and distant maturities. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

RADIO DIVIDENDS CUT INTO SURPLUS

Net Income for First Six Months Smaller Than Needed for Preferred Payments.

NEW DEALS ARE REFLECTED

$505,098 Is Reported Cleared, Compared With $4,996,437 in First Half of 1929.

The Radio Corporation of America, which omitted a report of earnings for the first quarter of 1930, issued a statement yesterday that showed net income for the six months was $505,098, an amount insufficient to pay dividends on either class of preferred stocks. Dividends on these issues were therefore paid from surplus.

The net income compares with net of $4,996,437 in the corresponding period last year. Gross in the first six months of 1930 was $52,732,079, against $60,439,593 in the 1929 period. The net of $505,098 was equal to $1.29 a share on class A preferred outstanding, the dividend requirements of which, for the six months, were $1.75. The net was equal to 42 cents a share on both classes of preferred.

Dividends on the class A preferred stock totaled $684,400 and on the class B preferred, $1,914,500. These payments for dividends, totaling $2,598,900, after addition to surplus of the $505,098 net income, reduced surplus from $30,195,342 on Jan. 1 to $27,596,442 on June 30.

Net income of $4,996,437 in the first half of 1929 was equal to 53 cents a share on the common stock after the payment of preferred dividends.

Detailed Report for Six Months.

In detail the report for the six months showed gross income from operations of $50,584,482 and from other income of $2,147,596, making $52,732,078. Cost of sales, operating, development and selling and administrative expenses totaled $48,282,370 and left a balance of $4,449,708 before interest, depreciation, amortization and Federal taxes. Interest totaled $749,637; depreciation, $2,676,378; amortization, $468,594, and Federal tax provision, $50,000. These deductions left a net of $505,099.

The company issued also a balance sheet as of June 30. This gave effect to the purchase from the General Electric and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing companies, through payment of 6,580,375 shares of Radio common stock, of the radio manufacturing rights and tangible assets in the United States of the two electrical companies other than the relatively small manufacturing business of transmitters and transmitting tubes. Before Jan. 1 these companies made all radio apparatus sold by the Radio Corporation.

The statement showed total assets of $165,274,246 on June 30, against $158,679,883 on Dec. 31. Current assets were $79,393,337, compared with $90,809,150, and current liabilities, $36,045,183, against $38,137,584. Cash was $24,148,821, against $15,318,506; marketable securities at cost, $7,688,251, against $16,811,292; notes and accounts receivable, $15,780,104, against $26,732,554, and inventories, $31,776,160 against $31,546,797. Fixed assets totaled $48,546,595, against $33,531,280.

The value of marketable securities was in excess of cost on Dec. 31 and June 30, according to the statement.

New Lists in Inventories.

The report said that, because of the acquisition of the manufacturing businesses, the inventories include for the first time all manufacturing materials, supplies and work in process. It continued:

"These are being used in the new 1930 production. The liquidation of the old inventory has been practically completed. The amounts of such inventory now remaining are too small to be of consequence to the trade and will have no effect on future balance sheets. The new models of the RCA Victor production did not reach the market during the six months' period which this report covers."

The report said there are no plans for issuing any of the increased Class B preferred stock authorized by stockholders in May.

The report says that in the period of acquiring the General Electric and Westinghouse properties it was not possible to issue a report for the first quarter and that minor adjustments may still be necessary to cover unfinished details.

PROTEST ON MEXICAN DEBT.

Bondholders Say They Must Sanction Agreement to Make It Legal.

The Mexican Preferred Debts International Protective Association, Inc., has issued a formal statement commenting on the text of the agreement reached by the Mexican Government officials and the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico. It says that any alteration of the guaranty of Mexican bonds may be made legally only if the bondholders unanimously agree to it.

The statement adds that "such concessions as the creditors of the Mexican Government may be disposed to make for the benefit of the Mexican nation should be availed of only for the purpose of helping to fulfill her obligations in the future."

$2.05 A SHARE NET FOR COLUMBIA GAS

$29,868,604 Total for Year to June 30 Compares With $30,131,380 for Previous Period.

DROP FOR FIRST 6 MONTHS

Gossler Lays Decline to $5,977,132 From $6,670,335 to Warm Winter and Trade Slump.

The Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation and subsidiaries report for the twelve months ended on June 30 a net income of $29,868,604, equal after preferred dividends to $2.05 a share earned on 11,675,097 common shares now outstanding. This compares with $30,131,380 in the preceding year, equal after preferred dividends to $2.09 a share on the present common capital, and to $2.91 a share on the 8,384,984 common shares outstanding a year ago.

Gross revenues for the twelve months were $104,074,522, against $105,261,498 in the preceding year, and net earnings were $52,427,460, against $54,370,717. Net operating revenue after depreciation, depletion and taxes was $35,372,688, against $36,164,940. Gross income was $35,945,559 against $37,292,978.

Philip G. Gossler, president, in his letter to stockholders, said the figures gave effect to the segregation of oil and gasoline properties of the Columbia system as of Jan. 1, 1930. For the periods since that date the statement includes only dividends received on the preferred stocks of the Columbia Oil and Gasoline Corporation, which are owned by Columbia Gas and Electric. These dividends amounted in the first half of 1930 to $3 a share on the cumulative $6 first preferred stock, of which 337,500 shares are held, and to $1.50 a share on the cumulative $6 second preferred stock, of which 337,500 shares are held.

The decrease in net earnings of the company and its subsidiaries as reported for the first half of this year is due in large part to the extremely warm temperature experienced last Winter in the territories served, Mr. Gossler said, resulting in a materially reduced quantity of gas used by domestic customers, compared with their normal fuel requirements. It is also a reflection of the present industrial conditions existing throughout the country, he said, resulting in a smaller consumption of both gas and electricity than at the same time a year ago.

NEWS OF MARKETS IN LONDON, BERLIN

CREDIT IN AMPLE SUPPLY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Industrial securities mostly were lower on the Stock Exchange today. In British Government issues the 5 per cent war loan rose to a new high record of £104, a notable financial landmark. The previous high was £103 15-16 in 1923. One of the effects of the slump in speculative securities in the past year has been to bring money into high class investment securities, considerably benefiting British Government bonds.

Unilever was a weak spot in the industrials, falling further from 48s 9d to 46s 10½d before recovering partially to 48s ½d on Amsterdam support. International Nickel was off at $21 on the lower profit statement and Brazil Traction was not so good at $35⅝. Columbia Graphophone and His Master's Voice Gramophone both weakened. Courtaulds was £2 1-32 and British Celanese 7s.

The price of rubber recovered from 4 13-16d to 5d a pound and there was a better tendency in shares. Reports that Dunlop had disposed of its interest in the MacIntosh Cable Company were confirmed, but the buyer was not mentioned. Mining Trust dropped from 10s to 9s 6d. Rhodesians mostly were lower, with N'Changa down to £3⅛. Kaffirs resumed their upward tendency as a result of Johannesburg buying.

Credit was abundant again in Lombard Street. Overnight loans were offered at 1½ per cent as was old day-to-day money. Bill rates further weakened on the result of treasury bill tenders. Applications were received at the Bank of England for £35,000,000 of treasury bills. Sterling exchange on New York recovered to $4.87 3-32—$4.87 5-32.

Prices Decline in Berlin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15.—The Boerse was weak throughout today's session, and with the exception of shipping stocks and dyes trust, which recovered losses toward the close, all issues declined. The potashes, Reichsbank, Darmstaedter Bank, artificial silks and electricals were especially weak, the losses ranging from two to six points. The mining group was uneven.

The Boerse closed quiet and lower. Call money was tighter at 3 to 5 per cent. It is stated in well informed circles that the Reichsbank will distribute again a 12 per cent dividend.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 15.—The Argentine exports for the first seven months of the year show a heavy decrease over last year, according to the figures published by the Statistics Bureau of the Ministry of Finance, the total value being 393,046,000 gold pesos ($379,210,780, the gold peso being worth 96.48 cents at par), compared with 608,778,000 gold pesos (about $587,347,404) for the same period last year, a decrease of 215,732,000 gold pesos (about $208,138,233), or 35.4 per cent.

During the first seven months of this year 6,200,000 tons were exported as against 10,618,000 tons for the same period last year, a decrease of 4,418,000 tons, or 41.6 per cent. The amount of the July exports was $876,000 tons, valued at 43,685,000 gold pesos, compared with 1,222,000 tons and 71,498,000 gold pesos in July last year.

The shipments of cereals and flaxseed during the first seven months of the year totaled 4,802,000 tons as against 9,137,000 tons for the same period last year, a decrease of 4,335,000 tons, or 47.4 per cent.

The wheat exports for the first seven months of this year fell from last year's total of 4,414,000 tons to 1,737,000 tons; flaxseed exports fell from 1,229,000 tons to 746,000 tons; barley exports fell from 203,000 tons to 69,000 tons; oats exports fell from 360,000 tons to 225,000 tons; rye exports fell from 155,000 tons to 3,124 tons, and maize exports fell from 2,770,000 tons to 2,014,000 tons.

Despite the better prices obtained the values of the meat export also declined. The total for the first seven months of this year, the report says, was 78,059,000 gold pesos as against 81,554,000 gold pesos for the same period last year, a decrease of 3,495,000 gold pesos, or 4.3 per cent. The tonnages for the meat exports in the seven-month period were 382,000 this year and 424,000 last year, a drop of 42,000 tons, or 9.9 per cent.

The exports of cattle hides totaled 74,000 tons for the first seven months of 1930, compared with 69,000 for the same period last year, but owing to the decline in prices, the report says, the value of the cattle hide shipments decreased from 23,179,000 gold pesos in the 1929 period to 21,053,000 gold pesos this year. The exports of sheep hides increased from 11,674 tons in the 1929 period to 12,746 tons this year, but the value of the shipments declined from 4,777,000 gold pesos in 1929 to 3,828,000 gold pesos in 1930.

FOREIGN TRADE CUT HEAVILY IN JULY

Value of Our Exports Down $133,811,000 From Year Ago, Imports Reduced $133,980,000.

EXPORT SURPLUS LARGER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—American foreign trade during July ebbed to the lowest point the country has experienced in nearly a decade. Commerce Department figures today placed the total of exports for July at $269,000,000, with imports of $219,000,000. The decline in each account was more than 30 per cent from the $402,861,000 of exports and $352,980,000 of imports which were registered in July last year.

Both exports and imports for the month represented the smallest of a series of declining monthly totals which began last December. At the same time the month's trade left a $50,000,000 balance favorable to the United States.

In July also the outflow of gold from the United States amounted to $42,529,000, gold imports totaled $21,888,000, leaving a net loss of $20,641,000 for the month. In July last year there was a net gain of gold of $34,718,000, exports of $807,000 being offset by imports of $35,525,000. For the seven months of the year ending with July the country has had a net increase in gold stock of $201,806,000.

Causes of the large gold exports were said by Grosvenor M. Jones, finance specialist of the Commerce Department, to be found in the increased foreign lending by America during the first half of this year. The United States has been extending short and long credit abroad at an increased rate over that of 1929, he said, adding that the resultant gold movement was to be regarded as probably a favorable general factor to world financial operations.

Movements of silver in the country's international trade for July—a month during which the market price of that metal remained at low points—were among the smallest recorded during any period in recent years. Silver exports for the month amounted to $3,706,000 as compared to exports of $6,785,000 in the same month last year. Imports for the same period were $3,950,000, against $4,723,000.

July foreign trade in merchandise for a series of years compares as follows, (+) indicating excess of imports, (—) indicating excess of exports:

Although the rise in domestic bond averages was comparatively small yesterday on the Stock Exchange, a long list of high-grade railroad issues reached new high marks for the year. Few rail issues made more than fractional advances for the day but the market ruled firm. Second and third-grade rails were dull and irregular.

Industrial bonds, which have been under pressure recently, closed generally lower, and issues that have shown recently a rising tendency continued upward. Warner Brothers Pictures convertible 6s recovered ¾ point. Oil bonds were firmer, as were rubber issues. Of the latter, the best gain was in Fisk Rubber 8s, which moved up 1¼ points. White Sewing Machine 6s of 1940 dropped 3 points to a new low at 50.

Foreign loans averaged slightly lower again in quiet trading. Austrian Government issues fell fractionally. French Government and municipal issues were slightly irregular. The Japanese Government 5½s duplicated the previous high for the year at 92½ at the close, up ¼ point for the day on a sizable turnover. South American issues continued dull and irregular.

United States Government bonds moved within narrow ranges all day. Final prices were 1-32 higher to 2-32 lower.

Iowa Counties Build Roads; Ban on Big State Bond Issue

With the State of Iowa unable to market any part of the issue of $100,000,000 highway bonds, voted at the last election, because of legal complications, the counties of the State are preparing to continue their road-building programs. Next week ten counties will offer road bonds aggregating $3,895,000.

The $22,000,000 of soldiers' bonus bonds, marketed in June, 1923, constitute the only funded debt the State has had since 1892. The $100,000,000 highway issue was designed to take the road building from the counties and make it a State affair. Unless an act can be framed that will not be held to violate the State Constitution, the road building will have to be done piecemeal by the counties.

Investment Trust's Portfolio.

The units in back of National Industries Shares, A, a new fixed trust being offered by Palmer & Co., are composed of stocks of utilities, semiutilities, railroads, industrials and oils. There are no insurance or bank stocks, as previously reported erroneously.

CHICAGO AWARDS $7,000,000 BONDS

EQUIVALENT TO 3.88% BASIS

Securities to Mature From July 1, 1932, to Jan. 1, 1934—Bids by Five Banking Groups.

The city of Chicago obtained yesterday one of the highest prices it has received in recent years on an issue of bonds when a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., paid a price of 100.325 for an issue of $7,000,000 4s. This price was equivalent to a 3.88 per cent basis. The issue will mature $2,000,000 on July 1, 1932; $2,500,000 on Jan. 1, 1933, and $2,500,000 on Jan. 1, 1934.

Associated with Halsey, Stuart & Co. were the Chase Securities Corporation, E. H. Rollins & Sons, A. B. Leach & Co., Inc.; Lawrence Stern & Co. of Chicago, the Mercantile Commerce Company of St. Louis and Darby & Co. The bonds will be placed on the market at the following prices: The 1932 maturity to yield 3.25 per cent, the 1933 maturity to yield 3.75 per cent and the 1934 maturity to yield 3.90 per cent.

Four other bids were submitted for the issue. The second highest tender was that of 100.157 by a group headed by Lehman Brothers and the third highest bid was 100.1437 by a syndicate headed by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. The National City Company and associates were fourth with a bid of 100.091 and the fifth bid was 99.65, made by a group headed by the Guaranty Company of New York.

On June 30 last the city awarded an issue of $18,970,000 4 per cent bonds, due from 1932 to 1950, at a price of 94.528. This was equivalent to a 4.61 per cent basis.

The city reports as of Aug. 1 an assessed valuation of $3,650,351,135 and a total funded debt of $109,015,100. The unexercised debt-incurring power of the city is given at $47,204,790.

$24,754,010 SOUGHT BY MUNICIPALITIES

New Bonds Scheduled for Award Next Week Include Four Issues Above $1,000,000.

Rise in Prices Continues, With Yield Basis Marked Up .05 to .10 Point —Increase in Financing Likely.

A total of $24,754,010 of new issues of State and municipal bonds will come up for award next week. This figure compares with this week's revised total of $30,641,277 and with the weekly average for the year to date of $31,480,097. Of next week's new issues four will be for amounts in excess of $1,000,000 each.

More than half of next week's financing will consist of a single issue, that of $13,540,000 city and county of Denver (Col.) 4¼ per cent refunding water bonds, the proceeds of which will be used to retire a like amount of 4½ per cent bonds. The city has endeavored several times to sell the issue, but has been prevented by market conditions.

The other large issues on the calendar for next week include $2,000,000 to $2,250,000 State of Arizona tax anticipation notes, $1,250,000 Atlantic City (N. J.) tax revenue bonds and an issue of $1,047,000 city of Bayonne (N. J.) school and tax title bonds. The new borrowing next week will represent the requirements of seventy-one communities.

Rise in Prices for Week.

This week has been featured by a continued rise in municipal bond prices. Most of the principal blocks of bonds on dealers' lists have been marked up .05 to .10 point in yield basis, several of the advances taking place yesterday. Dealers who did not obtain awards this week generally find themselves with very few bonds. Several houses which normally carry upward of $10,000,000 on their lists reported yesterday that they had less than $1,000,000, and in a few instances less than $500,000.

All of the principal issues awarded this week fetched high prices, and in most instances the bonds met with ready response when offered. Competition for new issues is becoming keener and the size of the individual syndicates is proportionately smaller. Houses which have low distributing power have been weeded out of the larger accounts.

It is considered likely, however, that there will be a sharp increase in municipal financing in September, particularly in view of the high prices that are being obtained on high-grade bonds at present. The market for second-grade issues improved somewhat this week because of the rapidly diminishing yields on first-grade issues. The market for third-grade municipals is practically stagnant.

300 SUED FOR BACK TAXES.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 15.—Attorney C. B. Dixon of this city, acting for Egg Harbor Township, has filed suit in the Chancery Court at Trenton against the Atlantic City Estate Company and more than 300 persons, alleged to own lots in Pleasantville Terrace, for delinquent taxes due to the township for 1912 to 1928.

The 7,795 lots of the subdivision, it was learned, were sold subject to municipal liens. Failure to have title examined, it was said, caused the purchasers to acquire the property on which a total of $31,795 accumulated taxes is due. Unpaid bills in some instances date back to 1905. An accounting is sought of what is owed for principal and interest on the township's tax liens over the fifteen-year period, and it is requested that the defendants, in default of payment, be required to surrender their property to the township.

Although the action has been in the process courts for nearly a year, only three of the defendants have filed answers asserting that they have paid all taxes on their lands. These have been dismissed as defendants in the suit.

ENTER STEEL MERGER SUIT.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Three of the four executors of the will of Myron C. Wick, 38, one of the plaintiffs in the Bethlehem-Sheet and Tube steel merger trial, halted by Mr. Wick's sudden death, will be substituted as plaintiffs in the case at the resumption of hearings Monday morning. They are Philip Wick, Mrs. Frances Todd Wick, the widow, and her brother, W. D. Todd. The Dollar Savings and Trust Company is the other executor. The Wick estate is valued at $1,175,000.

After the formality of substitution, the trial is expected to proceed, with Hassell Tippitt, accountant for Ernst & Ernst, under cross-examination by F. H. Wood, chief of the Bethlehem corporation's counsel.

Canada's July Revenue Fell.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 15.—Customs revenue for July, 1930, compared with July, 1929, dropped $4,462,000, excise taxes $2,657,000 and excise duties $1,045,000. The decrease in excise taxes was due chiefly to decrease in the sales tax and in excise duties to the embargo on liquor exports to the United States. The total decrease in revenue from major sources for four months of the fiscal year is about $20,000,000.

795 Crossings Ordered Eliminated.

ALBANY, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Public Service Commission reported today that 795 railroad grade crossings had been ordered eliminated since the elimination act was passed in 1926. The cost of this work was estimated at $108,284,185. Work has been completed on 215 crossings. Proceedings have been started involving 1,624 crossings, the commission said.

Will Attend Highways Congress.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Touring Club of Argentina today decided to send a delegation to the Highways Congress, which will soon be held in Washington. Julio Borda, a national deputy, will be in charge of the group.

$33,514,000 BONDS MARKETED IN WEEK

MUNICIPAL LOANS IN LEAD

Public Utility and Foreign Borrowing Also Done—Little Financing in View for This Month.

New offerings of bonds this week aggregated only $33,514,000, the smallest total for any week in the year to date. August is usually a dull month in so far as new offerings are concerned. Last week's new bond issues totaled $71,310,000, and during the corresponding week last year new offerings in the amount of $31,997,000 were marketed.

State and municipal financing this week accounted for the bulk of the new offerings with a total of $23,414,000. The principal issues in this group were $15,000,000 City of Detroit (Mich.) 2⅞ per cent one-year notes, which were offered on a 2.70 per cent basis, and an issue of $5,000,000 State of West Virginia 4 and 4½ per cent highway bonds, priced to yield 2.75 to 4 per cent. The latter issue was reported sold within a few hours after offering.

The public utility financing consisted of a single issue of $8,000,000 Indianapolis Power and Light Company 5s of 1957, marketed at par. The only foreign loan offered was an issue of $2,000,000 Canadian National Railways 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates, priced to net 4.70 per cent.

Offerings of bonds by groups for this and last week follow:

	This Week.	Last Week.
State and municipal	$23,414,000	$4,625,000
Public utility	8,000,000	1,025,000
Foreign	2,000,000	20,000,000
Industrial	100,000	45,000,000
Total	$33,514,000	$71,310,000

It is not expected that many large issues of bonds will be brought out in the remainder of the month, but the present plans of several investment houses call for considerable new financing immediately after Labor Day. This holiday usually is considered the line of demarcation between the Summer quiet and Autumnal activity. Public utility financing will probably play an important rôle next month. New municipal financing is expected to run much heavier, and it is considered likely that several railroad issues will be brought out. Among those mentioned in the last class are bonds of the Cleveland Union Terminal and the Cincinnati Union Terminal. Industrial financing is of a doubtful quantity although it is believed a high-grade industrial bond issue would meet a ready response. Not much new foreign financing is expected until much later in the year.

Rubber Restriction Plan Rejected.

Refusing to accept the report of its subcommittee suggesting immediate government intervention to enforce curtailment of rubber production, the Straits Settlement Association of Rubber Producers has asked the government to appoint a commission to inquire into conditions, according to a cable received at the Rubber Exchange of New York yesterday.

Lamar Hearing Off Indefinitely.

Examination of David Lamar, "The Wolf of Wall Street," by Assistant Attorney General Watson Washburn, head of the State Bureau of Securities, was adjourned indefinitely yesterday. Mr. Washburn said he was awaiting information from the District Attorney's office which would have a bearing on the case. There is no formal charge against him.

BANK CLEARINGS OFF 34% FROM YEAR AGO

Total for Twenty-two Cities $8,286,650,000, Showing Further Drop in Week.

Bank clearings this week receded a little more than has been customary recently, and the decline now affects every reporting city, according to Dun's Review. For a time this Summer the weekly return showed a gain at several leading centres in comparison with the totals for the corresponding weeks of 1928, but this week New York is the only city to show even a slight increase over that year.

The total for the week is put at $8,286,650,000, or 34.5 per cent below that of the corresponding week of 1929. At New York the total is $5,588,000,000, which is 39 per cent below 1929, and for centres outside of New York the total is $2,698,650,000, which is 22.8 per cent smaller than last year. Dun's Review concludes that the tendency at this time is clearly in the direction of a lower level than in either 1929 or 1928.

Clearings for the week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., and the daily average for the past three months, with comparisons with 1929, are given in the following table:

MAP ROCKEFELLER SCHOOL.

State Officials Meet Tomorrow to Settle Pocantico Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Representatives of John D. Rockefeller Jr. will confer tomorrow at White Plains with officials of the State Department of Education to smooth out difficulties that have arisen over the question whether or not a high school or a grade school will be erected at Pocantico Hills.

When the Sleepy Hollow and East View districts were consolidated last year Mr. Rockefeller said he would pay half the cost of a grade school for the new district and that he would contribute to the education of pupils sent from the district to the high schools in Tarrytown or North Tarrytown.

It is understood that the State insists on the erection of a high school in the Pocantico Hills district. If this decision stands, it was said today, Mr. Rockefeller may withdraw his offer to pay half the cost of the proposed Pocantico Hills school.

It was explained that he objects to the building of four extra rooms in the structure and paying the salaries of four more teachers to educate not more than ten high school pupils in the district. Meanwhile, a move is under way to have Mr. Rockefeller's district join that of North Tarrytown, saving him the donation of the site for the school and $200,000 for the cost of the building.

BANK-SHARE TRADING LIVELY AT COUNTER

Early Dullness Is Followed by Activity—Insurance Stocks Firm—Utilities Mixed.

Activity toward the close marked unlisted trading yesterday. The early trading was as dull as on Wednesday, but this aspect was changed by a sudden interest in bank shares. Leading issues in this group monopolized activity and rallied from previous weakness to substantial gains.

Guaranty Trust advanced 16 points, Bankers 7½, New York Trust 6, Commercial National 5, Corn Exchange, Central Hanover and City 4 each; Chase 3¼ and Manhattan 3. Public, Penn Exchange, Manufacturers, United States and Chemical were firm.

Volume was slow but the tone firm in the insurance group. Gains were made by United States Fidelity, Baltimore American, Carolina, Home, Hartford Steam Boiler, Chicago Fire, American Surety, Connecticut General, Hanover, American Reinsurance, Missouri State, Providence-Washington and Preferred Accident.

Fractional variations marked the utility group. Atlantic City Electric, Idaho Power and Utica Gas were preferred issues to gain slightly, while others eased. Great Northern Paper and Wheatsworth preferred were firm, while American Hardware and Petroleum Derivatives were easy. Chain stores and communication shares were inactive. MacMarr Stores preferred eased and New England Telephone was firm.

HEAVY BUYING SENDS CURB ISSUES HIGHER

Leading securities on the New York Curb Exchange, moving in sympathy with the Stock Exchange, gained ground steadily yesterday, with trading at a high level for recent months bolstered by the inauguration of trading in Warner rights.

Utility issues were in good demand. Electric Bond and Share closed 4¾ points higher. American Superpower, Niagara Hudson, Middle West Utilities, United Light and Power, and United Gas also gained substantially.

Cities Service rose, while Standard of Indiana, Standard of Kentucky, Ohio and Houston Oils were higher. Humble Oil went up 6 points in 400 shares traded. Deere & Co. advanced more than 7 points, while Fokker Aircraft, Ford Motors, Ltd., American Cyanamid and St. Regis Paper closed with gains.

Goldman Sachs, National Investors, Central States Electric and Pennroad Corporation all went forward, while United Founders was unchanged.

FIRST REPORT MADE BY REPUBLIC STEEL

Chairman Predicts Economies Put Into Effect Will Produce Gratifying Results.

The Republic Steel Corporation, a consolidation of four companies completed on April 8, last, reports for the three months ended on June 30 a net income of $285,472, after maintenance, depreciation, renewal and exhaustion of minerals and interest charges, equivalent to 42 cents a share on the 600,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock outstanding. In addition to the preferred stock the company has 1,993,-113 shares of common stock outstanding. During this period the company deducted $3,146,272 for maintenance and repairs of plants, 1,893,984 for depreciation, renewal and exhaustion of minerals and $885,993 for interest charges.

T. M. Girdler, chairman, said indications of some improvement in the iron and steel industry had appeared. He added: "Your management has devoted its energies to forming a compact, effective organization, coordinating the various operations and effecting fundamental economies. At the outset, the temporary disadvantages incident to such major changes are reflected before the benefits may be realized. This feature has been aggravated by a decline in the volume of business and in prices to the lowest point in several years. Much progress has been made and the effect should become increasingly apparent in future operations. A return of normal business conditions is confidently expected to show gratifying results."

The Republic Steel Corporation is a combination of the properties of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, Central Alloy Steel Corporation, Donner Steel Company, Inc., and the Bourne-Fuller Company. Combined net profits of the several companies now comprising the Republic Steel Corporation for the first quarter of this year, prior to the consolidation, amounted to $1,357,769.

STEEL PIPE PRODUCTION UP.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 15.—The Republic Steel Corporation expects to maintain operations in its steel pipe department at a rate close to capacity for the remainder of the year, it was announced today. This is due to the volume of unfilled tonnage and impending orders. With a third electrical welding unit about to be completed the company will have capacity for the production of 450,000 tons of steel tubing a year.

Because of activities of the steel tube division, the Mahoning Valley iron and steel industry will be able to maintain operations next week at 55 to 57 per cent of capacity. August is proving the best month to date this year for production and shipments of steel pipe, but ranks with July as being the poorest month in flat steels.

Leading fabricating interests continue to operate at 70 to 80 per cent in this area, with prospects of maintaining such an average rate for the next sixty days at least.

BYERS TO MOVE IRON PLANT.

Mechanical Puddling to Be Concentrated at Ambridge.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Aug. 15.—The A. M. Byers Company of Pittsburgh is preparing to abandon its plants in Girard, Ohio, and concentrate all operations for the production of puddled iron at Ambridge, Pa., near Pittsburgh, where it has built a new plant. Already many workers have been transferred from Girard to Ambridge.

At Ambridge the Byers Company has installed equipment for the manufacture of mechanically puddled iron by the Aston process, which it made commercially successful after many years of experimenting. The new process is much cheaper in its costs than the old hand-puddling method.

LOSS IN COTTON CUT AFTER DROP OF 1-4C

CLOSE 2 TO 13 POINTS OFF

Hedges Reach Season's Record as Result of Forced Maturity of Crop.

Under the heaviest selling of the year prices on the Cotton Exchange broke more than a quarter cent yesterday, but a vigorous advance in the stock market brought active short covering and a rally of $1 a bale.

In the morning decline October contracts sold below 11½ cents, which was 10 points lower than the record made toward the end of the 18,000,000-bale marketing season of 1926 and the lowest recorded since 1921. Continued hot, dry weather and reports of severe deterioration stimulated short covering in the last hour and left final quotations 2 to 13 points lower than on Thursday.

The decline of $2 a bale in Liverpool reflected the increase in hedge selling against the moving crop. Port receipts jumped to 43,000 bales, compared with 13,000 last year. Forced maturity of the crop in Central and Western drought areas brought the largest volume of hedges on the market so far this season.

Prices on all three Exchanges weakened under the weight of contracts, a quantity of scale buying for consumers failing to arrest the decline. First January and then March broke below the 12-cent figure.

The decline of more than 1½ cents from levels prevailing immediately preceding the Washington crop estimate a week ago had built up an over-extended short account. Professional profit taking developed a sharp recovery, which wiped out the greater part of the day's loss before the close.

The Census Bureau showed mills in July used 168,000 fewer bales than in July, 1929, bringing total consumption for the season more than 1,000,000 bales under that of the previous twelve months, inclusive of linters and exclusive of foreign growths. The bureau reported a domestic carry-over of 4,320,000 bales of American cotton, compared with 2,312,000 on July 31 last year.

The export of cotton in December, 1926, at 1,531,207 bales, was the highest on record, the previous high record monthly export being 1,517,891, in October, 1913.

In the twelve completed months of the cotton year, consumption by the home mills has been 6,113,932 bales, against 7,098,946 in the same period last year and 6,834,063 two years ago. In the same twelve months exports were 6,690,810 bales, against 8,043,587 a year ago and 7,539,945 two years ago.

ON COTTON EXCHANGE AGAIN

C. M. Story and J. C. Monier Are Reinstated as Members.

Clifford M. Story and Joseph C. Monier of R. H. Hooper & Co., who were suspended on June 18, were reinstated as members of the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday. Their suspension followed their announcement that they were unable to meet their obligations as the result of a defalcation of $300,000 by a clerk in their office in Havre, France.

Mr. Monier said yesterday that the firm had since been able to satisfy its creditors. The clerk was under bond, he added, so that the firm was fully protected.

Mr. Monier's second seat on the Exchange has been sold to George F. Mahe for $20,000. The price was the same as at the last previous sale of a seat.

DEMAND FOR WOOL LESS.

Prices Firm, However — Foreign Markets Unsettled.

BOSTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow: "While two or three houses report fairly good business again this past week, there is little doubt that the demand for wool has tapered off more or less on the whole. Prices, however, keep firm and favor the finer worsted descriptions still.

"Foreign markets are firm though quiet and somewhat unsettled, temporarily, by reason of strikes or financial difficulties. Midsummer dulness prevails across the Atlantic as well as here.

"The piece goods markets respond slowly to the new openings, but September and the opening of fancies is expected to reveal more clearly the buying disposition of the market."

FINDS MANLESS SAILBOAT.

BRANFORD, Conn., Aug. 15.—The sea produced another mystery today when Leroy Perry of this city found a thirty-foot sailboat far out on the Sound rocking aimlessly and without any one on board.

Perry, who is a lobster fisherman, left the East Haven River early in the morning to take care of his pots when he noticed the mysterous sailboat about five miles out in the Sound. He went out to investigate and found the boat drifting with the sails half up and half dragging in the water.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Many operators here turned to the bull side of wheat today, although nothing in the general run of news accounted for the change in sentiment. Shorts also covered freely, and, despite an early break of 1 to 1¼ cents, the finish was at net gains of 1½ to 1⅝ cents.

Winnipeg, which had led the decline of late, showed more strength than did Chicago and finished 1½ to 2 cents higher, although brokers who generally act for the pool were credited with being on the selling side. Liverpool lost ⅜ to ½d.

Pit brokers say that any buying or selling orders of consequence have a decided effect on the wheat market. Houses with Eastern and foreign connections absorbed the pit surplus on the early decline, and some buying of September and selling of December were credited to foreign account. Owing to a partial holiday on the Continent the export demand was somewhat less active although sales were estimated at 800,000 to 1,000,000 bushels.

Canadian Wheat for Vladivostok.

The pool sold a cargo of wheat to Vladivostok, which was taken as confirming reports of short crops in Eastern Siberia. Manchuria recently prohibited cereal exports owing to unfavorable harvests. On the other hand, Russia continues to offer wheat freely for shipment from the Black Sea, affecting sentiment somewhat both here and abroad.

Crop estimates on the Canadian Northwest, which are being gradually lowered, centre now around 350,000,000 to 375,000,000 bushels, compared with the revised figures of 283,000,000 for last year's harvest. Premature ripening and continued dry weather are reported as the main factors. Returns to B. W. Snow, statistician, suggested that the yield would fall well below 350,000,000 bushels.

Primary receipts were 2,857,000 bushels, a week ago 3,437,000 and a year ago 2,956,000. Shipments respectively were 2,099,000, 2,665,000 and 2,718,000 bushels.

Strong Rally in Corn Prices.

Corn started weak and closed strong, rallying as much as 4¾ cents from the low point on reinstating of recently sold-out lines by local professionals and on buying by commission houses. The close was 2½ to 3⅜ cents higher, with the new-crop months showing the most strength.

An estimate by E. H. Miller, statistician for J. E. Bennett & Co., that the corn crop had been reduced 174,000,000 bushels between Aug. 1 and 9 in the eleven leading States influenced sentiment considerably. The feeling was more bullish at the close than for some time. The trade is receiving also numerous complaints from a wide area regarding the failure of ears to set grain, reflecting improper pollinization.

Commission houses, in some instances, sold freely on the bulge, regarded as profit taking by scattered longs. The advance resulted in the booking of 100,000 bushels of corn to arrive, but the spot market was decidedly firm, with charters made for 100,000 bushels to Buffalo. Only a few sections in the Corn Belt have not received showers in the last week or so, but so far the reports of improvement in condition have been comparatively few, although the rains will be beneficial for pastures.

Farm reserves of old corn in Nebraska on July 1 are officially reported at 47,000,000 bushels or 20 per cent of the 1929 crop.

Primary receipts of corn were 792,000 bushels, a week ago 421,000 and a year ago 345,000. Shipments respectively were 353,000, 634,000 and 361,000 bushels.

Oats finished 1⅛ to 1¼ cents higher, with a broader commission house demand. Longs and hedgers were the best sellers.

Price Dominates Fall Trend.

Preparations for more active consumer buying of children's apparel for school openings, in addition to better response to August sale merchandise, including fur coats, were highlights of retail activity during the week. Popular price merchandise continued to receive the bulk of attention, leaving no doubt as to the importance of this trend in Fall retail merchandising. Revision of price lines has featured many of the retail offerings and the promotional efforts of more than a few stores are marked by a return to the use of comparative prices in advertising and counter cards.

Sheets and Cases Reduced.

Price reductions on bleached wide sheetings, sheets and pillow cases covering August, September and October deliveries were sent to the trade yesterday by the Pepperell Manufacturing Company and by Parker, Wilder & Co., selling agents for Pequot products. Pepperell and Lady Pepperell 81-by-99-size sheets were reduced to a new basis of $12.88 and $16.18 a dozen, respectively. The Pepperell Fine Count list was reduced from a basis of $2.70 each on 81-by-99 size, plain hem, to $2.42. Parker, Wilder & Co. announced reductions to a basis of 46 cents on 9/4 bleached wide sheetings. On bleached sheets, 81-by-99 size, prices were cut to a basis of $16.18 a dozen, and on bleached pillow cases, 45-by-36 size, to a basis of $3.87 a dozen. These are the lowest quotations since 1917, it was stated.

Approve Garment Credit Bureau.

Approval of the principle and the desirability of a joint credit bureau for the garment trades was voiced yesterday at a meeting at the Hotel McAlpin of the representatives of five trade associations in these industries. Details of the application of the plan will be discussed at another meeting to be held next Friday. Advocates of the plan see in it substantial economies in credit reports and services, and also hail it as a stepping stone to other joint activity. The associations represented were the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, the Merchants Ladies' Garment Association, Affiliated Dress Manufacturers, Wholesale Dress Manufacturers and Associated Fur Manufacturers and Trimmers.

Early Reorders Expected.

The cautious buying done so far for Fall by many retailers will have the effect of producing early and frequent reorders, it was said here yesterday. Weather conditions, it was added, will determine the volume of the reorders, but even with fair selling conditions it was held that many stores will find it necessary to replenish their stocks at least by mid-September. This was said to be particularly true in the case of ready-to-wear, the additional purchase of which will be guided by consumer response. Activity in the dress trade this week has already started to pick up, with better retail turnover.

Black Retains Strong Vogue.

Nothing so far has developed to challenge the supremacy of black in color leadership for Fall. If anything, the percentage of black to colors has grown in the orders placed in recent weeks. The trend is particularly noticeable in coats, millinery, shoes and fabrics. In colors the following have received wide endorsement: new browns, cricket green, blues and wine shades. It was pointed out yesterday that hosiery, handbags and novelty jewelry are being developed in effects to accentuate the vogue for black.

Furniture Buyers In Market.

A heavy influx of buyers into the furniture market yesterday gave the trade some basis for optimism that purchasing, which has been delayed so long, would finally begin in earnest. The trade was pleased with the fact that buyers represented the better department stores from all sections of the country. There is practically no distress merchandise on the market at the present time, it was said, as the heavy stocks which merchants had on hand nine months ago have been cleaned up. Department stores are doing very well on their August clearance sales, according to reports, and a fair number of repeat orders are coming in.

Look for Better Hosiery Trade.

An improved situation is looked for in full-fashioned hose in the early Fall, due to the fact that curtailment of output for this month will be substantial, it was pointed out in the primary market yesterday. A normal pick-up in demand is expected, as the trade is now entering the season when orders are usually large. Novelty leg effects have been introduced by manufacturers of fine-gauge seamless silks, and some good business has been placed, it was reported. In fancy half-hose low prices remain an important factor. Clocks will be more popular than ever before in the Fall, it was stated.

Glass Trade Continues Quiet.

Practically no change for the better was shown during the week in shipments or sales of window, plate and other flat glass products, The American Glass Review will say today. Production likewise is holding at a low level and in line with the seasonal slowness in demand. While large automobile plants are now in the second week of production following the midsummer vacations, it is yet too early to predict what effect the resumption will have on demand for this product. The demand for rough-rolled and wire glass products is quiet.

Demand for Anthracite Lags.

Few indications of Fall weather, a drought that is beginning to cause some alarm in the mining regions and vacations on the part of both executives and workers are some of the reasons that are retarding the anthracite market, Saward's Journal will say today. The second week of the present month has not speeded up buying on the part of retailers, who have been loath to stock up as they have been importuned to do by the various producing companies. It is said that unless rain comes soon in the Pennsylvania hard-coal fields, many operations may be hampered, lacking an adequate supply of water.

Gray Goods Continue to Ease.

Prices continued to ease slightly in the gray goods market yesterday, with very little business being done. There were a few scattered spurts of trading, but buyers displayed no consistent interest in goods. In printcloths demand was quiet, with 38½-inch 60-48s reported selling at 4½ cents and 64-60s at 5 cents. In 39-inch 68-72s the market level was held at 5¾ cents. There was very little call for 39-inch 80-squares and the price slid down to 7 cents. Sheetings were reported inactive.

BUSINESS LEVEL CONTINUES LOW

WHOLESALE PRICES GO UP

Despite a Slight Gain, They Are 15 Per Cent Lower Than for Week Ending Aug. 10, 1929.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Business activity during the week ending Aug. 9, as revealed in bank debits outside New York City, showed an increase of 16 per cent over the preceding week but was materially lower than the corresponding period of last year, the Department of Commerce announced today.

Wholesale prices registered a slight gain over a week ago, but as compared with the week ending Aug. 10, 1929, showed a decline of 15 per cent. Iron and steel prices remained at the same level of a week ago and, like prices in general, were lower than a year ago.

"Prices for representative stocks declined from the preceding period, and as compared with a year ago were considerably lower. Bond prices, on the other hand, were higher than either prior period.

"Interest rates for call money were higher than a week ago, while time money rates showed no change. Both rates were lower than the week ended Aug. 10, 1929. Business failures during the past week were fewer than during the week ended Aug. 2, 1930.

"The production of petroleum and the value of contracts awarded for new construction for the week ended Aug. 2 registered increases over the preceding week, while the production of lumber and bituminous coal declined. The activity of steel mills in the United States showed no change when compared with the week ended July 26, 1930.

"Bank loans and discounts, bank debits and stock and bond prices showed increases when compared with the week ended Aug. 11, 1928, two years ago."

PHILADELPHIA TESTS POOLS AFTER 3 BOYS DIE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15 (AP).—With three boys dead from spinal meningitis and three others ill with that disease, water from municipal swimming pools was to be analyzed today and the Department of Health was speeding its efforts to examine all public bathhouses.

The dead boys were believed by some authorities to have contracted the disease while at city-owned pools, one of which was closed. The boys were Thomas Staples, 9; William Hofelder, 10, and Edward Jaroszewski, 13. Hofelder died last night fifteen minutes after being admitted to a hospital.

Those ill are Andrew Smigelski, 12; Harry Rosenblum, 15, and Bernard Kauffman, 12. Physicians said they have recovered consciousness and, unless unexpected complications set in, will recover.

Health authorities again today reiterated their belief that the swimming pools were not responsible for spreading the disease. It was also pointed out that there is no epidemic of the ailment in the city.

Dr. John A. Kolmar, Professor of Pathology and Bacteriology at the University of Pennsylvania, said he doubted the boys contracted the disease from the water.

Dr. Charles J. Haines, chief of the division of communicable diseases of the Department of Health, said "there is the possibility the disease came from contact with a 'carrier' outside of the pool while the boys were waiting their turn for a swim."

"Carriers," it was explained, may be persons in perfect health who transmit disease germs to those with whom they come in contact.

CANADA BARS IMMIGRANTS.

Only Exceptions Are Farmers With Means and Families of Aliens.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Discontinuance of immigration from Europe was announced today as the policy of the government, the only exceptions being experienced farmers in possession of ample means to establish and maintain themselves on farms and the wives and children of immigrants already established in Canada.

"This policy," W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, said, "is rendered necessary by reason of the unemployment in Canada. The purpose is to prevent persons coming to this country who will not be able to find work on arrival and to protect the people of Canada from the burden of such unemployment.

"We regard the present situation as temporary, but we propose to apply an effective remedy until conditions have improved and to control any immigration movement in the future so that immigration will not again be a contributing factor to unemployment."

WILLETTS UP OVER ALIMONY

Counsel Says He Lacks Funds in Action That May Bring Jail Term.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Frank Willetts, former wealthy contractor, but now said by his counsel to be lacking in funds due to the decline in the real estate market, faced today the possibility of a jail sentence for failure to pay $700 alimony and $2,500 counsel fees to his wife, Elizabeth Maze Willetts of Pelham, in her separation action.

An application was made by Clinton Taylor, an attorney of this city, to have Supreme Court Justice Taylor adjudge Mr. Willetts in contempt of court. The contractor was ordered to pay $125 a week to support his wife and daughter, when she brought suit about a year ago.

Justice Taylor decided to give Mr. Willetts until Aug. 25 to pay $1,000 of the alimony and counsel fees and if he does not pay, the hearing on the motion to punish for contempt will be continued on the following day.

Police Investigate a 'Death'; Wake Man, Asleep Two Days

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—A "dead man" was found to be merely sleeping early this morning when the policemen climbed with some difficulty into a second story window of an apartment at 155 Grand Street in an investigation of a report that John Gallo, the tenant, was dead.

The janitor reported to the apartment management that there had been no signs of life from the tenant for two days. Early this morning the janitor climbed on a ladder to Gallo's window and peering in, saw the tenant stretched out on the bed. The police were informed Gallo was dead.

4,000 DRESSMAKERS THREATEN TO STRIKE

A strike of custom dressmakers, affecting the exclusive Fifth Avenue shops, was threatened yesterday by Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, following a temporary breakdown of negotiations with the Couturiers' Association for an agreement superseding one expiring Sept. 15.

Howard Hilton Spellman, counsel for the Couturiers' Association, admitted at Narragansett Pier, R. I., that members of his association, who are seven of the leading Fifth Avenue concerns employing 4,000 dressmakers, have rejected demands for union recognition and wage increases for the dressmakers. The employers have countered with a demand for the right to discharge up to 20 per cent of their ladies' tailors each season, or twice a year, during the life of a proposed four-year agreement. This has been rejected by the union.

The concerns who are members of the association include Bergdorf-Goodman, Henri Bendel, Stein & Blaine, Tappé, Hickson, Thurn and Mme. Frances. These employ 4,000 dressmakers, according to Mr. Spellman, and more than 300 ladies' tailors.

Mr. Schlesinger, in declaring that a strike is inevitable upon expiration of agreements Sept. 15, unless the employers retract their position, said that the efforts of the dressmakers to obtain improved working conditions and a rise in wages have received the endorsement of prominent society women whom the union president has interviewed.

According to Boris Drasin, manager of Local 38, Ladies' Tailors and Custom Dressmakers' Union, affiliated with the international, non-union dressmakers average from $18 to $35 a week, in contrast to the $40 scale fixed for union workers. Dressmakers, in the main, are largely unorganized, he said, though the ladies' tailors are almost all members of the union.

Non-union dressmakers, though nominally having a 44-hour week, are required to work a half hour overtime each day without additional pay, the union official added. There are more than five thousand skilled custom dressmakers in the Fifth Avenue district, which is bounded by Forty-sixth Street and Fifty-ninth Street from Sixth Avenue to Madison. Eighty shops in the district are now the object of the union's organization campaign.

Actors' Equity Association has already expressed sympathy with the efforts of the custom dressmakers to unionize and has, through Equity, its official publication, urged its leading members to support the union's campaign.

RED UNION SEEKS WRIT.

The House Wreckers' Brotherhood of Greater New York, a Communist-led dual organization in the building trades, sought an injunction yesterday to restrain House Wreckers' Union Local 95, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, from interfering with it. Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag reserved decision.

Last week members of the rival factions clashed in West Twenty-ninth Street, where a building was being razed by the Communist element. Fists, clubs and blackjacks were used and two arrests for assault were made.

Yesterday, in court, David Klein, attorney for the brotherhood, attributed the alleged murder Thursday night of John Fako in a Brooklyn hallway to differences between the unions. Klein also said that Fred Nowich, a house wrecker, had his throat cut Wednesday night by a group of men who waylaid him in the hallway of his home at 367 East Tenth Street. Inquiry yesterday failed to find any police report on the alleged murder of Fako, nor was his name on any accident list.

WIN PHILATELIC PRIZES.

Collectors Are Honored at Annual Association Meeting.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 15.—A collection of Spanish stamps exhibited by Henry G. Lapham of Brookline won first honors as the best collection in the stamp show of the American Philatelic Association, when winners of prizes were announced at the annual banquet of the association last night.

First award for the best collection of United States rarities was won by Representative E. R. Ackerman of New Jersey, for a special display which was not entered in the competition for the best in the show.

Other collections judged best in sections were: Fred R. Schmalzroidt of Detroit, United States patent cancellations; Paul W. Savage of Worcester, Sarawak; Henry G. Lapham of Brookline, Spain; Lieut. Col. C. S. Hamilton of Washington, Mexico; W. E. Hawkins of New York City, Afghanistan; Stephen D. Brown of Boston, 5-cent New Orleans; George Francis, general collection.

TRADE STIMULATED BY COOLER WEATHER

Weighing the benefits of cooler weather and rain against the uncertainties arising from the earlier damage caused by the drought, the commercial agencies in their weekly reviews emphasize the spottiness of the general business situation, but suggest, at the same time, that recuperative processes are still operating.

Bradstreet's finds that "benefits to retail trade and crops, due to rain and lower temperatures, outside of the South" are partly offset by "uncertainties as to just how much of the July and August damage has been repaired." "Cooler weather has unquestionably helped retail trade, this mainly in disposal of Summer goods at 'sales,' and in some areas a slight picking up of industry is noted, over against which is noted the growth of uncertainty in buying and prices of iron and steel, which it may take the Sept. 1 crop reports to decide," this agency continues.

"In the iron and steel trade the benefits of the enlarged activity in automobile production are balanced by easier prices for some finished steel and pig iron, whereas steel scrap and coke are reported firmer at some centres. A 50 to 55 per cent capacity is noted in the trade as a whole. The pipe and tube producers are active, some good orders for tractors are helping trade in bars, and agricultural implement men are reported planning resumption. In lumber, production seems to be 40 to 50 per cent off the peak.

"Building reports to Bradstreet's note a gain over June at New York City, but this improvement does not seem to carry outside thereof, with decreases still visible from July a year ago. In the textile trades, the feature of the news in cotton goods is the low ebb shown in cloth manufacturing in July. In non-ferrous metals, there are reports of the 11-cent price for copper being shaded, with zinc and tin also easier. In the motion picture industry, operations are said to have reached and passed their peak at the Pacific Coast centre.

"In the coal trade, the commercial stocks of bituminous coal are reported the lightest in eight years, but current operations are light. In anthracite coal the renewal of the wage agreement has helped things generally."

"The unusual aspects of the commercial situation," says R. G. Dun & Co., "are being manifested in numerous ways, with restraining forces, rather than stimulating factors, still having the greater weight. That is a quite normal phase at this period, yet the seasonal slackening is intensified this year, and a new element of uncertainty has arisen from the recent widespread and serious drought. Seldom, at one time, have so many influences combined to repress activities as in the present instance, and it is not considered unnatural, with severe crop damage as an added deterrent, that caution should be accentuated.

"One of the promising portents is the reduction in stocks of different goods which has followed the sharp decrease in outputs, the closer alignment between production and consumption obviously having a significant bearing upon the future. Thus, although the immediate results are disappointing, the long-range outlook has points of strength whose effects should be more plainly revealed with the passing of time."

CITRINE'S VISIT EXPLAINED.

Green Says British Labor Leader Had Only Social Contacts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Denial was made today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that the three-day visit here this week of Walter M. Citrine, secretary of the British Trade Union Congress, was for the purpose of conferring with American labor officials or that any such conference took place.

"Mr. Citrine, accompanied by his wife, has been taking a four months' vacation, in the course of which he visited Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada, and arrived last Tuesday in Washington," Mr. Green said. "They left yesterday for New York, to sail shortly for England.

"He called on me and I gave a dinner for him last Wednesday night, inviting fourteen guests to meet him, several of whom were representative leaders of organized labor groups, but the occasion was wholly social in character, and no conference of any kind took place."

Defers Plea for Stay on Helen Kane.

Argument on the application by Albert L. Bisselle and William Walker Orr as assignees of the Bond Dress Company, to restrain Helen Kane, actress, and other persons alleged to have received a total of $64,172 from the dress company several days before its assignment on Aug. 8, was adjourned in the Supreme Court yesterday until next Thursday. Miss Kane is alleged to have received $40,000, while $10,000 each went to Betty De Leeuw, a designer employed by the dress company, and Sybil Stone, and $4,172 was endorsed to one Joe Boight by Sol De Leeuw to whom the check was drawn, and also by Betty De Leeuw.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—Thomas B. Slick, reputed to be the wealthiest independent oil producer in the world, is a patient at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, it was learned today. He is in the Marburg Building, under the care of Dr. Dean Lewis, who has charge of the Hopkins surgical department. Hospitals officials declined to state the nature of his illness. They said, however, that he entered the institution on June 27 and that his condition is not regarded as serious.

APPROVES ACCOUNTING OF THE HUBERT ESTATE

Surrogate Must Sign Still Another Decree to Distribute Gifts to 34 Public Institutions.

Surrogate Foley signed a decree yesterday approving the accounting of the executors of the $7,780,688 estate of Conrad Hubert, flashlight manufacturer, thus making available three-fourths of the residuary estate, amounting to about $4,800,000, to thirty-four institutional beneficiaries selected by former President Coolidge, former Governor Smith and Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist.

Samuel K. Abrahams of counsel for the executors, said the institutions would not receive their bequests for some time, however, because the Surrogate must sign another decree authorizing the distribution.

Yesterday's decree directs the executors, C. Bertram Plante, of 209 Argyle Road, Brooklyn, and the Bankers Trust Company to pay $10,000 to Joseph Horwich, brother of the decedent, or his attorney, for counsel fees incurred in the brother's recent suit to prevent the distribution of the charitable legacies.

Besides directing them to hold three-fourths of the residue for the philanthropic bequests the decree orders the executors to divide the remaining fourth equally among Mr. Horwich, another brother, Moses Horwitz, and a sister, Mrs. Anna Hutner. This is in accordance with the terms of the will.

RITTENHOUSE WILL FILED.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 15.—The will of George M. Rittenhouse of Plainfield, who died Aug. 4, probated here today, places his residuary estate in trust for the benefit of his widow, Mrs. A. Frances Rittenhouse. It names the Irving Trust Company of New York City and a son, George M. Rittenhouse Jr., as executor and trustees. The estate is estimated to be in excess of $500,000.

At the death of Mrs. Rittenhouse the will provides that the trust fund be distributed among two sons, a daughter and two grandchildren.

The Methodist Episcopal Hospital of Brooklyn receives $5,000 and the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Plainfield; Y. M. C. A. of Plainfield for boys' work and Methodist retired ministers' endowment fund of the Newark conference each get $1,000 of the trust fund after the death of Mrs. Rittenhouse.

BEACON, N. Y., Aug. 15.—That Colonel Archibald Rogers of Hyde Park, a neighbor of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt there, left an estate of $2,826,000, is revealed by a petition for judicial settlement of accounts of the estate filed in the Surrogate's Court in Dutchess County. Colonel Rogers, who died over two years ago, came of a prominent New York family and was engaged in various war relief activities during the World War. His widow, who is the principal legatee, is the executrix of the will.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 15 (AP).—Lyman W. Besse, former owner of a large chain of clothing stores in New England and other cities, left an estate valued at $4,544,996, according to an appraisal filed today. Of the total, $3,433,693 is represented by real estate in this and other cities.

EX-CLERK HELD IN LARCENY.

Former Brokerage Employe Accused of Losing $50,000 in Venture.

Frank H. Smith, 26 years old, of 1 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, formerly a margin clerk for Orr, Van Dyne & Krech, a brokerage firm of 52 William Street, was booked at Police Headquarters last night on a charge of grand larceny. The police said he had confessed that he had used $50,000 of the firm's money in an unfortunate stock venture.

Smith, the police said, bought several stocks with the firm's money, hoping to hold them until they returned a profit; then he intended to keep the profits and return the purchase money. He credited the transactions to one of the firm's clients. Instead of going up, however, the stock depreciated $26,000 and Smith saw no way out. He quit the firm recently and his successor discovered the shortage.

MAP OUT EAST PLAZA OF MIDTOWN TUNNEL

START LIKELY EARLY IN 1931

East River Part Could Be Ready in Five Years—5th Av. Group Wants Manhattan Section Rushed.

The Board of Transportation has completed its plan for the east side entrance and exit plaza for the midtown vehicular tunnel linking Manhattan with Long Island City and hopes to let the first construction contracts early in 1931. The plan will be published as soon as the board has definitely fixed the boundaries of the proposed plaza, and a public hearing will be held in September.

The plan was approved yesterday by the special tunnel committee of the Fifth Avenue Association, which also inspected a large plaster model of the proposed plaza and its approaches. The model shows the plaza bounded longitudinally by First and Second Avenues, but does not indicate the crosstown streets involved. It is believed that it will be located approximately between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-eighth Streets.

The Fifth Avenue Association will urge other civic groups to inspect the plan and the model within the next two weeks so that an early public hearing may be had.

Engineers of the Board of Transportation believe that the underwater part of the tunnel can be completed in four or five years. The Fifth Avenue Association's committee, headed by Philip Le Boutillier, announced yesterday that it would urge that work be started on the section of the tunnel running westerly under Manhattan soon after work is started on the underwater section. This procedure, it was said, would make possible completion of the under-Manhattan tube to Tenth Avenue within two years, affording relief from midtown congestion.

The Board of Transportation is now conferring with Port Authority engineers on the proposed linking of the city's tunnel with the new interstate tube from Thirty-eighth Street and the Hudson River to Weehawken and North Bergen in New Jersey. Definite plans for joining the two tunnels will be formulated as soon as the Port Authority completes its plans for the west side entrance and exit plaza.

"The east side plaza as designed by the Board of Transportation will prevent the possibility of any delay to vehicles while underground in the tunnel," Captain William J. Pedrick, executive vice president of the Fifth Avenue Association, declared yesterday. "The board is to be congratulated on devising such an effective plan which will assure a rapid and continuous flow of traffic. With congestion increasing every day in the midtown district the necessity for prompt action on the mid-Manhattan section of the tunnel is obvious. Staggering the traffic lights, as has been done so effectively by the Police Department, is affording some relief, but the real solution lies in providing this midtown tunnel which will actually remove a great number of vehicles from the streets."

The plans for the east side plaza call for a divided grade system of approaches which will absorb traffic from near-by streets and avenues and so route them as to provide a steady and rapid flow of traffic into and out of the underwater section of the new tube.

PLAN 3 MORE FLOORS ATOP THE EQUITABLE

Plans are being considered for the construction of three additional floors on the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, it was learned yesterday. The extra floor space, if the project is carried through, will be utilized by the Bankers' Club, which now occupies the thirty-eighth floor.

It was said at the office of Leroy W. Baldwin, president of the Empire Trust Company, at 120 Broadway, and chairman of the board of directors of the Equitable Office Building Corporation, that the board was not prepared at this time to give out any information concerning the addition, as the matter had not been definitely acted upon.

Harry R. Allen, architect, of 405 Lexington Avenue, admitted that his office had prepared tentative plans for the extension but declined to make any further comment.

At the office of the Equitable Office Building Corporation it was learned that the proposal had been studied by the engineers and architects, and that the officers of the corporation had discussed with the club officials that modern and attractive features that might be added to the present building.

It was said that the plans for its increased space for the Bankers' Club include an auditorium. The approximate cost of the three tentative additional floors, it was said, would be $1,000,000.

BUILDER GETS HOUSING SITE

Real estate trading in Manhattan yesterday was practically devoid of any changes in fee ownership. The only event of interest in the latter classification came to light with the filing of a deed in the Register's Office which showed that Emily Smith Warner, daughter of former Governor Smith, had sold the house at 72 Oliver Street to a holding company. The house was formerly occupied by Mr. Smith and had been given by him to his daughter for a wedding present.

On the upper west side of Manhattan, the 102 West Eighty-fifth Street Corporation (Maxwell L. Oettel) leased from the Alliance Realty Company 102 and 104 West Eighty-fifth Street, a plot 70 by 100 feet, for twenty-one years with two renewals. Charles H. Lench, architect, is preparing plans for improving the site with a twelve-story apartment house to represent an investment of $700,000. The Brooks Harvey Company has arranged a $350,000 building loan with the Lawyers Mortgage Company on the project.

The Allets Holding Company, A. Richard Stern, president, leased to Samuel Harris the property at 43 East Fifty-ninth Street for twenty-one years from Oct. 1, 1930, the yearly rentals to be $10,600, $13,600 and $15,600 for the three seven-year periods, plus all taxes and assessments. The lessee has the option of renewing the lease for twenty-one years more at a net rental annually of 6 per cent of the appraised value of the land, but never less than $15,600. Slawson & Hobbs arranged the matter.

The building at 52-54 Walker Street was leased through the Cross & Brown Company to John M. Maris Company, Inc., druggists' glassware.

Ruth A. Wallace leased the northeast corner of Fifty-fourth Street and Eleventh Avenue to Wheels, Inc., through the Cross & Brown Company.

The property at 850 West End Avenue, 50 by 100 feet, was leased by Charles Nessler to Gustavus V. Stoeber for fifteen years from Aug. 1, 1930, the annual rent to be $11,000 for the first year and $12,000 for the remainder of the term, in addition to all taxes, assesments, &c. The lessee has the option of purchasing these premises for $250,000 at any time within five years from date.

The Childs Company renewed its lease from the Veronica Realty Corporation, Martin F. Huberth, president, on the property at the southwest corner of Columbus Circle and Fifty-ninth Street, known as 300-304 West Fifty-ninth Street, for three years from May 1 of next year, the annual rental to be $37,500, plus all taxes, assessments, &c.

METROPOLIS CLUB PLANS.

Two Stories to Be Added and Alterations Made at Cost of $80,000.

Two stories are to be added to the New Metropolis Club at 105-107 West Fifty-seventh Street, and other alterations to the interior will be made at an estimated cost of $80,000. The architects are Schwartz & Gross. The building at present is six stories in height. A large dining room and a squash court will be installed on the new upper floors.

The clubhouse occupies a plot fronting forty-three feet adjoining the Hotel Buckingham at the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue. On the west is the Steinway Building. The club has occupied the property for several years, having originally been organized as the Friendship Club.

300 Baby Carriage Garage For Model Apartments

Included in the accommodations to be provided in the model apartment building going up in the block bounded by Grand, Sheriff, Columbia and Broome Streets is an innovation which the sponsors of the project call a "baby carriage garage."

Large space in the basement on the Grand Street side of the building has been set aside for the care and storage of baby carriages belonging to tenants. Spaces will be marked off for 300 carriages to accommodate the 235 families due to occupy the structure. Entrance to the carriage rooms will be provided by a ramp leading from the garden court. An attendant will be on duty at certain hours.

"We will welcome tenants with children in these apartments and have provided a number of attractions for children," said Aaron Rabinowitz, member of the State Board of Housing, which is sponsoring the project.

DEARTH OF TENANTS HITS SKYSCRAPERS

TOTAL IS FOR MANHATTAN

That Manhattan has enough office space to supply all demands for the next couple of years is shown in the annual survey of the Building Managers Association of New York which is printed in detail in the current issue of the official journal of the Real Estate Board of New York.

According to the survey there is about 2,000,000 square feet of vacant space in the ninety-seven existing buildings surveyed in the Grand Central zone.

In the downtown financial district there is over 800,000 square feet of vacant space, while the Plaza section in the Fifties has about 500,000 square feet.

The survey which includes only buildings regarded as more or less competitive, says:

"A comparison with 1929 will reveal some apparent increases in the percentages of vacant space but it will likewise show that a considerably larger number of buildings were surveyed this year. Last year's survey involved 196 existing buildings. This year it included 291. Furthermore, the survey of this year included a considerable percentage of vacant space in fifty-four buildings which were completed for occupancy during 1929 and 1930.

"In view of these circumstances, the apparent percentage increases in reported vacancies are regarded as obvious by President J. Clydesdale Cushman of the Building Managers and Owners Association and by Lee Thompson Smith, chairman of the Rental Conditions Committee. Under the changed circumstances, therefore, it is impossible to make any comparison between the percentages of 1929 and 1930.

Some of the Buildings Surveyed.

"Among the new buildings that were included in this year's report were such towering giants as the Bank of Manhattan cloud tickler at 40 Wall Street and the giant structure at 120 Wall Street as well as 1 Cedar Street. In the City Hall district was added the building at 270 Broadway.

"In the Grand Central district were added 475 Fifth Avenue; Lincoln Building (60 East Forty-second Street); Chrysler Building (405 Lexington Avenue); Daily News Building (216 East Forty-second Street); Lefcourt Colonial (295 Madison Avenue); also 370 Lexington Avenue; Title Guarantee & Trust Company Building (6 East Forty-fifth Street), and 19 East Forty-seventh Street.

"The total assessed value of the land and buildings included in the 1930 survey was approximately $996,760,000. These were divided as follows: Financial district, $438,365,000; Grand Central district, $332,650,000; City Hall, $85,535,000; Plaza district, $45,395,000; Insurance district, $42,260,000, and the Columbus Circle district, $22,555,000."

Much New Space in Prospect.

Despite this amount of vacant space new construction of office buildings in the downtown financial section for occupancy in 1931 will add over 2,500,000 square feet to the existing rentable space. In the Grand Central zone close to a million square feet will be added for 1931 occupancy.

There are ten big buildings in course of construction in the downtown financial district, with an aggregate of 277 stories furnishing 2,534,617 square feet of rentable space.

In addition to this in what is known as the Insurance district in the vicinity of Nassau, John, Pearl, Dutch and Fulton Streets there are four big buildings aggregating sixty-three stories with 495,809 square feet of space that will be completed next year.

URGE 3 STATES TO END HARBOR POLLUTION

WILL SEEK FEDERAL AID

But Tuttle Says Government Lacks Control of Sewage—Liners Face $2,500 Fines for Dumping Waste.

The Federal authorities are powerless to help prevent the dumping of sewage into the rivers surrounding Manhattan Island and into Long Island Sound, United States Attorney Tuttle told the members of the recently formed Tri-State Conference at their meeting in the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called to discuss ways and means of remedying conditions in the rivers. It was attended by health and government officials from New Jersey, Connecticut and New York. Senator Royal S. Copeland presided.

Because of the lack of legislation and because of the delay necessary to the enactment of new laws, a resolution was adopted which requested the Governors of the States to appoint special commissions to discuss jointly and with the Federal authorities means of remedying a condition which Mr. Tuttle described as a menace to the health of the residents of all three States.

The conditions in the East and Harlem Rivers, particularly the latter, caused the Department of Health officials to issue a warning to all swimmers in the recent race around Manhattan Island not to participate because of the danger to their health. Commissioner Wynne attempted to have the race canceled, he said, but was unable to do so, as it was outside the powers of his department.

In an effort to remedy conditions by stopping the dumping of waste from ocean liners, United States Attorney Amell for the Eastern District declared that in the future all offenders would pay the maximum fine of $2,500 instead of the minimum of $250, as previously. He believed that such a procedure would help to relieve the Hudson River and Long Island Sound of much of its floating menaces to navigation. Commodore J. Laphan of the Waterways League of America declared many a ship's propeller had been broken by timber floating in the river.

Mr. Tuttle criticized the Legislature for its failure to take the proper steps to remedy conditions. He asserted that laws had been adopted which regulated the length of docks and the height of bridges, but that the quarantine act of 1899, while it mentioned several articles which could not be deposited in the rivers, failed to mention sewage. He hoped to see the proper remedy adopted at the next session of the Legislature.

Joseph P. Day described conditions around Manhattan from the time the public waterfront baths were closed to the present, when the city authorities were attempting to improve the condition of the Harlem River, which was described as being no better than an open cesspool. He believed that while it would cost large sums of money, the next ten years would see Manhattanites again able to go swimming in the rivers and the reopening of the public bath system.

Senator Hamilton Kean declared that it was difficult to obtain the funds to remedy the situation from the Committee on Appropriations, of which he was a member, because the Senators from other States bitterly opposed any award in which their home States did not participate. He believed it to be a matter for the three States affected.

Letters approving the project were received from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Governor John Trumbull of Connecticut, Senator David J. Baird of New Jersey and Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut. The next meeting was scheduled for Sept. 15 in the Hotel Astor.

SEVEN REDS GO ON TRIAL.

The trial of Miss Lillian Pearlman, 28 years old, of 252 Warburton Avenue, Yonkers, and six other Communists alleged to have participated in a riot in Yonkers on Aug. 1, was started before Judge Gerald Nolan in Yonkers City Court yesterday. Their counsel, Irvin Klein, contended that the police had no legal right to break up the meeting.

The Communists, all of whom are charged with disorderly conduct, allege that there is no city ordinance that forbids such a political meeting in Larkin Plaza. All pleaded not guilty.

The police said they stopped the meeting because the Communists had no permit to meet there and had refused an offer of permission to meet on the Yonkers public pier. The police reported that before the hearing opened circulars were passed about urging all Communist sympathizers to attend the trial.

BARS HORSE SHOW PLAN OF MRS. BLOODGOOD

Court Denies Use of the Name "Smithtown" to Woman Who Quit Club After Dispute.

The Smithtown Horse Show Association, Inc., an organization formed a few weeks ago by Mrs. Lida L. Bloodgood of Setauket, L. I., following her resignation from the Smithtown Country Beach and Outing Club, was enjoined yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Faber in Brooklyn from using the words "Smithtown Horse Show" in connection with the horse show Mrs. Bloodgood's group plans to hold in Smithtown, L. I., Sept. 19 and 20.

The injunction was obtained by the Smithtown Country Beach and Outing Club, which alleges that Mrs. Bloodgood's organization was attempting to "steal" the annual show which was begun by an unincorporated association of the same name as her association. The original society later merged with the Smithtown Country Beach and Outing Club, and that organization has been holding the show in recent years.

Mrs. Bloodgood, who was an active member of both the original organization and the club with which it merged, resigned a few months ago. It was said that there had been a quarrel over club finances and also that there had been a difference of opinion concerning policy. Lawrence Smith Butler, formerly president of the original society, who is now president of the Smithtown Country Beach and Outing Club, led the fight against Mrs. Bloodgood.

"I am convinced that the defendant has no right to conduct a horse show under its present name," Justice Faber said. "If it desires to engage in such a worthy undertaking it should do so under a name which does not so closely resemble that used by the plaintiff for the past twenty years. I cannot imagine a more flagrant case of attempting to destroy the old and well known 'Smithtown Horse Show.'"

TO UNVEIL 1898 MEMORIAL.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Dedicates Lakeview Monument Today.

MALVERNE, L. I., Aug. 15.—While aviators overhead drop flowers, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt will unveil tomorrow afternoon the memorial monument in Lakeview to Colonel Roosevelt and Spanish-American War veterans.

The monument, commemorating the part Theodore Roosevelt played in the 1898 struggle, is between the parsonage of the Evangelical Church of the Good Shepherd and the church building at Railroad and Park Avenues.

Following the presentation of the Roosevelt memorial mast by Russell Doubleday, James E. Stiles, Nassau county publisher, will present the memorial to the war veterans. Representative Robert L. Bacon and Captain John Green of Mitchel Field will speak.

The ceremonies will begin with a parade. William H. Dahlgren of Lakeview, an active member of Hubbell Camp, Spanish-American War Veterans, Brooklyn, is in charge of arrangements.

BEGS JAIL AS NARCOTIC CURE

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP).—Dr. P. Reginald Deighton, aged 68, who said he once played the organ before King Edward VII and had played in the Rheims and Notre Dame Cathedrals, begged Judge William Helander today to send him to jail that he might break the narcotic habit.

Shabbily dressed and unshaven, Dr. Deighton pleaded for a chance to cure himself in prison, "although it may kill me." He was fined $100 and costs, the sentence affording him an opportunity for treatment under State supervision.

Dr. Deighton said he was graduated from the Royal College of Music at London and became enslaved to narcotics when suffering from rheumatism thirty-three years ago. He came to this country last year, playing his last concert about that time at Niles, Mich.

Fullen Ill, Transit Parley Off.

Conferences on the proposed unification of new city subway lines with those of the B. M. T. were temporarily halted yesterday because of the illness of William G. He has taken no vacations, except for occasional week-end visits to the shore, since he was appointed by Governor Roosevelt two years ago.

ASKS $15,000 TO AID SEAMEN'S LIBRARY

Church Institute Asserts Its Expansion of Activities Has Delayed Conrad Memorial.

PRESSING NEED IS URGED

Official Organ, in Plea, Points to Daily Requests for Books on Marine and Scientific Subjects.

Expansion of the activities of the Seamen's Church Institute at its quarters at 25 South Street has delayed work on the Conrad Memorial Library at the institute building and resulted in an appeal to the public to subscribe $15,000 to permit its completion.

In a statement in The Lookout, official organ of the institute, the need for an adequate library is stressed. The library was started several years ago as a memorial to Joseph Conrad and is termed by The Lookout "the greatest present need of the 60,000 or more merchant seamen who are ashore daily in New York City."

This need is "overwhelmingly evident" to the staff members who are in daily contact with the men, according to The Lookout. Many of the men are ambitious to advance in rank, it points out, and ask for books that will help them to become masters or mates, but the library is not equipped to perform this service.

The library has become a popular gathering place for seamen from all over the world and has outgrown the equipment now available. The situation is summed up in a statement in The Lookout as follows:

"Because of our concern over our building construction debt, we have been unable to purchase partitions, books, shelvings, index cabinets and other equipment. We now need $15,000 for such equipment, which will include a complete reference and marine library. As an example of the keen need of such library facilities, not a day passes at the institute but what hundreds of the 8,000 to 12,000 seamen entering our building demand books which we are unable to provide.

"Furthermore, the large attendance at the weekly lectures on scientific, literary and political subjects would indicate that our seamen are ambitious and desire to improve their education. Many of them wish to work up to officership, to master's standing, but until we are equipped with volumes on astronomy, mathematics, physical geography, admiralty law, chemistry, hydraulics, physics, &c., they are seriously handicapped in their aim."

The appeal is termed by the officials at the institute "the opportunity of paying a double tribute: first to Conrad, the great seaman author; and, second, to the men who live throughout his immortal pages."

Bishop Manning is honorary president of the Seamen's Church Institute and Edmund Lincoln Baylies is the active president. Junius S. Morgan Jr. is treasurer of the building fund.

SHIPPING BOARD POLICY ON SALES UNDEFINED

The United States Shipping Board has again failed to determine its policy toward the operators of its ships and competitive bidders when the ships are placed on the market, the American Gulf Orient Line being added to the American France and American Diamond Lines in the uncertain column, it was learned yesterday.

The Isthmian Line has asked permission to bid for the line, which plies between Gulf ports and the Orient, although the Merchant Fleet Corporation, the operating branch of the Shipping Board, has recommended that it be sold without competitive bids to the Tampa Inter-Ocean Steamship Company, which now operates the service for the board.

The general counsel of the Shipping Board has decided that the shipping act does not require the invitation of competitive bids and does provide that preference be given to the managing operators of the Shipping Board's lines when they are to be sold. The Shipping Board was unable to decide the question of the Gulf Line at a special meeting Thursday.

The American France and American Diamond Lines are operated by corporations which have offered bids for the ships, but Paul W. Chapman, who bought the United States Lines from the Shipping Board, has also entered bids, double the prices quoted by the operating companies. The Shipping Board has failed to act in this case, also, and the situation is price versus preference to the operating companies.

LYNCH GROUP NAMES ANTI-RENDT TICKET

BITTER FIGHT PREDICTED

The fight for the Democratic leadership of Richmond County between Borough President John A. Lynch and County Chairman Davis S. Rendt broadened yesterday when the Lynch faction designated a full ticket except a candidate for Representative in Congress to oppose at the primary election the candidates designated last week by the Rendt faction.

The action came as a surprise because Mr. Lynch refused last week to accept the designation to run against Mr. Rendt for member of the Democratic State Committee from the First Assembly District. The Lynch supporters instead named M. J. McDermott, Superintendent of Public Buildings, and it was said at the time that the members of the Lynch faction would make no other designations but would concentrate their fight upon Mr. Rendt.

It was said that the recent action of Mayor Walker in appointing three Rendt followers to the recently established City Employment Bureau had convinced the Borough President that he and his friends must make a showing in the primaries to receive recognition at City Hall. With two tickets for Democratic nominations in the field, a bitter fight is expected.

Anning S. Prall, designated for renomination for Representative in Congress by the Rendt faction, is also designated by the Lynch faction. The other Lynch designations follow:

Sheriff—EDWARD S. ATWELL.
State Senator—Twenty-fourth District, JAMES O'LEARY.
Assembly—First District, FRANCIS A. HANNIGAN; Second District, AUGUSTUS G. MARSCHER.
State Committeeman—First District, WILLIAM J. McDERMOTT; Second District, ROBERT G. LINDSAY.

Mr. Atwell, a former Sheriff, is secretary to the Borough President. He and Mr. Lindsay recently were removed by Mr. Rendt from the Democratic Executive Committee for alleged party disloyalty. At the same time Mr. Lindsay was compelled to resign his post as secretary to Park Commissioner John J. O'Rourke.

PINCHOT AND BROWN TO VIE

Rivals Will Speak Today, Opening Pennsylvania Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 15.—Gifford Pinchot, who won the Republican Gubernatorial nomination at the May primary, and Francis Shunk Brown, his defeated Vare-backed opponent who is contesting the outcome, both have accepted invitations to speak tomorrow at Fogelsville, where the Republican party's State campaign will be opened.

Although several county committees have gone on record declaring for Mr. Pinchot regardless of the outcome of pending litigation in the Supreme Court, the Lehigh Committee, under whose auspices tomorrow's meeting will be held, will take no action and neither Mr. Pinchot nor Mr. Brown will be introduced as the nominee, it was said.

Leading political figures of Pennsylvania will attend the meeting and many of the other candidates, including Secretary Davis, the Senatorial nominee, are expected to speak.

On Tuesday in this city the Supreme Court will hear arguments on the Luzerne County ballot box case, and its decision will determine the party's nominee for Governor. Regardless of the decision, however, Mr. Pinchot will be on the ticket, having pre-empted an independent designation.

MILLER WINS IN ALABAMA.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 15 (AP).—Official tabulation of the vote in Tuesday's Democratic primary for Senator gave John H. Bankhead 102,988 and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, 61,211.

For Governor, Miller received 79,479 firsts, 9,449 seconds; Davis, 69,521 firsts, 10,078 seconds. The vote for the other four candidates was light.

Mr. Davis congratulated Judge Miller today and pledged his support in the campaign against Hugh A. Locke of Birmingham, who will be the Gubernatorial candidate on the independent ticket which Senator Heflin leads.

SPEEDS SCHOOLING HERE.

Italian Youth Finishes 12 Grades in Seven Years of Night Study.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 15.—Establishing what is believed to be a record here in educational pursuits, John Annucci of 645 Elizabeth Avenue, who came to this country from Italy on Oct. 8, 1923, has completed his elementary and high school education in seven years of evening study, as compared with the average twelve years of daytime study. The youth, who said he came to this country to obtain an education, will enter Rhode Island State College on Sept. 8.

Beginning his education in the evening sessions of School 3, Annucci was graduated from Grover Cleveland Junior High School in 1927. In 1929 he was graduated from the Elizabeth Preparatory School, completing a high school course in less than two years.

Hill Will Run in Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15 (AP).—John Philip Hill, wet leader in Congress for several terms, announced today that he would seek the Republican nomination for the Third District in the Sept. 8 primary. He was beaten on the face of the 1928 returns by Vincent L. Palmisano, Democrat, but a Senate subcommittee recommended that the seat be declared vacant because of Hill's charges of election frauds. Congress adjourned before action was taken.

Saloon Is Advertised for Sale in New Jersey; 'Never Any Liquor Difficulties,' Owners Boast

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 15.—Under the heading "Business Opportunities" The Bergen County Record published today the following classified advertisement:

> Saloon with property; old people want to retire; doing $40,000 a year business; never any liquor difficulties; catering to a select trade; a live wire can clear at least $20,000 yearly; this is one of the outstanding opportunities of a lifetime. Bergen Business Brokers, 221 Main St., Hackensack.

Prosecutor Edward O. West of Bergen County was among those who read the advertisement with more than passing interest. He dispatched two of his detectives to interview Louis Cannel, manager of the agency which had inserted the advertisement, who professed to see it as merely a common place of business.

The detectives learned, however, that the resort had been operated for several years by an elderly couple on Broad Street, Carlstadt, a small community between here and Jersey City. It has never been troubled by the authorities, they were told.

In the absence of more specific evidence, the prosecutor said, he could take no action against the place on the strength of the advertisement. He declared that he would place a watch on the resort, however, and order it raided if any evidence of violation of the prohibition law came to light.

Mr. West also expressed some doubt of the legality of the publication of the advertisement, but said that he would take up that phase of the matter later. Meanwhile, although the advertisement had attracted wide attention, it had not, late tonight, achieved its purpose, the sale of the resort.

54 PILOTS ENTER AIR RACES.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—When the entry lists for the speed events in the 1930 national air races were closed tonight fifty-four well-known pilots had signed up for competition in the fifty or more race contests. Additional entries, delayed in the mails, were expected to raise the number to 100 tomorrow.

One of the last pilots to enlist was C. S. (Casey) Jones, vice president of the Curtiss Wright Flying Service of New York. After four years of retirement, Jones is resuming flying, and when the curtain is raised on the national meet at Curtiss Field on Aug. 23, Jones will be on hand with a variety of planes to take part in seven different speed events.

Earlier in the day J. Wesley Smith, veteran air-mail pilot and manager of the National Air Transport base at Cleveland, wired that he will race in the men's Atlantic derby starting from Hartford, Conn., next Thursday.

A minor change was made today in the route of the women's Pacific derby, which will start Sunday. The final control point in this 2,300-mile flight will be at Milwaukee, instead of Elgin, Ill. The women will fly to Milwaukee from Madison, Wis., arriving at noon, Monday, Aug. 25, to prepare for the last lap to Curtiss Field.

SCHNEIDER GAINS ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15 (AP).—Eddie Schneider, who is attempting to set a new junior transcontinental air record, landed at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 7:04 P. M., Central Standard Time, today from Columbus, Ohio.

Schneider reported that the trip from Columbus was uneventful. He left there at 3:21 P. M.

Schneider's flying time since leaving Westfield, N. J., has been 8 hours and 38 minutes. The youthful airman said he would spend the night here, probably leaving for Wichita, Kan., tomorrow morning.

EXPECT 3 COUNTIES TO OPPOSE CLOSE

MACK SUPPORT FEARED

Orange, Dutchess and Rockland Groups May Swing to Democrat Owing to Feud With Ward.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—County Judge Frederick P. Close, candidate of the Westchester County organization for the Republican nomination for Supreme Court Justice in the Ninth Judicial District, is likely to have the opposition of the party organizations of Orange, Dutchess and Rockland Counties, it was reported here today.

As the Westchester County delegates will be in the majority at the judicial convention, this opposition is not likely to prevent Judge Close's nomination, but there is said to be a chance that the Republican organizations of these three counties may support John E. Mack of Poughkeepsie, a Democrat, now sitting on the bench by appointment of Governor Roosevelt and who will be the Democratic nominee.

The members of the Orange County organization are reported to remember the blow dealt them last year by William L. Ward, veteran Westchester County leader, when Graham Witschief, an Orange County insurgent, was nominated for Supreme Court Justice despite the opposition of the delegation from his own county, who wished to name County Judge Russell Wiggins of Orange County. Jonathan Wilson, Orange County leader, contended that the Orange County organization should be permitted to name the candidate to succeed Justice Albert H. F. Seeger, also an Orange County man. A bitter feeling against Mr. Ward developed among the Orange County Republicans when he insisted upon nominating Justice Witschief. Because Judge Close is the Ward candidate, it is regarded as almost certain that the Orange County Republican organization will endorse Justice Mack.

Justice Mack also is expected to be endorsed by the Republican organization of Dutchess County, where he has his home. The Rockland County Republican organization also is believed to be anti-Ward and recently refused to endorse Charles D. Millard, designee of the Ward organization for the Republican nomination for Representative in the Twenty-fifth Congressional District.

HAWKS TURNS BACK FOR FISHING TACKLE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 15.—Captain Frank M. Hawks, who on Wednesday established a new record of 12 hours and 25 minutes between Los Angeles and New York, was balked today on his flight with Mrs. Hawks from here to Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., at Springfield, Mass.

With poor weather ahead he suddenly discovered over Springfield that he had left his fishing tackle, a pressing accoutrement to his vacation, at the estate of Mrs. Richard A. Mestres on the lake shore in the White Mountains, stowed in the rear seat of the automobile in which he and Mrs. Hawks had driven to the Sikorsky plant from their home in Scarsdale, N. Y.

Landing at Springfield, he telephoned to inquire if the tackle could be found and with the answer in the affirmative he turned back. By the time he was ready to start again the weather had thickened over New England to such an extent that he decided to delay his departure until tomorrow. He will fly the same new single-engined Sikorsky amphibian for four passengers and will use the lake in front of the estate as his airport while in New Hampshire.

NEW PASSENGER AIR LINE.

Eastern Transport to Open Service Along Coast Monday.

Among the first passengers over the new passenger division of Eastern Air Transport, which starts on Monday morning, a regular passenger service between North Beach, Queens, and Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond, will be Sir George Hubert Wilkins, polar explorer, and Elmer G. Sperry, engineering specialty inventor and manufacturer, according to Ralph S. Westing, general traffic manager of the company.

The line, which previously has carried air mail only, will operate from the foot of East Forty-second Street, Manhattan, and the passengers will be taken to the Queens airport by cabin speedboats. There they will board standard-type tri-motored Ford transport planes for the air journey over New York and to the cities on the line. The personnel of the line has been recruited from the air-mail division of the same company, Mr. Westing said.

14,000 AT COLUMBIA END SUMMER STUDY

17 STATE CLUBS WIND UP

An exodus of more than 10,000 students to all parts of the country marked the closing of Columbia University's thirty-first Summer session yesterday. The Pennsylvania Railroad added extra cars on all trains leaving New York, and special sections were added to the Wolverine Express and the Pennsylvania Limited. The Consolidated Ticket Agency, which established a temporary branch on the campus yesterday, reported that it had sold more than 1,800 tickets.

The block from Amsterdam Avenue to Broadway on 116th Street, lined during the Summer session with cars bearing license plates from every State in the Union, was almost deserted last night.

The State clubs at the university, composed of Summer students and alumni, held their last meetings and elected officers yesterday. There are seventeen such clubs, representing either single States or groups of States.

"More than 14,000 students attended classes at Columbia," Director John J. Coss said. "This represents an increase of several hundred over last year's record registration. The range of subjects covered was practically identical with the work of the Winter and credit toward all degrees is given for work carried on in the Summer."

Educational subjects were the most popular of the more than 1,100 courses offered. The symposium in law and finance which attempted to establish a correlation between the two fields attracted a large number of students and will be continued next year. Only two students were registered for the course in Japanese, the first ever given at Columbia.

Chaplain Raymond C. Knox announced that the interest shown by the Summer students in the series of lectures, "The Part of Religion in the Building of a World Community," indicated a growth of religious spirit in the American schools and colleges.

N.Y.U. SUMMER SCHOOL ENDS

6,949 Students Finish Six Weeks' Work in 49 Subject Groups.

The thirty-sixth annual session of the Summer School of New York University ended its six weeks' course yesterday. Declaring this year's session to have been, "from the standpoint of faculty and administration, the most successful and inspiring of a long series of successful Summer schools," Dean Milton E. Loomis, director of the school, announced that its enrolment was 6,949 as compared with 6,348 last year.

The total included 2,129 students taking courses in special February to September and July to September classes at Washington Square, 136 students at University Heights, 136 in the extension division taking precollegiate subjects and 70 taking fine arts courses. Every State and the District of Columbia, as well as eight foreign countries, sent students to the school.

New York State led with 2,308 students, New Jersey was second with 614, Pennsylvania third with 322 and Connecticut fourth, with 132. Japan with six students, and China with four, led the foreign nations. Student ages varied from 16 to 70. A faculty of 194 gave a total of 470 courses in forty-nine different subject groups.

CITY SUMMER CLASSES END.

12,500 of 15,000 Elementary School Pupils Win Promotion.

Summer sessions in fifty elementary schools throughout the city closed yesterday after a week of examinations in which about 12,500 of the more than 15,000 pupils were certified for promotion in their regular grades.

The six-week session was provided for slow or retarded pupils who can now return to their schools and enter the grades they failed to reach last June. Robert J. Hubbard, director of vacation schools, said that about 80 per cent of those certified in Summer sessions succeed in "maintaining" their grades. The city thus saves the money which would be necessary to provide instruction for 10,000 pupils during a regular term instead of the brief and intensive vacation session.

RIDER GRADUATES 344.

Two honorary degrees were awarded. William J. Couse, president of the Asbury Park National Bank and Trust Company and active in other business and financial organizations, received the honorary degree of Master of Business Administration. Mr. Couse is a graduate of Rider College.

George R. Gerard, Superintendent of Schools at Belleville, N. J., received the honorary degree of Master of Commercial Science.

Dr. Robert H. Tucker Gets New Post at Washington and Lee.

LEXINGTON, Va., Aug. 15.—Dr. Robert H. Tucker, Professor of Economics at Washington and Lee University and for six months acting president, has been named dean of the college.

The title of dean of the college is a revival of a former position in the administrative staff of the university, but Dr. Tucker's work will be new, concerned chiefly with organization and personnel. It will not be in conflict with the office of Dr. H. D. Campbell, dean of the university. The new dean will continue as head of the Department of Economics.

Westchester to Hold Contest For Miniature Aircraft

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The Recreation Commission of Westchester County, recognizing the importance of aviation to the youth of today, will hold a county-wide miniature aircraft tournament tomorrow at the Westchester County Centre, on the Bronx River Parkway, west of this city.

Roland H. Spaulding, specialist in aeronautical education for the Guggenheim Fund committee, will be a guest of the commission. The judge will be Arthur Nelson of the Yonkers Community Service and Harold White, director of the Mount Vernon Recreation Commission. The contest will be held under the direction of F. L. Lobdell, director of miniature aircraft for the Recreation Commission.

CANADIANS SEIZE LAKE LIQUOR CRAFT

Vedas With 10,000 Cases Aboard Is Held—Accused of Disposing of Some to Americans.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 15 (AP).—Seized by Dominion customs preventive officers, the Canadian steamer Vedas, which authorities allege had a large cargo of liquor, was tied up this afternoon at a Windsor dock. The seizure was made near East Sister Island, Lake Erie.

Unofficial estimates said there were 10,000 cases aboard, although no liquor was in evidence this afternoon, the cargo being below decks. Customs officers stood guard over the boat at the dock.

The ship is believed to have been turned back by the United States Coast Guard when it attempted to run the cargo into the United States and was captured by officers in Canadian waters.

OTTAWA, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—Officials of the Department of National Revenue were informed today of the seizure of the Vedas. The craft had apparently been under close watch by the preventive force for some time. She was formerly the Shearwater and was remodeled in Halifax Harbor. It was understood she was being fitted out to carry beer from breweries in Quebec and Ontario to government dispensaries along the Great Lakes.

On her way from Halifax to Montreal she was kept under surveillance, it is understood. The preventive force, which suspected she was bringing liquor from Miquelon, searched her on her trip up the St. Lawrence. She was found to have no liquor aboard.

She proceeded to Montreal, where she loaded a cargo of beer and cleared for Port Arthur, according to information received by the department. She is alleged to have discharged some 3,000 cases on Lake Erie to United States' craft.

The seizure was made on the grounds that her master had made out a false "outward," declaring she was going to carry her entire cargo to Port Arthur.

SCANDINAVIAN WETS MEET IN CONVENTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—The Scandinavian Anti-Prohibitionist Congress opened here this morning with the presentation of reports and statistics by representatives of Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland.

It was reported that in 1906 the average consumption of liquor in Denmark was seven to eight litres annually, but that now it is only 2.64 litres. A Norwegian delegate, Mr. Diesen, advocated government regulation of spirits consumption. Captain Sundelin of Stockholm stated that spirits consumption and drunkenness offenses were increasing in Sweden, presumably because of increased wealth.

Major Hulten said several Finnish lawyers and scientists had opened an attack on prohibition as breaking down the national economic and moral standards.

Professor Ehrnrooth of Helsingfors, who is head of a municipal asylum, said in an interview that conditions in Finland were becoming worse every year. He said he did not doubt that leading politicians had a changed conception of the prohibition question. At the congress Professor Ehrnrooth lectured on the same subject, calling attention to the increasing number of cases of alcoholic poisoning in Finnish hospitals.

He said 28 per cent of the suicides there were traceable to alcohol. Most of the drinkers are between the ages of 20 and 29, he continued, but he said there also was a large number between 15 and 20 years old. Since the introduction of prohibition, he added, conditions have developed in an almost hopeless direction. He said that conditions in Denmark, where there is no prohibition but a high tax on spirits, are much better, and illustrated this point by the fact that only 319 patients are in the so-called Sixth Division Municipal Hospital at Copenhagen because of alcohol, as compared with 800 in 1910.

LIQUOR COMPANY SUFFERS.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—The order prohibiting the exportation of liquor to the United States was blamed today for the uncertain future which Lord Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company, said his concern faced.

At the annual meeting here Lord Shaughnessy declared that the forthcoming financial statement would not show as good profits as that of last year, due in the main to the closed United States business. The future was obscure, he said, and the company was forced to rely now to a large extent on its domestic and ocean business. He concurred with suggestions from shareholders that the company should make representations to the new administration at Ottawa looking toward an alleviation of this difficulty.

'BISHOP' GETS YEAR IN WINE CONSPIRACY

PRIEST RECEIVES FREEDOM

Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas, in imposing sentence yesterday upon Charles Mrzena, "Bishop" of the Czechoslovak Orthodox Old Catholic Church, and twelve of his co-defendants, six of whom had pleaded guilty to charges of diverting sacramental wine to bootleg channels, and six of whom were convicted with Mrzena, Thursday, on that charge, served notice upon the clergy that they must obey the law, even if high officers of the Church urge them to do the opposite.

The "Bishop," it was charged in an indictment handed up last June, conspiring with fifteen others, withdrew between 40,000 and 50,000 gallons of wine in 1929, supposedly for the legitimate use of small Russian, Greek and Slavic Churches. Judge Thomas sentenced him to serve a year and a day in Atlanta Penitentiary.

"This man," said Judge Thomas—"and I have been troubled about the matter of his sentence half the night—debauched his priests. Believing that they must do as the Bishop they worked for told them to do, they signed withdrawal forms for hundreds of gallons of wine at a time when a few gallons were all they needed."

Judge Thomas then meted out a suspended sentence of one year for Father John Petrykanyn, formerly of Newburgh, N. Y., who left his church recently in Youngstown, Ohio (the Lithuanian Orthodox Church), and came to New York to plead guilty and aid the government.

"Remember, father," Judge Thomas said to Petrykanyn, "you should not do anything like this, Bishop or no Bishop. If a Bishop ever asks you to do anything of this sort tell him where to go."

Of the original defendants indicted separate trials were granted to three and Judge Thomas dismissed charges against two others. In addition to the "Bishop," who was led to the Federal house of detention by a United States marshal, Judge Thomas imposed prison sentences upon two other defendants.

They were Victor Dumbra, wine broker, who was sentenced to four months in the Federal house of detention, and Robert Maggi, truckman, who, according to U. S. Grant, Assistant United States Attorney, had been convicted before in another liquor case. Maggi was sentenced to serve one month in the same prison.

Michael Ricucci and Albert Antonelli, truckmen, drew suspended sentences, with the warning of Judge Thomas that punishment would be imposed on evidence of any future misconduct. Suspended sentences of a year each were then imposed upon Daniel Cella, truckman, and Amelio de Maio, wine merchant, and five of his employes, who had pleaded guilty. They were Frank Mermosch, Adolph Rocelli, John Tortorelli and Salvatore and Frank Canterino.

Judge Thomas declined to postpone the execution of Mrzena's sentence, but suspended Dumbra's until Sept. 3 to permit him to arrange his affairs. The "Bishop" will be taken to Atlanta, unless an appeal interferes with the plans, as soon as the government has enough prisoners in the Federal house of detention to fill a special car.

Mrzena, according to Federal prosecutors, may be deported upon completion of his sentence, since he was convicted of a felony and is not an American citizen.

Padlock 7 Chattanooga Roadhouses.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 15 (AP).—Seven roadhouses were padlocked and twenty-three persons accused of bootlegging were arrested here today by prohibition officers headed by Federal Administrator Carroll Cate of Knoxville.

ASSERT LIQUOR RING PAID $6,000 TO LYLE

Money Was to Be Used in Campaign of Senator Jones, Witness Testifies.

SEATTLE, Aug. 15.—The Olmsted bootleg ring paid $6,000 for a "Senatorial campaign fund" and gave $250 to the Women's Christian Temperance Union in the Fall of 1926, Alfred N. Hubbard, witness for the government, testified today in the bribery trial of Roy C. Lyle, former prohibition administrator for the Pacific Northwest, and four other officials.

Hubbard, who admitted being connected at various times with the liquor-runners and the prohibition unit, said the $6,000 was paid directly to Lyle when he and William Whitney, legal adviser to the administrator, were raising a fund for the re-election of Senator Wesley L. Jones.

There was no evidence that Senator Jones, author of the "Jones Five and Ten" law, knew of the contribution.

Hubbard also testified that $500 and a radio were given to Whitney for getting one of the Olmsted ring out of jail. He told the jury that Earl Corwin, a Federal field agent, another of the defendants, took $100 and a radio from Hubbard as protection money after being told that Olmsted did not consider him "worth more than a policeman or deputy sheriff."
